Drivers Vote End to 2-Day Bus Strike In New York

Balloting Marks Conclusion of Revolt Against Union's Order

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Drivers on the city's largest private bus line voted overwhelmingly tonight to go back to work, ending a two-day revolt against union back-to-work orders.

The vote by drivers for the Third Avenue Transit Corp. marked the end of the biggest surface transportation strike in city history. It had been marked by bitter factional disputes and affected transportation facilities used by 3,500,000 persons.

Drivers of six other private bus lines agreed to return to work earlier today.

Cheers Greet Result

The vote of the Third Avenue drivers was 2014 to 566. Drivers who waited at Transport Hall while the Honest Ballot Association counted the votes greeted the result with cheers.

Some 1200 Third Avenue drivers had voted earlier at a mass meeting to stay off their jobs, but agreed to abide by the result of tonight's secret vote.

The tieup began yesterday as a planned four-hour demonstration of 8500 drivers, but got out of control of union leaders.

Service throughout the city was spotty today as some drivers refused to carry out directions to go back to their jobs issued by Michael Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union. Many of the buses were rolling, however.

At the midafternoon mass meeting, the 1200 drivers were urged three times by a leader of the rank-and-file revolt to resume work. They at first rejected his plea by a huge margin, but eventually voted to accept the secret ballot outcome.

The leader, Austin Hogan, president of the TWU Local 100, told the men bluntly at the mass meeting:

"My analysis of the picture is that you are not going to win this strike due to the sellout and the confusion."

Bronx, Queens Hard Hit

After Quill's back-to-work order, Hogan immediately called a rump meeting and urged the drivers to make it a full-fledged strike.

He told them to seek pensions and additional wage boosts in addition to the retroactive pay that caused the dispute.

Many of the drivers heeded Quill, but others followed Hogan's advice. The subsequent picketing caused many of the companies to pull all their buses off the streets late yesterday.

Today, the affected lines in the Bronx and Queens were largely out of service. Buses, are important in these boroughs as feeders to take passengers to and from subway lines.

Army Garrison Revolts in Peru

Lima, Peru, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Peruvian government announced tonight the army garrison at Arequipa had revolted. The announcement said the revolutionists were headed by Gen. Manuel Odria.

The country has been in a state of unrest for several weeks and the government of President Jose Luis Bustamante Rivero assumed emergency powers yesterday, after students at San Marcos University began a political strike.

British Probe Scandal High In Government

Labor Ministers Are Involved in Bribery Allegations

(From Press Dispatches)

London, Oct. 27.—A government scandal, which may have far-reaching implications, is now under investigation in Britain, it was revealed here today.

After weeks of reports and rumors, the House of Commons today ordered a sweeping probe of alleged bribery and black market activities in which ministers and other officials of the Labor government were reported involved.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee personally made the motion for the investigation. He told the Commons that J. W. Belcher, parliamentary secretary of the Board of Trade, and "other ministers and officials" were involved in the allegations.

Attlee blamed "the activities of a certain alien," whom he did not name, for the scandal.

(On October 7, the World's Press News, of London, carried a story which told the part Britain's press was playing in helping to uncover black market transactions, particularly in paper. The News credited a reporter for the Daily Graphic with getting first facts of "what may prove to be one of the biggest scandal scoops of the century.")

The Commons set up a three-man tribunal to hold an unlimited public inquiry. Attlee said four separate cases would be investigated.

Scotland Yard has been investigating bribery charges for more than six months and a preliminary

End Rivalry, Bradley Asks Armed Forces

(Related Stories and Pictures, Page B-1)

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America's armed forces must end their "dog-eat-dog contests for a part of the taxpayer's dollar," if they want to keep the trust and confidence of the people, Gen. Omar N. Bradley said last night.

The Army Chief of Staff spoke in Des Moines, Iowa, as part of a Nation-wide celebration of Navy Day. His blunt words came as top service chiefs took a day off from next year's budget struggles to commemorate the birthday of the sea service.

More than 150 admirals told of the fleet's readiness to hit back swiftly against an aggressor, stressed the importance of the Navy role in national defense and declared that unification of the armed forces is working.

Air Force leaders joined in the Navy Day observance. Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington belittled the talk of misunderstanding among the "brother" services. He declared there is no basis for talk that the Air Force wants to take over the Navy's carrier planes, but insisted the USAF must control strategic bombing.

Bradley, himself, said that critics have magnified the differences between the armed forces and attributed much of the trouble today to "growing pains." He declared that a "worthwhile start" has been made in unification and expressed confidence that it can work.

But he did not mince words in hitting at the troubles encountered with "generals and admirals blind

France Sees Mines Crisis Now in Hand

Government Announces 'General Tendency' To Return to Work

Paris, Oct. 27 (NYHT.).—The French government announced today that there was "a general tendency to resume work" in the nation's strike-bound coal mines. The official report indicated the government now was satisfied it held the upper hand against the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

As thousands of troops and police continued the clearance of strike-held pits and CGT picket lines dissolved without any new outbreak of violence, some miners were actually returning to work, a government spokesman said. He was Secretary of State Francois Mitterand, authorized to speak for the cabinet.

The CGT was issuing a flurry of statements calling for a land and sea blockade against the importation of foreign coal. The CGT wanted seamen and railwaymen to join its dockers in refusing to han-

1949 Military, Foreign Costs Are Estimated at 25 Billions

New York, Oct. 27.—A forecast that 25 billion dollars will be required to carry out military and foreign obligations in 1949 was made by Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, before the Association of National Advertisers at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight.

Appearing with a panel of three other Post analysts, Mr. Graham pointed out that the total needed by the armed forces, continuance of the Marshall Plan, and a lend-lease program to rearm western European nations would not fall much below that figure.

He stated that the four great problems before the Nation in 1949 would be (1) rearming American forces, (2) continuance of the Marshall Plan, (3) a military lend-lease program for western Europe, and (4) avoidance of economic recessions here at home.

Herbert B. Elliston, editor of The Post, who returned from Paris for the ANA meeting, stated that the weakness of France is the most vital matter facing the leaders planning a Western Union in Europe. Fresh from the scene, Elliston said that it is authority that France needs—authority to tax and collect, authority to curb the high though spotty consumption as Britain has done and export more of the national product to get the means for modernizing plant and making France independent of Marshall aid. If a house cleaning is long delayed, he said, civil commotion is inevitable.

Edward T. Folliard, Post political writer, who has travelled with all political candidates in recent months, said that political writers throughout the country are convinced that Governor Dewey will be elected. He said that a Republican Administration would not bring about any marked change in American foreign policy as Governor Dewey is committed to the Marshall Plan.

Although Mr. Dewey has not come out for western Europe lend-lease, he said, the subject is foremost in the minds of his advisers on foreign affairs. Even a Senate controlled by a Democrat majority would not change our foreign policy, he said.

Ferdinand Kuhn, foreign affairs writer for The Post, who spent the summer in Europe, opened the panel presentation with a review of American-Russian relations since 1945. He contradicted the myth of Russia's far-sighted and brilliant diplomacy and stated that the Soviet has blundered repeatedly.

Among the Russian blunders he cited were (1) declaring war on the Marshall Plan, (2) blockading Berlin, and (3) underestimating the Allied airlift. These blunders, according to Kuhn, resulted in bringing the western European countries together, arousing the whole Western world against Russia, and bringing about America's first peacetime draft.

Kuhn emphasized the present ex-

Surgeon Describes Operation To Build 'Fuel Line' to Heart

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Initial success of a radically new and daring heart operation for coronary thrombosis, forerunner of fatal heart attack, was reported here last night by an eminent heart surgeon.

The operation, which consists of constructing a new "fuel line" to the patient's heart out of a section of vein from his arm, is the climax of 16 years of experimentation with dogs, according to its originator, Dr. Claude S. Beck of Cleveland, Ohio.

First success of such an operation on a human was reported last night by Dr. Beck in a special lecture before assembled physicians at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. The patient, a 52-year-old man who had been incapacitated four years, with excruciating pains of angina pectoris, was pain free and up from his hospital bed on Monday, just four days after last week's operation, Dr. Beck reported.

Admittedly a dangerous operation requiring utmost surgical skill, the new technique is theoretically sound and should event-

West Invites New Effort By Neutrals

No Plans to Take Berlin Issue Out Of Security Council, Communique Says

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Western powers today gave the neutrals on the Security Council — and Russia — an open invitation to make new proposals for settling the Berlin issue.

That appeared to be the primary meaning of a British-French-American announcement which said the three powers are still ready to accept a settlement which would be "guided by the principles embodied" in the six-nation compromise vetoed by Russia Monday.

The Western power announcement was issued after a 70-minute meeting attended by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Leaving It in Council

In a mildly worded and carefully drafted communique, they said they had decided to leave the Berlin issue on the agenda of the United Nations Security Council.

Thus they tacitly reaffirmed their charges the Berlin blockade endangers peace and at the same time made it known that they were not ready yet to take the problem to the General Assembly for judgment by the 58-member countries.

The meeting of the Western Foreign Ministers followed a meeting earlier in the day between Marshall and Bevin at which Bevin formally notified the Secretary of State that the five members of the Western European Union had voted yesterday to ask the United States and Canada to join a North Atlantic defense alliance.

These developments came as:

1. Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler delivered a three-hour speech in the Assembly's 58-member Political Committee, attacking the Greek government, the United States and Western policy in general. The committee rejected 45 to 6, with two abstaining, a Polish motion to invite a representative of Greek guerilla leader Markos Vafiades to participate in U. N. debate on Greece.

2. The Administrative and Budgetary Committee unanimously approved a recommendation that the United States continue paying 39.89 per cent of the U. N.'s estimated $33,469,587 budget for next year. The United States paid on that basis this year but had asked that its share be reduced to one third of the total contributions by members in 1949.

3. The Assembly's subcommittee on arms reductions rejected, six to two, with three abstentions, a Polish compromise proposal for tackling the arms problem. Western delegates argued the Polish proposal was much like a previously defeated Soviet resolution.

Result of Veto

Today's Western power meeting on Berlin grew out of the veto which Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky cast Monday to kill the compromise plan of the six "neutral" Security Council members.

The plan proposed the Big Four powers lift restrictions immediately on communications in and out of Berlin. Simultaneously, the four military governors would have started negotiations toward making the Soviet zone mark Berlin's sole

Raps 'Good Old Joe' Approach

Dewey Calls Truman Fumbler In Foreign Affairs Conduct

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight ridiculed President Truman's conduct of foreign relations and tossed "totalitarian" charges back at the Democrats.

He charged Mr. Truman with unwitting support of the Communist line and leveled this obvious thrust at the President's canceled plan to send Chief Justice Fred Vinson to Moscow.

"The road of easy answer is the road to disaster," he said.

"But of one thing we can be sure: We shall not achieve peace by conducting these desperately important matters on a happy thought basis or by jovially remarking that we like good old Joe."

In Cleveland tonight, as in Salt Lake City last month, he spelled out his own pledge to work untiringly for peace with other like-minded governments throughout the United Nations but never to buy peace by appeasement.

America, he repeated, "will not be bullied."

But on the question of a North Atlantic Security Alliance, now being pressed in Paris by Foreign Ministers of the five Western Union states, Governor Dewey made no commitments.

He strongly supported the idea of a western European federation however, and promised help without specifying either military or direct United States participation.

"We shall work with them to bring an end to a dangerous disunity and bring about the unity from which flows strength," was the way he put it.

"We must speed the day when, by helping them forward, they can stand on their own feet."

There was one interesting departure from his Salt Lake City Western Union pledge. In Salt Lake he spoke of using European recovery funds as a prod to bring the west Europe nations together, a suggestion that did not sit well with some of the governments involved. Tonight he made no mention of using ERP as an inducement.

A 5 p. m. crowd of 75,000 lined Cleveland's streets as Dewey, accompanied by a brass band on a float, motored from the Cleveland terminal to the Carter Hotel.

More than 15,000 piled into the big hall where Alf Landon was nominated in 1936 and Calvin Coolidge in 1924. Dewey outdrew Truman in this normally Demo-

Locomotive Engineers Chief Supports Dewey

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Alvanley Johnston, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, tonight announced his support of GOP presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey.

"The constructive campaign which Governor Dewey has waged, in which he has been mindful of the crying need for national unity, of the important place labor unions have in a free society, and of the prayerful hopes of our people, makes him the man of this fateful hour for America," Johnston said in a statement.

It was a notable break for Dewey in view of recent reaction to his having termed "a lunatic" an engineer who had backed the Dewey train into a crowd.

Britain May Ask Sanctions Against Israel

Announcement Follows Jew's Rejection of U. N. Order on Negev

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP). — Britain threatened tonight to raise the question of sanctions after Israel rejected a U. N. order to withdraw from newly won positions in the Negev.

Israel said a Security Council order for a cease-fire in the Negev provided only for negotiations on a withdrawal and was not an order.

A British spokesman said Britain may offer a resolution to the Security Council Thursday, when Dr. Ralph Bunche, U. N. mediator, submits Israel's reply to the Council. Britain may ask that a special commission be set up to study details of applying Chapter 7 of the U. N. Charter, if necessary.

This chapter permits military action or other sanctions after the Council has investigated.

"The authority of the Security Council is at stake," the spokesman declared.

Israeli Groups Must Cut Off Beards

Tel Aviv, Oct. 27 (NYHT).—Jewish army general headquarters issued an order today that Israeli troops must cut off their beards by November 1. The only exceptions are soldiers in mourning and those who in pre-army days maintained permanent facial adornments.

The order will probably necessitate the widest shaving spree in any army's history. The beard has become a popular means of identification for battle troops, particularly those in the south.

The order was unquestionably prompted as in the American Army during the World War for reasons of personal sanitation.

Texas Ballots Ordered Held In Vote Probe

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A Senate Elections Subcommittee yesterday announced that it had ordered Democratic primary ballots in 13 Texas counties locked up pending an inquiry into fraud charges both by Representative Lyndon Johnson, successful contender for the Democratic nomination, and by his defeated opponent, former Gov. Coke Stevenson.

On the House side the special committee to investigate campaign expenditures announced that hearings would be held in Detroit Thursday on charges by Representative Harold F. Youngblood (R., Mich.) that postmasters had been forced to make "kickbacks" into funds for the general election.

The House group announced it had investigators in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Tennessee and Rhode Island. Attention of the House investigators is centered upon the expenditure of funds in the general election, not the primary.

The Senate subcommittee said it had investigators in West Virginia and Oklahoma as well as Texas. Request for an inquiry had been received from two other States, the committee staff said. These were believed to be Rhode Island and Tennessee.

Chairman William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) of the Senate group said election records had been destroyed in two Texas counties before committee investigators could subpena them.

Jenner said he had received sworn charges of the "probable existence" of fraud in eight counties from Representative Johnson. The committee previously had received complaints of fraud in five other counties from Stevenson.

Johnson asked the committee to seize ballots throughout the State,

Plants' Removal Suspended

ECA Halts Its Flow of Gifts To Loan-Shy EuropeanNations

By The Associated Press

The United States yesterday halted most, of its remaining program of Marshall Plan gifts to Europe until nine European countries sign up for repayable loans.

This pressure move came simultaneously with a State Department announcement that France and Britain have agreed with the United States, at this country's request, to suspend the removal of about 300 industrial plants from western Germany as war reparations.

The Economic Cooperation Administration took the first action and instigated the second. Both were interpreted as efforts to shape the European recovery effort on lines deemed by this country to be most effective.

Both, also, are temporary.

The dismantling of the German plants will continue. Acting Secretary of State Lovett told a news conference. But it will be done in such a way, he said, that any plant can be reassembled after ECA picks out those which it believes would best serve overall European recovery by being kept in Germany.

ECA's shut-down on dollar gifts may not last two weeks, a spokesman suggested, if the European powers sign promptly more than 500 million dollars in loan agreements now pending. England and Iceland are not affected; they have signed.

The suspension was an obvious effort to jell the other loan negotiations. Congress ordered that 20 per cent of the Marshall Plan funds be in the form of direct loans for specific recovery projects.

This amounts to one billion dollars out of the roughly five billion dollars appropriated for first-year European recovery. Thus far only $312,300,000 has been loaned in more than nine months, while the

GOP Victory Would Be Aid to Reds, Truman Says

Calls Infiltration Charges Against His Own Administration Malicious Lies

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Boston, Oct. 27.—President Truman tonight labeled as "malicious falsehoods" Republican charges that Communist infiltration threatened the Government and said the real Red menace lay in the Republican Party itself.

"I hate communism," he told a crowd in Mechanics Hall. "I deplore what it does to the dignity and freedom of the individual. I detest the Godless creed it teaches."

Citing his own efforts to combat world communism, culminating in the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan, the President said the Communists "will never forgive me for that." And he warned that a Republican victory November 2 would be a step toward communism and repeated his charges of preelection collusion between Communists and Republicans.

Lists 'Threats'

"Communism thrives on misery," he said. "Human suffering nourishes the Communist menace. That menace withers away where there is prosperity and justice and tolerance."

Therefore, he declared, the real threat of Communism lies in and grows out of these things:

"The danger of another major depression . . . in widespread unemployment and arrogant injustice, such as we had in 1932.

"The Republican politics of the Eightieth Congress—policies which threaten to put an end to American prosperity.

"The submission of the Republican Party to the dictates of big business, and its determination to destroy the hard-won rights of American labor."

Reaffirms Berlin Stand

And the alternative:

"You can fight communism with a clear-cut vote to defeat Republican reaction.

"Reactionary Republican policies invited communism in 1932. We were saved then, but we cannot afford to take the risk again."

In heavily Democratic and Catholic Boston, Mr. Truman turned back to the campaign of Alfred E. Smith, just 20 years ago, for examples of the forces of intolerance he said his Republican opponents were mustering against him now. That campaign, he said, was "one of the most shameful . . . in our history," with a "vile whispering campaign spearheaded by the Ku Klux Klan" and aimed at Smith because of his Catholic faith.

Republican leaders then, he said, "served notice on America" that they "would stop at nothing in order to gain power." And he warned:

"Don't think that the elephant has changed his habits in the last 20 years. It's not that kind of animal."

The President reaffirmed his policy of standing firm against Soviet pressure in Berlin and western Germany. He gave renewed assurance that the western zone of Berlin would be fed despite the Russian blockade and that "the people of Germany will be given a chance to work out a decent life under a democratic government.

It seemed that most of Boston's population had turned out to cheer

Knutson Mistaken In Vote Against ERP, He Says

Collegeville, Minn., Oct. 27 (AP).—Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) said here last night that his vote against the Marshall Plan was a mistake.

He made the statement in answer to a question after making a speech in his campaign for reelection from Minnesota's Sixth Congressional District. He spoke before the Social Science Club at St. John's University.

"I voted against the Marshall Plan," said Knutson, "because I thought it would be another UNRRA, which was a complete flop and very corrupt.

"In view of the record of the Marshall Plan I would vote to extend it and for such money as may be needed.

"The Marshall Plan is now our only means of checking the spread of communism in Europe. After January we will have more weapons."

Mike Quill Takes His Turn Crying 'Red'! Others Yelled It at Him Not Long Ago

The wildcat walkout of New York City bus drivers is a pain-in-the-feet to commuters, but it's a pain-in-the-neck to Mike Quill, peppery president of the Transport Workers Union (CIO).

"Red Mike"—so-called because of his flaming hair, or what's left of it, rather than because of ideological leanings—hadn't planned the strike. He'd called for a demonstration to support a proposed bus fare hike, which, in turn, would permit a pay increase.

Mike ordered the 8000 bus employes back to their jobs, but a large faction rebelled and stayed out.

"It's a Red plot," cried Mike, meaning not the redheads but the Commies in his union. And sure 'tis a strange cry from the likes of Mike. Why, he used to be called a Commie himself. And he used to be right comradely with the boys he now damns as Reds. Right up to last April, that was.

MIKE QUILL

Helped Form Union

Eight years after emigrating from Ireland,—arriving in New York City on St. Patrick's Day, to be sure—Michael Joseph Quill helped form what is now the Transport Workers Union. That was in 1934.

Mike was then a subway gateman. He'd reached this position after laboring with a pick, shoveling coal, and selling religious art. Bis Bible-flavored earthy language, his spell-binding vehemence, delivered in a County Kerry brogue, endeared Mike to the "salt-water" Irish, who make up the bulk of the union's membership in New York. By 1935, at the age of 30, burly Mike became their leader.

He built the TWU into an international union with 100,000 members in 25 locals. Approximately half the members belong to Local 100, which contains New York City's subway, elevated, and bus workers.

Quill consistently followed the Commie line, even when it twisted around like a corkscrew, but the predominantly Catholic rank-and-file didn't complain because Mike was getting them better conditions and more pay.

Then, too, Mike never missed a chance, publicly and defiantly, to twist the British Lion's tail. All the Quills had fought for a free Ireland, and Mike had carried a rifle at 14. He is supposed to have been hit in the hip by a Black and Tan bullet. A portrait of James Connolly, the Irish revolutionary, hangs on the wall of Mike's office.

Mike never lost the greenness of the Emerald Isle. He's visited Eire several times, and on one such trip married blonde Maria Theresa O'Neill. Their son's named John Daniel after Mike's father.

Shows Fiery Temper

A warm-hearted fellow with a natural sense of humor when he's relaxed, Mike also possesses a fiery temper, which has made him a stormy petrel in the CIO, before congressional committees, and in the New York City Council, to which he was elected on the American Labor Party ticket.

Last April Mike broke with the party line. He quit as president of the New York CIO Council when it took a position contrary to the national CIO leadership, which supported the Marshall Plan and opposed Henry Wallace. Mike's public reason for the switch was that he was for CIO unity.

Labor observers say Quill was no doubt thinking of those other factors: that the party line opposed a boost in New York City fares, which Mike believed necessary to obtain a pay hike for the transport workers; that the Marshall Plan promised aid to Ireland; that the wind of public and union opinion was blowing to the right.

After the break, Quill found himself head of a house divided. His TWU international executive committee still stuck to the party line and sought to nullify every Quill move. The powerful Local 100, however, disowned its own leftist president, Austin Hogan, and followed Mike.

The TWU meets in Chicago early next month for a convention that will determine the future course of the union. It's believed by neutral observers that Mike will come out on top. Whether he does or not, the convention is sure to be a Donnybrook Fair.

British Trades Union May Quit WFTU

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—The long quarrel between Communist and non-Communist European labor leaders came to a head today.

The general council of the powerful British Trades Union Congress, representing eight million workers in 180 unions, announced it is going to withdraw from the World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU) "if it does not suspend its activities."

The WFTU is composed of unions of Russia, eastern and western European countries and the CIO of America. It has a total membership of between 70 and 80 million.

Arthur Deakin, a member of the Trades Union Congress (TUC) and president of the WFTU, said the move may lead to setting up a western rival to the WFTU within a year or so.

Suspension of WFTU's activities would close its Paris headquarters, where it has a staff of about 60 persons, disband its Communist-tinged executive bureau, cut all its ties with affiliated national unions and halt all its propaganda publications.

WFTU Cleavage Extends to Staff

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP).—Walter Schevenels, assistant secretary-general of the World Federation of Trade Unions, said today British labor's demand for suspension of WFTU activities is something that "can't be done."

Officials said the cleavage in the WFTU extends through its staff. Louis Saillant of France, the secretary-general, follows the Communist line. He is supported by his Russian assistant, Michael Faline. His two other assistants, Schevenels, a Belgian, and Elmer Cope of the CIO of America, usually oppose him.

get to work in orderly fashion, although some were delayed.

The big demonstration yesterday was ordered by Quill, who is a city council member, to bring pressure on the State Public Service Commission.

The commission now is considering applications for permanent higher fares, which some of the bus firms contend they must have to make the retroactive wage payments.

It was indicated it will not be rushed in dealing with the applications. The PSC announced late in the day it would resume hearings on applications of four of the companies November 8.

The retroactive payments average about $300 a driver and total about five million dollars.

25 Are Cited by Court In Celanese Picketing

Rome, Ga., Oct. 27 (AP).—Judge H. E. Nichols today moved to enforce his ban on mass picketing at the strike-bound Celanese Corp., plant by citing 25 labor union men for contempt of court.

The action by the Superior Court judge came after striking members of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), more than 1500 strong, gathered for the second day before the plant's gates.

Judge Nichols' injunction against mass picketing was issued Monday after the company had announced a back-to-work movement in letters to all striking employes.

The strike began 74 days ago as the result of a wage dispute.

All the union members were ordered to answer the contempt citations at 10 a. m., Saturday, which is also the time set by Judge Nichols for a hearing on whether to make the injunction against mass picketing permanent.

Those summoned included Joe D. Pedigo, international representative of the TWUA; C. L. Ross, financial secretary of Local 689, and 23 rank-and-file members.

CIO Expected to Quit World Union Federation

By the United Press

Labor leaders predicted yesterday that the CIO will follow British labor out of the World Federation of Trade Unions and that the WFTU will collapse and be replaced by a non-Communist organization.

The CIO will make its decision at its Portland, Oreg., convention next month, President Philip Murray announced.

Britain Probes High Scandal

report already has been submitted to the government.

It was reported originally the inquiry centered around the granting of export-import licenses.

Attlee listed the four specific cases to be probed as:

1. Charges that high officials had been offered or received bribes "in respect to the withdrawal of prosecution against a certain firm of football pool promoters in respect to the allocation of paper to the same firm."

2. "Suggestions that a license to import amusement machinery could be obtained by bribing ministers or government officials."

3. "Similar allegations relating to flotation of a public company" to operate football pools.

4. Bribery charges in connection with applications for building licenses.

Winston Churchhill said the Conservatives approved Attlee's motion wholeheartedly.

"There is no doubt that this House of Commons has shown itself most vigilant in matters affecting the honor of members or ministers," Churchill said.

Attlee, in presenting the motion, said the tribunal should investigate whether payments or rewards "have been sought, offered, promised, made or received by or to ministers of the Crown or other public servants."

Steel Nationalization Bill Is Presented

London, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A bill to nationalize Britain's $1,400,000,000 iron and steel industry was presented to the House of Commons today amid cheers from the Labor benches.

The bill will be published Friday, when its details will be disclosed. It probably will be debated early next week.

Socialist Ivor Thomas, who resigned from the Labor Party yesterday because of the bill, flayed the government for what he called a "wanton and reckless act." Thomas said that now, when grave issues abroad called for rearmament, was not the time to change managements and possibly tie up the steel industry.

Thomas charged that some Laborites were "toying with still wilder schemes" such as land nationalization. He called these planners "people who are planning a land fit for zeroes to live in."

"You're a dirty dog," Laborite H. B. W. Morgan shouted at Thomas.

"Is it in oroder for a member to call another member a dirty dog?" Winston Churchill asked.

The speaker ruled it was not. Morgan withdrew the remark.

istence of a real machinery for making American foreign policy, with a planning staff thinking years ahead. He contrasted this with the day when "President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins carried our foreign policy in their hats."

A feature of The Washington Post presentation was a huge electrical map of Europe, Zoned Berlin and Germany, and the Far East. As the speakers mentioned various countries, these were illuminated for the audience.

Lewis Urges Truman to Halt 'Shooting of French Miners'

By The Associated Press

John L. Lewis proposed yesterday that President Truman use his control of the "money bags of the Marshall Plan" to end the "shooting of French coal miners who are hungry."

AFL President William Green, in Minneapolis, said he is "rather sympathetic" to Lewis' suggestion.

There was no immediate response from the White House.

Lewis, who has urged his United Mine Workers to vote against Mr. Truman in the November 2 election, made his proposal in a letter to Green. The UMW leader said he assumed Green had the ear of the President and asked Green to use his influence toward getting Mr. Truman to intervene in the French labor crisis.

Green commented:

"We could not and would not approve use of any help or funds provided for by the Marshall Plan to break a strike of mine workers in France."

But he said he wanted more information on United States aid to France before acting on Lewis' proposal.

Addressing Green as "one miner to another," Lewis declared:

"Truman could aid humanity and perhaps do himself a good turn by using some of the vast power in his hands in the control of the Marshall fund by requiring the French government to abandon its police state methods and cease making war on its own citizens who are coal miners, at the expense of the American taxpayers."

Reminding Green that both are anticommunistic, Lewis continued:

"Each of us knows that oppression and hunger beget communism. Each of us knows that freedom and fair treatment are the only antidote to communism.

"What the French miners need is more pay wherewith to buy more food, accompanied by decent recognition. They could then be relied upon to overthrow any present Communist leadership or infiltration.

"The future of France will be dark indeed in every economic, social, and political sense if American money, American guns and American bullets are to be used to shoot, starve and oppress French citizens, while the bureaucrats and the financially powerful in France subsist on American resources and deny the human element of the population any participation in the largesse of the Marshall Plan.

"To a normal thinking individual it is nauseous to witness the shooting of coal miners because they are hungry," he wrote.

Lewis has been outspokenly pessimistic about the success of the Marshall Plan in combatting communism in Europe.

"The moment you stop paying them they will do what they want to anyway," he told the recent miners' convention in connection with efforts to influence Western Europeans.

Soviet Zone Policy Shift Thought Near

Lovett Hints Split View On Palestine

By the United Press

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett yesterday made it clear that President Truman's latest statement of Administration policy on Palestine was drafted at the White House, not at the State Dement.

In addition, he declined at a press conference to say whether he considers Mr. Truman's policy consistent with the stand taken by Secretary of State George C. Marshall at the United Nations meeting in Paris.

The politically potent Palestine issue touched off a Republican-Democratic preelection slugfest. The dispute dates back to last week, when Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey announced his support of the original United Nations plan for partitioning the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states.

Plan Assailed By Jews

Marshall had previously told the U. N. that the United States indorses the modified partition plan proposed by the slain mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte. The Bernadotte plan has been bitterly criticized by the Jews.

President Truman on Sunday night issued a statement saying that he also favors the original U.N. partition plan. He assured the Jews he would oppose any changes in the plan that were not acceptable to them, and accused Dewey of playing politiss with a foreign policy matter that should be nonpartisan.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) replied Tuesday that Mr. Truman's statement amounted to his "fifth reversal" on Palestine policy.

Lovett was asked whether he consulted with Mr. Truman on the drafting of the policy statement. He replied that he was told Sunday afternoon that the statement was being released by the White House.

Declines "To Buy Bait"

When a reporter pressed him with questions about the hour at which the State Department was notified, he rejoined that he was not going to buy any more bait.

In reply to a specific question whether he regarded the President's statement as being in conflict with Marshall's stand, Lovett said he would not bite on that question because it involved a presidential statement.

In a final report to draw the Acting Secretary out, reporters pointed out that While House aides had asserted that the State Department "had not only been notified but approved" the Palestine statement.

Lovett said he had no comment.

Frankfurt, Oct. 27 (NYHT).—Leaders and key officials of all political parties in the Soviet zone have been invited to attend a special conference in Moscow—a move that may publicly mark a drastic revision in Russian occupation policy.

Helmut Kulz, refugee Minister of Justice from Thuringia, who disclosed the proposed meeting today, said the special invitation has caused a wave of uneasiness to sweep the ranks of non-Communist parties in the Soviet zone. Kulz pointed out this tends to confirm other reports the Russians may soon announce withdrawal of their troops from Germany.

Anti-Russian feeling in eastern Germany, due to stripping of the country and police control, has brought Soviet prestige to a new low, Kulz said. For this reason, he feels that rather than lose the friendship and sympathy of even their Communist friends, the Russians may decide to pull out of the occupation.

Kulz's belief that a change in Soviet occupation policy may be imminent is supported by the report of the directorate of the German economic commission. The economic boss of the Soviet zone, is being advised to bring in more non-Communist Germans. It also is reported certain Soviet stock companies, which hold 70 per cent of the industrial capacity of the Soviet zone, will be gradually given back to the German civil administration.

Russians File Protest On Corridor 'Violations'

Berlin (Thursday), Oct. 28 (AP).—Russian rejection of the four-power agreement on air safety rules for Germany was followed up today with a new protest to the Western powers.

A United States spokesman has already denounced as "asinine double talk" the Soviet contention that there are no four-power air safety regulations.

SNB, the official Soviet news agency in Germany, today said the Russians had protested to the Western powers against violations of "air discipline" in the airlift corridors linking Berlin with western Germany.

Lieut. Gen. G. S. Lukjantschenko, chief of staff for the Soviet military administration in Germany, addressed a letter to his American and British counterparts saying violations of "air discipline" were endangering Soviet and other planes

The Russian view is that the four-power agreement on air safety regulations is invalid because it was not confirmed by the Allied Control Council.

Lieut. Col. Beverley E. Steadham, chief of the military government's Air Forces branch, said the regulations were agreed to by the Russians, who not only signed them but participated in the entire negotiations leading to their adoption.

Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor, said today he saw "no war in Europe for the next few months." Beyond that, he told a news conference, he did not care to predict.

[The Russians are arming some German police units in their occupation zone with mortars, machine guns and armored cars, General Robertson said, according to the United Press.

[Robertson said the force was taking on a "distinctly military" character. He estimated the force to number 200,000 to 400,000 men.

[Commenting on Russian proposals that all Allied occupation forces withdraw from Germany, Robertson said this might be a solution for the Berlin situation at least He emphasized that this was simply his personal opinion and that any withdrawal must be subject to certain specified conditions.]

was called on the complaint of Egypt that Israel has been violating the cease-fire order of October 19.

Some sources considered the Council's order for a cease-fire ambigious. The order declared that "after the cease-fire the following condition might well be considered as basic for negotiations. It then mentioned withdrawal of forces to the positions occupied before the Jews' October 14 offensive began.

Israel's reply cited this passage and told Bunche it was not "an absolute injunction as you have assumed."

Haganah Chief Says Egyptian Invaders Crushed

Tel Aviv, Israel, Oct. 27 (AP).—Egyptian offensive power in Palestine has been crushed by Israel's October 14-21 offensive in the Negev desert, Haganah's military chief declared today.

Col. Yigal Yadin, chief of operations of Israel's forces, said the campaign, dubbed "Ten Plagues," destroyed the whole of the first line Egyptian air forces in Palestine, sank the Egyptian navy's flagship and either destroyed or bottled up all the best combat troops.

He said 1500 to 2000 Egyptians were killed and captured and together with other troops now pocketed constituted more than one third of the original force of 25,000 to 30,000 men.

Paraguay Toll Rises to Nine

Asuncion, Paraguay, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Four wounded military school cadets died today which increased the death toll of Monday's abortion revolt to nine.

Five cadets were killed during an 18-hour battle. Forty-seven wounded were at the military hospital, including cadets, security police, sailors, cavalrymen and some civilians. An undetermined number of wounded were in a private clinic.

President Natalicio Gonzalez inspected the shell-torn central police headquarters today. It received artillery and mortar shells from the rebel-held military school across Independence Square.

Col. Carlos Motanaro, head of the military school, commanded the rebel forces.

U. S. Accused By Romanian

Bucharest, Romania, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A defendant who went on trial today accused of plotting to overthrow the government testified that United States officials in Romania offered money, diplomatic support and "military instructors if necessary" to the plotters.

The 15,000-word indictment in the case named five Americans and three Britons as maintaining relations with the defendants.

They are Henry P. Leverich, counselor of the American Legation; Col. John R. Lovell, military attache, and Donald A. Dunham, Robert D. Shea and C. Vaughn Ferguson, jr., secretaries; Charles Robertson, British consul; William Watson, British commercial attache, and Col. Bill Robertson, military attache.

Alexander Pop, an engineer, first defendant to testify, said Romanian industrialist Max Ausnet talked with the Americans and got a promise of aid. Ausnet is being tried in absentia.

He told the court the United States representatives offered Ausnet funds, support for diplomatic maneuvers and "if necessary, the United States would send military instructors."

Hoffman Sees Recovery as Being on Way

London, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Paul G. Hoffman, Marshall Plan Administrator, said today European "recovery" is on the way.

Concluding a tour of Europe, Hoffman said at a press conference before he took off by plane for New York that he saw two favorable signs for peace:

1—"I am going back to the United States persuaded that European recovery is on the way, and that European cooperation is becoming a reality."

2—If the free nations of the west remain united, "there is great hope that we can turn these troubled times into a peace that will be just and enduring."

Hoffman said that the only country which might dare to march against others was Russia, but that Russia in any clash would face overwhelming odds.

Eligible If They Sign

As each of the nine countries affected—France, Italy, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Ireland, the Netherlands and Turkey—takes its loan, it will immediately become eligible again for the outright grants.

The curb on the removal of German plants was announced by Lovett as a "compromise." This country originally wanted dismantling halted completely. Both France and England were reluctant, and France especially so.

Reports from Europe indicated French fears of a resurgence of German industrial power and a belief that European recovery could as well be served by operating the plants in France itself as by leaving them in the French occupation zone.

Pact Sought By Yugoslavs

Moscow, Oct. 27 (AP).—Russian and Yugoslav trade experts began exploratory talks today on a new trade agreement between the two countries.

The Yugoslav delegation, headed by Foreign Trade Minister M. Popovich, arrived yesterday.

This is the first official Yugoslav mission to visit Moscow since the Communist Information Bureau (Cominform) denounced Marshal Tito's government several months ago.

The Yugoslav delegation was welcomed at the airport by high Soviet officials. The Moscow press prominently displayed reports of the arrival but offered no comment.

A Yugoslav spokesman said he would be "very much surprised" if the two countries were not able to work out a mutually beneficial agreement.

13 Nazi War Chiefs Cleared Of Aggression

Nuernberg, Germany, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—An American war crimes court today cleared 13 top German war leaders of all criminal responsibility for plotting Hitler's wars of aggression.

Two defendants, Field Marshal Georg von Kuechler, 67, commander of the Nazi armies which invaded the Low Countries, and Gen. Hermann Hoth, 63, corps commander in Poland and Holland, were found guilty of war crimes against enemy civilians and soldiers.

Field Marshal Wilhelm von Leeb, 72, who led German armies into Russia, was convicted of crimes against the Soviet civilian population. He was cleared of crimes against Russian soldiers.

The three-man tribunal judging the three former field marshals, nine generals and one admiral acquitted former Field Marshal Hugo Sperrle, 72, of all charges. He commanded the Condor Legion, which served in Spain, and also the air blitz against London.

Leeb was one of Hitler's top advisers in the early part of the war. He will be sentenced Thursday.

In finding the militarists innocent of the crime of aggression, the court decreed that they had only followed orders as "instruments" of top Nazis.

They were labeled "morally reprimandable," however, for failing to challenge their orders.

The opinion pointed out that 63 nations, including Germany, had signed the Kellogg-Briand pact of renouncing war as an instrument of national policy.

"It is therefore aggressive war that is renounced by the pact," the court decreed. "It is aggressive war that is criminal under international law.

"Those who commit the crime are those who participate at the policy level in planning, preparing or in initiating war.

"After the war is initiated and being waged," the court continued, "the policy question involved becomes one of extending, continuing or discontinuing the war. The crime at this stage, likewise, must be committed at the policy-making level.

"The acts of commanders and staff officers below the policy level in preparing campaigns, preparing means for carrying them out, moving against a country on orders and fighting the war after it has been instituted do not constitute . . . the initiation of invasion that international law denounces as criminal."

Danes Cancel Concessions To U. S. Firm

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Danish government announced today that prospecting and mining concessions given to American interests in 1936 no longer can be considered valid.

Minister of Public Works Carl Petersen told a news conference government experts have reported the government was tricked into granting the concessions.

In November, 1936, an American engineer showed government officials a lump of salt which he said he had dug up near Harte, Jutland. He claimed this proved the existence of riches and thus, Petersen said, "fraudulently obtained a concession from the government granting rights for American interests to prospect and mine raw materials."

Petersen said government experts proved the salt lump had been faked.

Petersen said the government now feels free to declare the concession null and void.

In 1938 the American company—the Danish-American Prospecting Co.—was taken over by Gulf Oil. After the war, this company continued the work the founder began. Since 1945 salt has been found at several places in Denmark, but as yet no oil fields, which is what the Americans are looking for.

The Danish-American Prospecting Co. later said the company has had no reason to doubt the validity of the concession.

The company said Gulf Oil has spent five million dollars on prospecting in Denmark, concluding: "We consider it unwise and regrettable if unnecessary unrest about an old story should harm the good relations between the government and this company."

Petersen said the government is willing to continue cooperation with the Americans if a new agreement can be negotiated.

dle imported fuel. There was one definite rejection of this plea by the Bordeaux stevedores. They stopped unloading an American ship's coal for two hours, then went back on the job.

Ten colliers, however, were tied up at Rouen, where the CGT water front men were in control. There were a few other coal-laden vessels in other ports similarly strike-bound and most of them were American.

[The Associated Press said the number was 22.]

But the government reportedly was considering using troops to unload the coal carriers as they have been used to clear the mines.

Reporting on today's meeting of Premier Henri Queville and his ministers, Mitterand indicated the government was satisfied public opinion was behind it and that the time had come to get tough with the CGT. The cabinet spokesman said this might even go to the point of regarding the CGT as unqualified to represent French labor.

Mitterand said the government intended to end the coal strike by negotiations with the trade unions, but "notably the trade union organizations that have guarded, in this period of crisis, a Republican and patriotic attitude."

Mitterand's openly directed slap at the CGT had cabinet approval, and comes from the government's new feelings of self-confidence and from the official conviction that the CGT has been fomenting the coal strike under orders from the Cominform.

Revolt Slumps As Korea Reds Lose Port City

Seoul, Oct. 27 (AP).—The government's capture of the south port of Yosu today appeared to have broken the back of a Communist-led revolt one week after it erupted.

Bands of rebels still held out in the hills, but the loss of Yosu robbed them of a rallying point. It was at Yosu that an army mutiny October 20 touched off the revolt.

A Korean air observer reported one fourth of Yosu, a city of 70,000, destroyed by fire.

Loyalist troops also recaptured Kurye, about 20 miles north of liberated Sunchon. Sunchon was the second city taken during the revolt.

China to Ask That U. S. Keep Troops in Korea

Paris, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—China will propose the United Nations call on the United States to keep her troops in South Korea until the Communist threat there is overcome, it was learned today.

The resolution, scheduled to be introduced in the U. N. Political Security Committee with full American backing, would, in effect, approve an American occupation of South Korea of indefinite length.

currency. Then, a Big Four Foreign Ministers conference would have been convoked some time before the end of next month to discuss the whole German problem.

The Western communique said the United States, Britain and France are ready to fulfill their obligations and to discharge their responsibilities as members of the Security Council "which is still in a position to consider any development in the situation."

There was no official indication of what "any development" might include. Informed speculation, however, followed these two main lines of thought: First—that the three powers have left the door open for a neutral nation or group of nations to initiate mediation efforts; second—that Russia herself, tired of having to justify the blockade, might ease the situation by figuring out a settlement formula of her own.

In addition to their discussions on Berlin, the three Western Ministers had before them the Palestine and Greek problems, a French spokesman said. No details were available, however, on the Ministers' conclusions—if any—on these issues.

Greek Army In Shake-up

Athens, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Greek high command was authoritatively reported today to have ordered a shake-up in the leadership of army units which lost two important heights to Communist rebels in the Mount Vitsi area last week.

A reliable source said Lieut. Gen. Nicholas Papanicolaou, commander of the Second Division, is being replaced by Brig. Nicholas Papadopoulos, commander of the Greek Third Mountain Brigade.

Several other new officers also have been assigned the division, an informant said:.

The Supreme Defense Council will meet Saturday to discuss the possibility of naming a commander in chief for the army.

Reds Exposed to Chiang Blow

Nanking, Oct. 27 (AP).—Competent military sources said today Chiang Kai-shek's armies have "a golden opportunity" to crush 60,000 Communist troops in the Manchurian corridor with a pulverizing blow.

Four columns of the best Red troops in Manchuria now are in their newly-captured city of Chinhsien with superior government forces on both the north and south, these observers report.

Gen. Lin Piao, commander of Communist troops in Manchuria, apparently has let some of his crack forces be maneuvered into the same position in which disaster overtook the government at Chinhsien.

There was no indication, at least in Nanking, that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has been able to prod his northern generals into a determined effort to close the nutcracker on Chinhsien.

(Progovernment reports in Peiping said, however, a "major battle is brewing between Chinhsien and Mukden" with the government position depending on the outcome. This hinted that the government may have decided to strike.

(One risk is that Mukden itself may be attacked by strong Communist forces moving down from Changchun. Some of these units were reported already testing the defenses of Tiehling, only 40 miles northeast of Mukden.)

Draftees' 'Morals' Committee Picked

President Truman yesterday appointed a nine-member committee to look out for the "religious and moral welfare" of youths who enlist or are drafted into the peacetime armed services.

Expanding a plan announced shortly after the selective service system was revived, he asked the committee to advise the armed forces on recreational programs as well as "character guidance" for men in uniform.

Frank L. Weil, New York, president of the National Jewish Welfare Board and a leader of the Boy Scouts of America, was named chairman.

Members of Committee

Members are Basil O'Connor, president of the Red Cross; the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, Georgetown University, Washington; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Protestant clergyman who heads the Interdenominational Chapel of the Four Chaplains in Philadelphia; Truman Gibson, Chicago attorney; Mrs. Ferdinand Powell, sr., civic leader of Johnson City, Tenn.; Miss Dorothy Enderis, Milwaukee educator; Mark A. McCloskey, member of the New York City Board of Education, and Dr. Lindsley F. Kimball, president of the United Service Organization, Inc. (USO).

Appointment of the committee was seen as a move to reassure parents that their sons will not be exposed to conditions of immorality if they are inducted.

Coordinating Functions

White House spokesmen said the committee will be expected to make the greatest possible use of "the already established activities" in its field.

It will coordinate the activities sponsored directly by the armed forces and those undertaken by individual communities.

Communities will be invited to begin planning now for the resumption of social welfare and religious activities organized during the war for the special benefit of servicemen, the White House said.

Such action, Mr. Truman said, will "enhance the military preparedness and security of the Nation." He added that spiritual and moral health of members of the armed forces is a "bedrock" factor in true strength.

Jail Liberty to Find 'Sitter'

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (AP).—Two mothers who refused to answer questions of a Federal grand jury investigating communism were allowed to remain at liberty today until they can get baby sitters. However, eight other witnesses, already in jail, failed in attempts to be released.

While the case was argued in United States District Court, demonstrators, estimated by police at more than 1000, picketed the Federal building chanting "Release the 10 on bail."

Attorneys for the 10 argued they should be released pending an appeal of Federal Judge Peirson M. Hall's decision they be held in custody of the United States Attorney General until they are willing to answer questions.

Max Goldschein, Special Assistant Attorney General from Washington, told reporters the inquiry deals mainly with Communist activity as it may relate to Federal employes.

Judge Hall said that because they have small children, he would allow Mrs. Miriam Brooks Sherman and Mrs. Dorothy B. Forest to stay out of jail until 6 p. m. Monday.

As to keeping the witnesses in jail, Judge Hall said:

"These 10 carry the key to the jail in their pockets. This is civil contempt and they may obtain their release at any time by agreeing to answer the questions. They are not in jail for any definite time."

Their attorneys filed a petition today asking their release on the basis of a ruling by United States Supreme Court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge yesterday. The associate justice held that three witnesses in a similar case in Denver must be released on $1000 bail each pending appeal. Judge Hall said the Denver case was different in that it was a criminal case whereas this is civil.

Former U. S. Employe Is Indicted on Coast

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted Rafael Lagos Baraona, charging he made false representations when he was employed by the United States Department of Agriculture in 1947.

The indictment, returned to Federal Judge George Harris, accuses Baraona of willfully and falsely answering "no" to the question whether he advocated overthrow of the Government by force or violence, or ever had belonged to an organization advocating such a course.

Carhop's Hair-do Led to Slaying

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. ELIZABETH FERRERI, a Los Angeles carhop who said she earned $100 a week at a drive-in restaurant, told police yesterday that she killed her husband in self-defense in an argument over her permanent wave. When Jerome Ferreri, former distance runner with a long police record, came home to find she had a new hair-do, he cornered her in a pantry and threatened to kill her with a poker, Mrs. Ferreri told police. Ferreri was shot three times and his head was split with a meat cleaver. Mrs. Ferreri's boarder, Allan Adron, 51, a former mental patient, is also held in the slaying.

Pacific Gale Perils Tanker

Juneau, Alaska, Oct. 27 (U.P.)—The tanker Mission Santa Cruz, with 34 sailors aboard, wallowed helplessly in a North Pacific gale today with a disabled engine as a Coast Guard cutter reached her side and attempted to get a line aboard to tow her to safety.

Alerted by a distress signal flashed shortly after midnight this morning the Coast Guard's Unalaga sped 80 miles at forced draft to the side of the Santa Cruz.

Pounding seas were weakening the distressed ship and her boilers had filled with salt water after her port boiler "went out," according to radioed messages between the two ships.

The 504-foot Santa Cruz, owned by the Navy and operated by Tankers, Inc., had been in trouble since last night when her radio reported "condenser trouble."

Noyes Heads Group On Chemical Warfare

Prof. W. Albert Noyes, University of Rochester, yesterday was named chairman of the Chemical Warfare Committee, a civilian-military group of experts in the national military establishment.

The committee, a unit of the Research and Development Board, will work on both chemical warfare weapons and civilian defense against poison gas attack.

Battle of Smiths

New Round Punched Out Over Saipan

By the United Press

Marine Gen. Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith asserted yesterday that Army sympathizers are trying to "whitewash" the record of the Twenty-seventh Division and its commander in the Battle of Saipan.

The retired Marine general struck back sharply at an article published Tuesday in the Infantry Journal, unofficial service publication, which revived the long-suppressed interservice controversy over Smith's removal of Army Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith from his command in June, 1944.

The Journal said a secret report by an Army investigating board had cleared Ralph Smith of charges of misconduct in the Saipan Battle. It asserted that Holland Smith, who was in command of the operation, "was not justified" in relieving the Army officer from command of the Twenty-seventh Division.

The Marine general, in a statement distributed here, replied that he removed the Army general from his command "because his division lacked the necessary aggressiveness needed to win the Battle of Saipan . . ."

"I want to put on record again that I consider Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith a gentleman," said Holland Smith. (The two Smiths are not related.)

But he added that "any attempt to contravert the record must be answered in the interests of honesty and historical accuracy."

He branded the journal's article "whitewash, pure and simple."

He said the "whitewash" was based on the report of a "so-called board which had no more judicial standing than an Army kangaroo court."

"This board has no access to Saipan records of the Navy and Marine Corps, and sought none," he said. "It was convened in the Hawaiian Islands over 3000 miles behind the Saipan battlefront, and accepted no testimony except that of Army officers who were hauled up for the purpose of testifying."

Smith said the Saipan Battle had a "back-breaking effect" on the Japanese and that a full record of the action "is vital to the history of the late war."

He then urged the Navy to "release its voluminous documentation" of the battle in order to clear up the record."

The Infantry Journal article, written by Edmund G. Love, an Army historian, had stated frankly that it was presenting "the Army side" of the long-smoldering dispute.

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

As soon as the elections are out of the way next week, the United States is expected to lay the basis for a decision on a military alliance with western Europe.

State Department officials, it was learned yesterday, plan to consult leaders of Congress and the major political parties to find what they will support in the final drafting of a proposed treaty to create a North Atlantic mutual defense system.

Undersecretary of State Lovett told a news conference yesterday that the first phase of the projected non-Communist alliance already has been completed. This phase consisted of "exploratory" talks held here during the summer among Lovett and the Ambassadors of Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

No Commitments Made

Understandings reached in these talks did not involve commitments by anyone on anything, Lovett said. However, they did result in a general agreement among the participants on the form and scope of the unprecedented defense arrangement.

As a result of the Washington talks, the five western European nations decided in Paris yesterday to invite the United States formally to join with them in writing a treaty. Their invitation is expected to be accepted.

Lovett said the next steps can be taken swiftly.

The first and perhaps the most important of these will be to determine the precise postelection views of Republican and Democratic leaders so that the State Department will be prepared to draft a treaty which has prospect of Senate approval.

Outline of Proposals

The rough outlines of the proposed agreement were sketched in the talks this summer. Diplomatic authorities forecast that half a dozen major points will survive future negotiations and be included in the final draft:

1. The United States, Canada, and the five nations comprising the Western European Union should form the nucleus of the non-Communist alliance.

2. The alliance should include other countries with common security interests in the North Atlantic area — notably Portugal, Iceland, Denmark (which controls Greenland), Norway and Iceland.

3. A council or committee should be created to work continuously on common defense problems and provide a constantly available means for coping with any emergency.

4. The nations in the system should coordinate their military sources to the fullest extent possible. For the United States this would mean enactment of a military aid program—a kind of peacetime revival of lend-lease to strengthen the western European countries against Russia. The five European nations already are pooling their resources and have set up a joint command.

5. In event of attack on any member of the alliance, all the other members should consider that they have been attacked and should take "appropriate action."

6. In each country the "appropriate action" would be taken in accordance with its constitutional processes.

Bradley Asks Services to End Rivalry to the future," aspirants more concerned with careers than their obligations" and "reckless specialists intent on beating their own drums."

Pledging the Army to put "service to the Nation before the old school tie," Bradley declared:

"The United States cannot stake its national defense requirements on a popularity contest where glitter, glamor and shrewd public appeal become more important than military judgment. You cannot risk your security to a bout for public favor and congressional indulgence . . .

"If a budget dollar is to produce a dollar's worth of defense, then it must be apportioned to the services in terms of D-Day and follow-up missions—with likely enemies in mind."

Red Subs Are Topic

Many of the Navy chiefs spoke of the development of new Russian submarines, and termed this the chief menace to our national security.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations, declared that in advent of war our enemies first "would try to isolate us on our island continent by an intense submarine war." Only the Navy could stop them, he added. Preparations made by the Navy since the end of the war make the U-boat threat less grave than during World War II, said Denfeld in a speech at Worcester, Mass.

Rear Admiral John P. Whitney, MATS vice commander, said that a new war will bring attacks on the American continent "without warning," including air bombardment, airborne troops, assaults and guided missiles launched from submarines. He spoke at Duluth.

Rear Admiral Charles B. Momsen told a Cleveland audience that the U. S. Navy is developing special submarines to battle subs. Also, he spoke of "new and insidious mines" and "new devices" which increase firepower on destroyers.

"We are looking to atomic power as a means of propelling a true submarine a great distance at high speeds," Momsen said.

John Nicholas Brown, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, said at Memphis that light carriers and surface ships have been organized into "killer teams" to track down new high-speed undersea craft.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Mark E. Andrews delivered one of the most pointed addresses of the day. Obviously aimed at Russia and its satellites, Andrews said the United States Navy is ready to strike back quickly and forcefully from the Mediterranean against "any act of aggression."

Sub Developments Told

Andrews, speaking in New Orleans, said the Mediterranean is a lifeline "flanked on the north by powers whose ideology is abhorrent to us and whose avowed policy is the destruction of our way of life."

Leahy Sees "Acute Danger"

Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to President Truman and member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in Indianapolis "there is now an acute danger of war" but added he does not believe it is coming soon.

If it does come, Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan said at Akron, Ohio, it will be fought "in foreign waters, in foreign skies and in foreign lands rather than around, above and on American soil."

Secretary of the Army Royall, speaking in Baltimore, also touched on unification. Success will not come in a day or in a few months, he said, but it will come "with increasing speed as the idea of interdependence crowds into the background the stand-pat and fallacious philosophy of service self-sufficiency."

Vice Admiral R. B. Carney, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics told a Navy League banquet in Toledo, Ohio, that the carrier task force is virtually invulnerable.

He said not even the atomic bomb or high-level bombing attacks can defeat such a force. Some Air Force officials are known to feel that carriers are very vulnerable.

Wallace Declares Truman 'Desperate'

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Henry Wallace tonight accused President Truman of stealing the Progressive Party platform in an effort to fool the American people.

The Progressive Party presidential candidate spoke at a rally in the New Haven Arena. His speech was broadcast over CBS.

"After three years of strike-breaking, witch-hunting, high prices, continued Jim Crow, and the constant threat of war, Harry Truman suddenly decides that the only way he can possibly face the people is not on his own program but by pretending to support the program of the Progressive Party," Wallace declared.

Chages Masquerade

"Harry Truman must appear before the voters wrapped in the clothing of the Progressive Party—hoping the voters will not notice that he's really wearing something else. . . . If there were no Progressive Party he could just say nothing, like the other candidate."

Wallace charged that Truman is masquerating behind a Progressive Party platform because he is desperate, and because he has sold his country out to the monopolies.

"The bankers and generals needed only a weak and willing President to allow them to take over completely," Wallace said. "The story of the abdication of Harry Truman from the presidency, and the succession of Wall Street bankers and Pentagon generals to his place is one of the ugliest chapters in American history. Today we are governed by men we never elected."

Public Ownership Plea

Wallace declared the Progressive Party "is going to become the first party in our country" and will kick the men of monopoly out of Government and industries, and place the banks, railroads, gas and power and atomic energy under public ownership.

"The budget of the United States has become a trough in which the swine of monopoly are invited to eat their fill," Wallace declared. "Like the man who came to dinner, they are prepared to stay—but I say that the American people, organized behind the Progressive Party, will see that they do not stay."

Wallace charged that the bipartisan foreign policy of this country "that has brought the entire world to the edge of war" is run for profits, not for peace.

"Our foreign policy is run like our domestic policy—for profit," he said. "It is run by men like John Foster Dulles, who preached appeasement of Hitler 10 years ago as they order release of Nazis today. The front man is still the same Harry Truman. He talks peace with a wistful air—but as soon as he suggests a concrete move toward peace, such as sending Chief Justice Vinson to meet with Premier Stalin, his masters crack the whip and Truman retires into the corner."

Race Denied Cause of Raid

The Metropolitan Police Department is not concerned with the private or public assembly of interracial groups as long as such groups are not disorderly, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police chief, declared yesterday.

His statement was included in a letter to the Washington Civil Rights Congress, which had protested formally that District police raided a gathering at 516 2d st. nw. on October 3 and arrested the men and women there because it was an interracial group.

Police records show that 15 white persons and 1 Negro were arrested at that address early that evening on charges of investigation and were later released.

Barrett said in the letter that he did not feel the Police Department should be criticized for its action. He declared that police had originally gone to the 2d st. address after receiving a call that there had been a "shooting" there.

When the officers responded to the call but did not receive any "proper cooperation" from those present, it was necessary to arrest several persons and take them to headquarters for proper identification, Barrett said.

Barrett declared the Police Department was not concerned with "the assembly of interracial groups if such assemblies do not involve disorder or breach of peace. He added: "I am sorry that this incident happened. We do not want anyone to feel that we have any desire to violate the civil rights of any person or group."

Doris Duke Gets Surprise Reno Divorce

DORIS DUKE
A Miss again

Reno, Nev., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—The former Doris Duke, 35, once known as the richest girl in the world, was granted a surprise divorce today from Porfirio Rubirosa, Dominican Republic diplomat.

Catching Reno's divorce-conscious reporters by surprise, the slender millionaire appeared at the Washoe County courthouse with her attorneys shortly before closing time.

Five minutes later, she emerged no longer married and once again legally "Miss Doris Duke."

She charged Rubirosa with extreme mental cruelty.

The tobacco heiress, once the wife of New Deal ambassador James H. R. (Jimmy) Cromwell, married the Dominican diplomat in Paris September 1, 1947.

"We just couldn't get along," she said.

"I made no settlement of any kind," she declared. "He took his money and property and I took mine. My former husband has ample financial means of his own," she added.

Asked how much money she has—she replied: "I really don't know my exact status at the moment."

Hold of City Bosses on South Is Broken, Thurmond Says

Shreveport, La., Oct. 27 (AP).—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina told Louisianians today that "Mr. Truman and his big city bosses have cracked the whip across the South's back for the last time."

Thurmond, States' Rights presidential candidate, made the statement in an address prepared for delivery at the Louisiana State Fair.

He criticized the civil rights program proposed by President Truman and later indorsed, he said, by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Henry Wallace.

He charged that the civil rights program was proposed by the Democratic leadership because of their "ignorance or their blind greed for power.

"But by the millions," Thurmond said, "we are telling these false leaders that they cannot trade away our heritage to satisfy the demands of a minority machine in order to boost themselves to power on a program that would surely lead to establishment of a totalitarian state in America."

Texas Ballots Ordered Held

but Committee Counsel B. Nelson Deranian said that would be done only in counties where specific fraud charges were made.

Deranian said committee investigators learned of the ballot destruction after arriving in Texas Monday night. He said all ballots were destroyed in Duval County and in Precinct 13 of Jim Wells County, two of the five in which Stevenson charged there was fraud.

Deranian said the official tally in Duval County before the records were destroyed showed Johnson receiving more than 4000 votes to only 40 for Stevenson. Stevenson's charges also included Starr, Jim Hogg and Zapata Counties.

Johnson's complaint centered on election irregularities in Brown, Dallas, Harris, Galveston, Clay, Eastland, Wharton and Chambers Counties.

He charged that 2000 votes were cast in Galveston County in the names of dead persons and non-residents. He said he understood a grand jury investigation found evidence of names being obtained from tombstones.

He said that in Brown County a "kinsman of my opponent (an election official) amended his returns four or five times, each time increasing Stevenson's margin. In Harris County, Johnson said, officials refused to count absentee ballots. He charged that returns were changed after the polls had closed in Eastland, Wharton, Chambers and "many other counties."

Truman 'Fumbles' Dewey Declares

cratic city. Speaking in the same hall last night, the President had an audience of about 12,000, police said.

Speaking ahead of Dewey, Senator Robert A. Taft, one of the Governor's leading rivals for the nomination, and still Republican "boss" of the Senate, extolled Dewey as "a great Republican, a great Governor and a great American."

Taft, who has never seen eye to eye with the Republican nominee, spoke up like the straight party man that he is in praise of Dewey's "able, experienced leadership."

But Martha Taft, who wanted so much for "Bob" to be President, wasn't there.

Former Gov. John W. Bricker, 1944 running mate, wasn't present either. Friends explained Bricker is campaigning in West Virginia.

To Gov. Tom Herbert, running now for reelection, fell the honor of presenting Dewey. An uproarious three-minute demonstration followed. Dewey thanked the audience for a "wonderful welcome," said he hoped it meant he would carry Ohio.

Noisemakers rattled and the crowd hoarsely yelled when Dewey said he will "win . . . by clean and decent methods" without rousing "fear and prejudices." They had a good laugh over Dewey's thrust at Truman and "good old Joe."

Using bludgeon and scalpel, Governor Dewey replied for the second straight night to the President's charge that Republicans will lead the country into dictatorship.

"We do not assert that there is only one party in the United States that is fit to govern," he old an audience in the Cleveland auditorium.

"We do not believe in one-party rule."

He said a "vigorous" Republican Party is ready to take over under the two-party system because the Truman Administration has become "fumbling and weak."

Optimism Mounts

As Governor Dewey sped eastward tonight for his campaign finale in New England and New York, aboard-train optimism ruffled a bit by Mr. Truman's bitter Chicago blast, steadily mounted.

The ill-concealed anger at what Dewey advisers regarded as a Truman attempted to stir racial and religious prejudice, leveled off in inner circle forecasts that Mr. Truman "has shot his bolt."

Some of the Dewey politicos privately criticized the President's "timing" as bad. These said his campaign's crescendo should have been saved for his Madison Square Garden speech. At any rate, they argued, Mr. Truman's pickup from his Philadelphia convention low has now passed its peak and the Dewey graph is again on the way up.

Before his train pulled out of Chicago, Governor Dewey breakfasted at the Stevens Hotel with 17 Western stockmen and farm leaders. Representative Clifford Hope (R., Kans.), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, sat in on the huddle. Participants declined to say whether party financing was among the subjects discussed.

En route to Cleveland, Governor Dewey made a return stop at Elkhart, Ind., where he chatted with a station throng Tuesday. This time he made his standard rear platform speech to a crowd of about 2000 and added some rebuttal on the Truman speeches.

He criticized the President for "traveling around the country trying to divide us," said that "times are too serious for that" and promised a government "four square and all out for freedom."

At Toledo, Ohio, the train stopped to take aboard Senator Robert A. Taft, Gov. Tom Herbert, Representatives George H. Bender and Frances P. Bolton and other Ohio GOP leaders. Governor Dewey stepped down from the rear platform to shake hands with friends in the crowd.

Nettled by Charge

Tonight at Cleveland, Truman's charges of "totalitarian forces behind the Republican Party were still nettling Dewey, for he took the trouble to spell out his faith in the two-party system.

He said both parties have alternately served their country well, but said Administrations grow weary in office and "lose their grasp."

"Responsibility finally falls into faltering hands while internal strife and bitterness destroy their capacity to govern," he said.

"That is why we have two parties in this country, the one vigorous and able to take over when the other falters and fails."

Hitting Truman's handling of foreign relations, he said we have "unfortunately an Administration which did not seem to understand the nature of the Communist threat."

Wobbling between firmness and appeasement, he said it made "tragic concessions" that enabled Russia to extend its sway "halfway around the world."

He said there is no "easy way" to build an enduring peace, but it requires faith and competence now lacking in the Truman Administration.

Then he charged:

"It is a tragic fact that at this crucial time the Communist propaganda line is being given substance by some Americans in high places of authority. Whether they know it or not, they are voicing day after day the world-wide Communist propaganda that America is heading from boom to bust.

"They are ridiculing the old-fashioned American idea of teamwork and unity. They are trying to divide our people by appeals to fear and prejudice. Now these Americans are not Communists. They are not even Communist sympathizers . . . Whatever the motive, they are doing our country a grave injury."

Straws in Wind Blow 2 Ways in School Votes

The Presidential candidates yesterday received two straws in the wind from mock elections at two Maryland high schools.

As might have been expected, the students of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School in Montgomery County, which has nearly always leaned toward the Republicans, voted overwhelmingly in favor of Governor Dewey.

Equally as overwhelmingly was the vote given to President Truman by students of Bladensburg High School in Prince Georges County, which has leaned toward the Democrats.

In addition, the students of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School approved the "home rule" charter for Montgomery County by a vote of 402 to 137.

A breakdown of the votes showed:

In Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School the students gave Dewey 342 votes as compared with 164 for Truman. Thurmond collected 66 student votes, while 11 were cast for Norman Thomas and 6 for Henry Wallace. J. Glenn Beall, Maryland's Sixth District congressional incumbent, received 341 votes as compared with only 246 for his Democratic opponent, F. Byrne Austin.

In Blandensburg High School, the students cast 324 votes for Truman, 184 for Dewey and 26 for Wallace. Two write-in votes were recorded for Thurmond.

Truman Again Labels GOP 'Red Threat'

the Chief Executive and shower him with confetti and scraps of paper during his drive from South Station to the Hotel Statler. Dense crowds lined both sides of the route and filled side streets a half block deep.

In contrast to the noisy but mechanical demonstration at Chicago last Monday night, Boston's welcome was as spontaneous as it was warm. After his automobile passed, hundreds of spectators broke through police lines and swarmed into the street following the cars in which Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman rode.

The crowd's enthusiasm was repeated and redoubled at the hall. There Mr. Truman was greeted by a tumultuous roar which continued for several minutes, punctuated by regulated cheers.

Before leaving for the hall the President paid a 15-minute visit at his residence to Archbishop Richard J. Cushing. White House Secretary Eben Ayres quoted the archbishop as saying he told Mr. Truman:

"I think you are making one of the greatest and most courageous fights in history in behalf of the people."

However, the archbishop said later the "connotation of my statement to President Truman was unwarrented. I merely congratulated him on putting up a great fight."

At Hartford, Conn., just before noon Mr. Truman spoke to an estimated 27,000 from the steps of Frank Gannet's Hartford Times. Repeatedly interrupted by applause, he asked for election to the governorship of Chester Bowles, former price administrator.

He recalled Bowles' work in holding down prices and charged Republican leaders with killing the OPA because "too many people wanted easy profits." The President recalled that he twice called Congress into special session enact price-control legislation, and said:

"You got no relief from the Republicans at all. And you won't get it . . . We already have been given a preview of what to expect in the next Republican Congress."

Mr. Truman quoted from a newspaper report of a recent convention of apartment house owners in California and said they had indicated rents would "not be increased more than 20 per cent if rent controls were killed."

"I don't have a doubt in the world," he said, "that rents would be that high, or maybe even higher, if the Republican Party should win this election."

A crowd estimated at 50,000 lined the streets along his route from the station to the square where he spoke.

In brief halts in Massachusetts at Pittsfield, Springfield, Worchester and Framingham, and at Thompsonville, Conn., the President hammered at the record of the Eightieth Congress and appealed for a record vote in November.

At Pittsfield, an estimated 3500 heard him label the Eightieth Congress "the great lobby Congress" and promise that a Democratic Congress would "clean them out." He detailed the record of the recent Congress in cutting Labor Department funds and in enacting the Taft-Hartley Law.

He told an estimated 3000 at Thompsonville the Democratic Administration of President Roosevelt had built up the Labor Department and said it could be kept useful only by keeping his party in office.

To a cheering 30,000 at Springfield, where the President spoke from a platform at the station, he recalled Shay's rebellion just after the Revolution as a "GI revolt" against inflation. He turned to the question of education, crowded schools and low pay for teachers, and said Federal aid to education could be achieved only by election of a Democratic Administration.

Quoting Governors Lane of Maryland and Maw of Utah, Mr. Truman repeated charges that his Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, had made a "vicious attack" on school teachers at the recent Portsmouth, N. H., Governors conference. He said Governor Lane informed him that Governor Dewey had said:

"The school lobby is the most vicious and dishonest lobby in the country. It is worse than all of the rest of them put together. One of the lies they tell is that Russia spends more money on public education than we do in this country."

Truman's Poll Views
'Politics,' Says Gallup

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP).—Dr. George Gallup, head of the American Institute of Public Opinion, said President Truman's expressed doubt of the accuracy of current election polls was "all part of politics."

The President said last night in Cleveland polls showing the Republicans ahead were "like sleeping polls, designed to lull the voters into sleeping on election day . . . They (Republicans) know . . . a big vote spells their defeat." He predicted unequivocally he would win.

Replied Dr. Gallup:

"Mr. Truman would love us if we could show him out in front. Nobody wants to be shown behind.

"Either he is wrong, or we are. The people will know in another week."

The Gallup polls have never been wrong in a national election, their head said. In 197 polls in this country and 65 abroad, the poll predictions have averaged 3.9 per cent off the exact results.

The Gallup Poll has shown Governor Dewey of New York, the Republican presidential candidate, with "a substantial lead" throughout the campaign, Dr. Gallup said.

The Gallup Poll is among the oldest of the many organizations which take pre-election polls.

Step out with Brand-New Fireball Power in your old Buick

THIS is a brand-new Buick engine. It's fresh from the factory — straight from the same assembly line where the engines in 1948 Buick cars are built.

If you'd like to boss it around—mister, that's easy, if you have any Buick built since 1937.

All we need to do is take out your old engine — and put this one in.

Then you can feel the thrill of a brand-new Fireball engine. You can enjoy all the pep, power and performance that you'd get if you had a 1948 car. It's spick and span, from head to pan, with all the features that make today's Buick engine the pacesetter of the power parade.

And it can be yours in less than two days. Look at the list of what you get — the most complete power package ever. There's a brand-new ignition system — brand-new clutch, pistons, pins, rings, valves — even the water pump.

We can make this offer because engine output has outstripped new-car production at the factory. The cost? Much less than you think, although it varies a bit from model to model.

Come in today for detailed figures on bringing your old Buick right up to date on power.

Air Blockade

For weeks past the Russians have been filing a constant stream of protests with American and British air lift operations officers in Berlin. Such and such planes, they have alleged, violated the four-power air safety regulations governing flights into and out of Berlin. In every case, presumably, they named chapter and verse of the regulation supposed to have been broken. By thus citing the agreement, which they helped to draw up and signed, and which has been in force unchallenged since early 1946, the Russians attested their full belief in its validity and force.

But one should never underestimate the capacity of Moscow for bland inconsistency. Now that protests have been flowing in the reverse direction for a while—against Russian air maneuvers and target practice in the air corridors—the regulations are something else again. And now that preparations are under way to reinforce "Operation Vittles" for the winter, including the addition of 24 Navy planes for the first time, the Russians have found the regulations must be dispensed with. So they have come up with the contention that the agreement on air safety never was valid because it was not ratified by the Control Council.

The issue of validity is, of course, a Red snare. The Russians were simply in need of some way of getting around the regulations. Like the "technical difficulties" that were supposed to justify closing all road, rail and barge traffic between the western zones and Berlin, this is a flimsy excuse that hardly tries to conceal the real purpose. The Russians' aim is to get rid of the paper accord, by whatever transparent, expedient, or dishonest method comes to mind, so they can have a free hand to spike the air lift.

The action will be readily recognized as another attempt at unilateral abrogation of contract. Once again the Kremlin demonstrates that an agreement is good only so long as it suits Russian purposes. But that is only half the problem. If the Russians want to go all the way and blockade the air corridors with fighter planes and flak, the air lift can be seriously hampered. Against such overt action diplomatic protests are not likely to carry much weight. The alternative, then, appears to be clear. Berlin is the internationalized fifth zone of Germany; the United States, Russia, Great Britain, and France all have the same right to be there and stay there. Unless we are ready to let ourselves be pushed out, we may find it necessary to keep the air corridors clear with fighter planes.

Atomic Specter

Military influence in the development of atomic energy has been definitely broadened in the recent reorganization of the Atomic Energy Commission. The director of military application, who by law must be a professional military man, has been given the added responsibility of supervising operations of the Los Alamos project, where most weapons work is done. To persons familiar with the efforts a small group of military minds has been making to return atomic energy control to the Army, the move has disturbing connotations. It does not constitute a breach of the principle of civilian control, for the civilian Atomic Energy Commission retains ultimate authority, but it does widen the place of the military in practical day-to-day work under the commission.

To be sure, it is the course of world events, rather than any action of the Atomic Energy Commission, that has forced concentration on the potentialities of atomic energy as an instrument of war. The military establishment naturally has a vital interest in such development. But the McMahon Act of 1946 made it quite clear that the interest of all the people would best be served by keeping the ultimate direction of atomic development in civilian hands. Recognition of the military concern was provided in the establishment of a military liaison committee; but the law also recognized that research and development, even of weapons, is primarily a job for civilian scientists under civilian direction.

The reorganization of the commission itself is logical enough. It was designed to counteract the effects of too great decentralization in operation of the various atomic energy facilities. Under the reorganization, the directors of the four principal divisions, who previously had acted primarily in a staff or advisory capacity, were made responsible for operations. The hitch is that this consolidation of policy and operating responsibility places in control of one division a man who may be subject to divided allegiance. For the director of military applications is selected by the commission from a list in effect nominated by the military establishment. The military retains control of his assignment and promotions. Under these conditions it would take a strong man to resist pressure from the military if pressure should be brought to bear.

This is intended as no disparagement of the incumbent director of military application, Brig. Gen. James McCormack, jr., a man of exceptional ability, who has maintained a most favorable relationship with the Atomic Energy Commission. It is in the routine selection of military men for this assignment that danger may arise. Undoubtedly the commission was aware of this implication when it approved the reorganization. But the foes of civilian control have not relaxed their effort, and the commission will have to be constantly on its toes if it is to uphold the principle successfully in practice.

What Is Obscenity?

By an even division the Supreme Court has declined to set aside a verdict of the New York Court of General Sessions, affirmed by that State's Court of Appeals, which found a collection of short stories called The Memoirs of Hecate County to constitute "obscene, lewd, filthy, indecent, disgusting" literature, and accordingly fined the publishers, Messrs. Doubleday & Co., $1000. As is usual where there is no majority, no opinion was filed. This is somewhat regrettable, since it would have been interesting and possibly instructive to know on precisely what grounds the case was argued within the court.

Certainly, the case was a difficult one. It involved the question of the competence of any court to distinguish accurately between literature and pornography and the further question of whether the term "obscenity" is positive or relative. Should the presence or absence of obscenity be determined by what is tolerated by prevailing custom? Should it be determined by the intention of the author, by the conceivable consequences of the book on the conduct of an impressionable reader, or by some arbitrary standard involving the use of particular words or the description of particular objects or actions? None of these criteria seems quite satisfactory. It has often been observed that most of the existing statutes against obscenity, if literally applied, would have the effect of prohibiting many of the great masterpieces of English literature, including the Bible and the standard editions of Shakespeare and Chaucer, and even the works of certain classical writers, such as Ovid, Petronius, Apuleius and Suetonius.

The author of Hecate County is Mr. Edmund Wilson, a literary critic of long-established reputation. The general opinion has been that his satire is too subtle to be effective and that, with one exception, the stories are altogether dull. The exception is a story which deals in elaborate and even clinical detail with the adulterous copulation of the narrator. To this one story, and evidently to some gossip in certain literary quarters as to the identity of the characters, the book owed its succes de scandal. The same story was also made the principal basis of the indictment brought against the publishers.

The principle laid down by the Federal courts some 14 years ago in permitting the sale of James Joyce's Ulysses, that the question of indecency in a book is to be determined by the artistic purpose of the author, while doubtless appropriate to that case, seems to us unsatisfactory as a general rule. At best the court can merely surmise the author's intention. The rule that whatever popular taste is willing to tolerate may be safely permitted seems to us equally unsatisfactory. Popular taste is often narrow and prejudiced and may easily lead to an extreme Grundyism, which is able to find something objectionable in every book. This seems to be what has happened under the Irish censorship, which is said to be strongly supported by public opinion, even though it has stifled the once-promising Irish literary movement.

On the other hand, it must be admitted that books, and especially novels, not only reflect but also help to create the moral climate. Thus in an age of universal literacy it is impossible for an author to disclaim any social responsibility or to insist that art is independent of morality. But, of course, the notion that the presence or absence of obscenity can be determined by some rule of thumb, such as the author's vocabulary—an idea often cherished by policemen and lawyers—is even more preposterous.

Whether by mere coincidence or something more than coincidence, the truth is that since the courts began to give steadily broader interpretations of the obscenity statutes, American fiction has been characterized by increasing licentiousness. It is no great secret that many novelists of inadequate talent (a category in which Mr. Wilson is not to be included) strive to titillate the sexual imaginations of their readers as a substitute for dramatic interest and plausible characterization. But since what shocks us today may merely bore us tomorrow, such novelists are under the necessity of steadily increasing the dosage of lubricity.

The fault, it seems to us, lies mainly with the publishers for permitting and in some cases even encouraging this sort of thing. It was certain in the end to produce a reaction, and if the reaction became manifest in the case of Hecate County that is the hard luck but not necessarily the undeserved misfortune of Messrs. Doubleday & Co. It is no remote possibility that the vast quantities of meretricious and licentious fiction which are promiscuously distributed by circulating libraries may one of these days be made the pretext for a general attack on the freedom of the press. That freedom could be defended with more assurance of success if abuses of it were less frequent.

Insurrection In France

The French government, which cannot by any stretch of language be called a strong one, is showing increasing signs of a desperate determination to deal with the insurrection in the coal fields. For to call the actions now being taken by the Communist-led miners "strikes" is to overlook the fact that the wage issue has suffered total eclipse. The Communists themselves have admitted that their purpose is essentially political. That loss of coal production over the past three weeks will damage French industrial recovery and economic stability perhaps beyond repair is, to the Communists, a desirable result. How far they are willing to go in destroying the livelihood of their own miners, to say nothing of the nation's economic health, is revealed by their readiness to put the mines out of business for weeks or months to come. Already some 31 per cent of the mines in the St. Etienne district are flooded for lack of continuous pumping, as are many in the north of France, too.

Coal is the chief problem in French recovery, as every European and American study of ERP has emphasized. Since the war the French have made considerable progress in bringing their own coal production up toward the point where they could become independent of imports from the United States. The Communist-fostered disruption designedly undermines the ERP at both ends of the line. Unless the insurrection is promptly put under control the part France can play in its own and general European recovery, and in the western European defense system, will be seriously in question.

Accordingly, the employment of various types of military and police reserves to deal with the situation by vigorous measures is welcome, though overdue. The French government, timid in this as in applying the necessary taxes and controls to fight inflation, has not, we recognize, an easy task. France is not a unified country and its people lack the moral incentives to place common good above self and class interests.

The Communist political purpose is ostensibly to force their reentry into the government by demonstrating the impossibility of governing without them. But the temper of the great majority of the French people, revealed to some extent in the recent election, makes this seem an unlikely eventuality. Short of a forcible coup like that in Czechoslovakia, the Communists are more likely to get De Gaulle than a part in the government. And that, paradoxically, might be almost as much to their liking. For, in their lexicon at least, it would give the color of justification to even stronger acts of rebellion against what they would certainly call a "Fascist dictatorship." In the light of the prospect this opens up, plus De Gaulle's weak understanding of economic realities, the present French government infused with a new courage is far and away the first choice for France.

Displaced Logic

While in Europe recently, Representative Ed Gossett of Texas visited several DP camps and talked with some of the unhappy victims of the Nazi practice of kidnaping masses of non-Germans for forced labor in the Third Reich. From them he elicited an eminently sound reaction to the facts of life—and death. "Many of the people in these camps," he is reported as saying, "candidly admitted to us that they remain there because life is easier than if they returned to their homes."

Mr. Gossett, who is strongly averse to letting even a few displaced persons enter the United States, seems to imply by this comment that they prefer a life of ease in a DP camp to earning their own way in the lands from which they came. The effect of the Congressman's words, however, seems to us the opposite. These people, predominantly anti-Communists from iron-curtain countries, show commendable good sense. They would rather live the restricted life of a DP in the hope of being allowed to resettle in some part of the world where they can earn a living than go back to face almost certain death. We wonder if Mr. Gossett, were he in their place, would feel any different about it.

LEGISLATION

Summer and winter, spring and fall,
Are seasoned legislators, all . . .

When summer's bills are all but passed,
Deciding autumn's votes are massed
And summer yields in the debate
To changes introduced that late.

So, too, when blustery autumn tries
To pass his acts unto compromise,
The wily winter, session whip,
Adds his amended icy quip.

And spring repeats what winter's done,
Appropriating wind and sun,
And then in turn concedes at last
To summer's greenest riders passed.

O Lord, since all these natural laws
Are subject to encroaching clause,
Does man, believed Your governed breath,
Submit to statutory death?

Cooperative Risk

I have read with interest your editorials and the various letters to the editor in connection with cooperative apartments. It seems to me, however, that all have overlooked an important aspect of some cooperative apartment deals. This concerns the investment risk involved, which affects not only those who might in the future default on their purchase contracts, but also those who have fulfilled their contract obligations in full.

I believe that here in Washington, as in the case of cities with which I am more familiar, the apartment building is sometimes subject to a general mortgage or trust. The payments from the individual apartment purchasers on their contracts are applied to meet the payments on this general mortgage. However, if sufficent apartment owners failed to make the payments on their purchase contracts regularly and these contracts fall into default, the ability of the cooperative, which holds title to the apartment house, to maintain service on the general mortgage might be seriously impaired.

In the event of a default on the general mortgage, the mortgagee would then have the right to foreclose and, if this right were exercised, all purchasers of apartments in the building would lose any ownership rights they might have had. Thus, title to any individual apartment is not actually clear of indebtedness until the general mortgage is paid in full. Even then there is the continuing obligation of tax payments and the dependence upon their monthly assessments for this purpose.

This is not an academic problem. During the depression in the early 1930's, a number of cooperative apartments in this country fell by the wayside and the participants, whether they had paid their purchase contract obligations on schedule or not, were deprived of their apartments.

It is not my intention to discourage the purchase of cooperative apartments, as I feel that much can be said on behalf of this type of undertaking. The main purpose of this letter is to call the attention of prospective purchasers to an important risk involved—one which they have probably overlooked and, further, one which is not usually mentioned by agencies engaged in the sale of such apartments.

Crop Distribution

It is one of the marvels of political juggling that continuation of farm price supports to curry vote favor with farmers at the same time keeps increased supplies of food and lower prices thereon from reaching harassed consumers who also have votes. By what magic do politicians turn an unsound policy into an economic panacea designed to attract votes from a presumably gullible public?

The only national agricultural program which will benefit farmers and consumers alike is the complete revamping of the present archaic system of distributing farm products. This should be done by expanding and centralizing the operations of American farm cooperatives which under Federal and State approval (but without Government subsidies and controls) would eliminate excessive handlers' profits and labor rackets to give the consuming public higher quality, standardized farm products at lower prices while assuring producers a better stabilized income. Why does neither major political party advocate such constructive farm policy?

Political Parallel

It seems to have missed the attention of most of the commentators that we had a presidential election just a hundred years ago, in 1848, when Senator Zachary Taylor, candidate of the Whig Party, was elected over his Democratic opponent, Lewis Cass, the number one forgotten man of American history.

In that election year these things happened: (1) The party in power, though it had just concluded a successful war, was defeated; (2) the Whig opposition, passing over its distinguished civilians, nominated a war hero, and won; (3) a former Vice President headed a third party ticket, split the Democratic Party in New York, and the Democrats lost the State. This is generally given as the reason why Cass lost, but; (4) the Democratic candidate would have won without New York if three Southern States, normally Democratic, had not chosen Whig electors.

Does all this sound like things we have been hearing in 1948?

Montgomery Charter

As a resident and taxpayer for over 40 years in Montgomery County, I am dead opposed to the proposed charter for the county because of the duplication and confusion which will arise if charter becomes a law. I am not fooled by all the extravagant claims by the charter committee of the local self government for the county, etc., for we have that now, and as a common sense proposition I do not see where there will be an improvement over the county commissioners who are elected every four years to a complete change to a county council with a county manager at $12,000 a year who will be a virtual dictator.

Many sincere citizens are fooled by all the propaganda which has been going the rounds for the past five years regarding a charter form of government for Montgomery County and the plea to get rid of Brooke Lee. Well, Colonel Lee has taken himself out of the picture, the charter folks elected their slate of Republican office holders who supplanted the Democrats at the last county election, all of whom had indorsed the charter, but who have since had a change of heart. It must be embarrassing and humiliating to the charter committee to find its protege whom it had elected to office last year, now repudiating its leadership and the charter and best governed counties in America.

"Lagging Reserves"

In its editorial of October 19, commenting on the President's order to Secretary Forrestal to jack up the sagging Army and Air Force Reserve, The Washington Post said: "Mr. Truman's lavish praise for the National Guard seems to us to contain a considerable element of gloss, despite some real efforts to stimulate the Guard."

In speaking directly to the head of the regular military establishment, Mr. Truman placed the responsibility for what The Washington Post calls the "appalling disorganization" of the Reserves exactly where it belongs. Despite the efforts and protests of the reservists themselves, the regulars have sold the Reserve organization down the river and now seek, through the Gray Board recommendations for "unification" of the Guard and Reserve, to put the National Guard into the same boat.

The National Guard is fighting against being made a part of the present Reserve, not because it feels that the Guard organization is a "sacred cow" or because of a belief in States rights above all else, but because it sees what the regular establishment has made of the Reserve in the 30 years it has had control.

After the war, 278,833 officers and 450,456 men, all veterans, signed up for the Army and Air Force Reserve. In April, 82 per cent of the officers and 92.3 per cent of the men still had no assignment whatsoever or were in unorganized pools to be used, if at all, as fillers for other organizations. Of the remainder, only 158 officers and 422 men had been organized into 59 units averaging 2.7 officers and 7.2 men per unit, and no unit had more than 30 per cent of its equipment—equipment now found on the bargain shelves of surplus stores.

The remaining personnel are in units on paper made up of lists of thousands of individual names with addresses incorrect or entirely lacking. In three years, with over three quarters of a million trained personnel, only .0007 per cent have been organized into units comparable to National Guard units!

Although Congress passed legislation last March authorizing pay for the Reserve, and passage of the bill had been anticipated for a year, today not one reservist has received a cent of pay because of the regular establishment's failure to put out the necessary regulations.

On the other hand, the National Guard has 309,322 officers and men organized into 4716 units—and these units are going concerns that have worked and trained together each week as units. Last summer when Guard units took to the field for training as units, Army and Air Force inspectors rated 98.8 per cent satisfactory or better.

The true story on the question of adequate funds for the Reserve program as shown by the record boils down to this: the Army and Air Force have not asked for sufficient funds for a sound Reserve program, and what is worse, have failed even to use the funds that were appropriated. In 1947, the Army testified that 30 million dollars would be sufficient for the needs of the Reserve, and in 1948 that 26 million dollars would suffice. In 1947, 56 million dollars was appropriated but only $15,110,969 was spent by the Army and Air Force on its reserve. In 1948, out of $87,828,000 appropriated, only 49 million dollars was spent.

During the same period, the Marine Corps spent $250 per reservist on its Reserve and the Navy $160 per reservist. The Army and Air Force received $56 per reservist but spent only $40.

Is it any wonder that the National Guardsman is reluctant to change his status from membership in a going concern for the mismanagement, poor planning, lack of equipment and general neglect which is the plight of the reservist under regular control?

More People In Their Prime

By Malvina Lindsay

Nation's Best Asset

ONE RESOURCE this country needs in the face of an aging population and a threatening world is more citizenry in the prime of life. It needs more voters free of the callousness and rashness of youth, and of the caution and tired defeatism of old age; more artisans and professional workers who are at the peak of their ability, able to make their greatest contribution to society.

Hence nutritionists are urging that this "best fed" Nation take as a long-range goal the adding of seven years to man's period of greatest productivity. For experiments with animals have shown that this can be done to a large degree through a wise nutrition that would promote earlier maturity and defer the onset of symptoms of senility.

Thus the man or woman who has spent about two thirds of life acquiring the skills, experience and judgment for living is given a longer chance to give back what has been learned. Studies show that in the professions at least most people are 40 to 50 years old before they get their greatest opportunity for achievement. Hence they need physical vigor to back this up and prolong it.

WITH AMERICANS reported to be eating better than ever before it might seem the population was on the way to more vigorous and fruitful middle age. What is more, in the last decade more people began to heed the advice of nutritionists and increased their consumption of milk, eggs, meat, citrus fruits and green and yellow vegetables. And the food supply for 1948 is said to be adequate to provide every person with the needed nutrients.

However, there is a big "if" in this picture, as was pointed out by Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, chief of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, in a recent address at the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference, in which she discussed the goal of a seven-year addenda to middle age.

The "if" involves a better distribution of food according to need, more intelligent diet habits generally, less waste in food and more conservation of the Nation's food resources. Despite present prosperity, many families—one fourth in some cities surveyed—are not spending the $4 to $5 a week per person for groceries that the Bureau of Human Nutrition found necessary at July, 1948, food prices to provide adequate low cost menus. And ignorance of nutrition and of cookery is causing many families that spend adequately to be poorly nourished.

American waste of food—through overeating (as shown by the high proportion of persons overweight); through careless marketing and food handling; through kitchen profligacy; through too large servings in high priced restaurants and at company dinners; through poor cooking in which food nutrients are lost—also will have to be overcome if more people are to be set on the road to more vigorous and prolonged maturity.

LENGTHENING the prime of life is not so simple as merely having middle-aged people improve their food habits. As Dr. H. C. Sherman, noted nutritionist, found in his studies, superior diets are not observable in a few years, nor in the lifetime of one individual nor even in the second generation, but more likely in the third or fourth.

In working toward a long-range goal of a Nation rich in a productive middle-aged population one of the most important immediate steps to be taken, say nutritionists, is not for everyone to rush out and buy a steak, but to increase per capita consumption of milk, green and yellow vegetables and fruits rich in vitamins. Nutrition studies for 17 countries show that consumption of milk, succulent vegetables and fruits taken together are very sensitive indicators of the adequacy of a nation's food supply. In this country, according to Dr. Stiebeling, we could well use up to one fifth more milk, one third more vitamin C fruits and one half more green and yellow vegetables.

The new revised diet, recently recommended by the National Research Council—a diet used by nurses, doctors and dietitians throughout the country as a standard of what people should eat—emphasizes the need of everybody for more calcium, of which milk and milk products are the chief source. The council also recommends generally more calories for young people and less for older ones.

Republican Congress

In your October 23 issue we read in the final paragraph of Mark Sullivan's column regarding our President: "He pressed upon a Congress controlled by his own party."

After 1946, and for all the sessions of two full years, the Republican Eightieth Congress has been in full power. Every committee chairman in both houses has been a Republican.

During that entire period the hatchet men of the House ruled that branch with an iron hand. And, with the notable exception of the Foreign Relations Committee, the same is true for the Senate.

The congressional actions and inactions indicted by the President are the actions and inactions of a Republican Congress.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The North Atlantic Pact

AFTER many months of confidential discussion the project of a pact among the nations on both sides of the Atlantic is ready for formal negotiation. It is a great event. This is not another one of the many devices which have had hastily to be improvised to meet an emergency. This is a recognition at long last that the governments and the peoples are ready to apply the lesson of this bloody and tragic century,—of the two world wars that we have failed to prevent, of the two victories from which we have gotten no peace.

LIPPMANN

The lesson is that the nations of the Atlantic world are one community for war and for peace, and that, therefore, they cannot hope to prevent war, or to wage war successfully, or to make peace after a war, unless they have a united defense and a common diplomacy.

IT IS now plain enough to all who are capable of learning from the experience of two wars that a unified defense, sealed in advance and well organized and equipped, is essential to the conduct of a war in which the Atlantic nations are involved. It is perhaps not so plain, though it is no less true, that without the unity of the Atlantic nations it is not possible to settle these wars after they have been won. Yet this, I believe, is the real and immediate significance of the proposed North Atlantic pact.

This pact is not merely a measure of security. It is essential to a successful settlement of the conflict over Germany between Russia and the West. This is not, I realize, the way the pact is being presented to the public. But this is the real view of those who understand it best, and developments in the next few months will probably make it quite clear.

THE GENERAL view is that the threat of Soviet military aggression induced the five western European countries to sign the Brussels pact, and that now the United States and Canada are to join the alliance and erect defenses against the invasion of western Europe. Yet what is going to happen to the project if in the next few months, before the pact can be ratified and implemented by Congress, the Russians, instead of menacing western Europe by concentrating troops and stockpiling supplies, offer to withdraw from Germany or actually begin to pull back their armies? There are indications that this might happen, and if it does, there will be many who think that the North Atlantic pact is no longer so urgently necessary.

Yet it will be no less urgently necessary, even if the Russians reduce their military pressure on western Europe. But since the necessity will not be so obvious, the statesmen of the West will need to be farsighted and forehanded in showing their peoples that the pact is not merely for defense against Russian invasion, that it is at least as necessary if the Russians begin a military withdrawl from the center of Europe. For if the Russians do withdraw, a consummation devoutly to be wished, they will, even at the most, withdraw only behind Poland to their own national frontiers. It is absurd to suppose that the United States would then be haive enough to withdraw across the Atlantic Ocean. The true equivalent of the Russian withdrawal would be an American withdrawal into western Europe. To make that possible a North Atlantic pact is necessary; it would provide the legal and practical means by which American military power can be kept present and ready for the defense of western Europe.

CONCEIVED this way, the pact would put the Atlantic nations in a position to negotiate with the Russians on the crucial issue of the German settlement. The issue will be what military forces, what kind of police, militia, constabulary, are to be authorized by the German peace treaty. The Russians will enter those negotiations with some kind of German military force, disguised perhaps as police, already in being in their zone.

We can offer them a choice; either a treaty signed not only by the Big Four but also by all the neighbors of Germany, which unites and regulates the police and the militia of all the German states and of Germany as a whole,—or the authorization in the western zones of a German military force. Because the western zones are three times as big as the eastern, this German force would be much more powerful than any which the Russians now have or could organize.

THIS MAY induce the Russians to negotiate seriously on a German treaty which regulates the armed forces of Germany after the evacuation. It is hard to see how or why they should refuse if, in fact, they have made up their minds to withdraw their own troops. But they may, of course, refuse.

In that event we must be very much on guard against the facile conclusion, which has long been held in some British and some American circles, that the Germans of the west should be militarized and incorporated into the military system of the western world. If the Germans of the west are rearmed, they will again be the strongest army in Europe, stronger than France, stronger on the ground than Britain and America.

ONCE rearmed, ostensibly against Russia, western Germany will no longer be a satellite, or a subordinate ally of the west. The western Germans will be a European power in their own right, and they will then decide for themselves, without consulting General Clay and General Robertson, remembering Frederick the Great, Bismarck, Rathenau and even Ribbentrop, what role they will play in Europe.

It will not, we may be sure, be that of a docile and self-effacing supporter of the western world.

Textron Reveals Plan to Save 1000 Mill Jobs for 10 Years

Boston, Oct. 27 (AP).—A Senate subcommittee got from Textron today a plan to save 1000 Nashua, N. H., mill jobs for at least 10 years, but then the committee went on hunting answers—"in ABC language"—about a charitable trust that grew from $500 to $4,500,000 between 1937 and now.

The second day of the reopened hearing on the 125-million-dollar textile corporation brought the announcement that Textron plans to sell its two Nashua mills to a nonprofit foundation of "responsible citizens."

Textron announced, too, its plan to lease one of the mills from the new citizens' group for 10 years, thus assuring, Textron President Royal Little said, "steady, long-term employment for 1000 persons."

Start of Investigation

It previously had announced closing brought CIO Nashua mills, which brought CIO Textile Union protests and the current investigation by a committee headed by U. S. Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.).

Once that plane was made public, however, Senator Tobey turned the probe back to the Rhode Island charities trust which Little said he founded with $500 and which he said is now worth $4,500,000.

The two official witnesses were Benjamin R. Burges and Godfrey B. Simonds, both of Providence, R. I., and both trustees of the trust in question.

The third man answering for Textron was President Little, who repeatedly offered additional information from his chair near the witness table.

Democratic National Chairman and Rhode Island Senator J. Howard McGrath was named the third trustee of the Rhode Island fund but he was not called.

Trustees Salaries $15,000

Detailed questioning by the Senator and the two counsel brought out that the three trustees averaged about $15,000 in annual salary from the trust and that the fund has contributed a total of $85,000 to the Providence community fund in the past three years.

Senator Tobey asked about the tax exemptions granted the trust by the Federal Government.

Burges answered:

"We have taken the net income of the trust as a deduction since it is all applied or accumulated for charitable purposes."

At one point Senator Tobey asked flatly:

"Then the reasons trusts are formed is to avoid taxes?"

Little replied: "I don't go along with that, sir."

Committee Counsel Charles W. Tobey, jr., questioned the three in detail about the trust's part in buying and selling the Lonsdale Mills in Rhode Island and summed up with this:

"Then the trust acquired Lonsdale for approximately seven million dollars. Approximately 10 months thereafter the trust made a sale to Textron Inc., of all the Lonsdale stock for approximately $1,500,000."

The trustees agreed that was so, but Simonds said he wanted to point out that distributions to the stockholders totaled over $4,500,000.

Turning to Little, Tobey asked him if he could have taken $500 and invested it himself in such a way as to build it up to $4,500,000.

Unions' Activities Cited

Little said: "I could have done it through a corporation."

Tobey continued: "Why couldn't you have done it as an individual?"

Little answered: "Because of personal income tax."

When Tobey asked if Little favored Federal legislation restricting the investments of charitable trusts, Little said he did but added: "Let's have it for the unions, too. The unions own banks and so forth, and have the same tax exemptions as the charitable trusts. The unions do all the dreadful things the charitable trusts are accused of doing."

Reports Due On D. C. Plan

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission will hear progress reports on two segments of the comprehensive D. C. plan during its two-day meeting beginning today.

The reports which will be presented by Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, commission chairman, will deal with land use and housing.

The commission also will discuss long-range proposals submitted to it by the District Commissioners for a new site for the Cardozo High School. The present site, at 9th and Rhode Island ave., has been deemed inadequate by the Board of Education because of lack of play space. A site between 13th and 14th sts. on S st. has been suggested, but is being opposed on the ground that it takes in a great deal of commercial frontage.

John Nolen, jr., director of planning for NCPPC, said yesterday that one of the proposed sites contains enough acreage to permit construction of a stadium.

This afternoon, commission members will go on a field trip in the Metropolitan District of Prince Georges County. The trip, arranged with the cooperation of Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning for the Prince Georges County section of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The trip will include the Anacostia Park development, entrances to the Capital, postwar housing projects, new shopping centers, and outlying Federal developments. The commission also will inspect the area in Greenbelt that is proposed for inclusion in a 1000-acre regional park.

On Friday, the commission will meet jointly with the Fine Arts Commission to hear reports from the committee on development of the Washington Monument grounds, and from the committee studying an appropriate statue to Jose Artigas, Uruguayan hero.

Ground-Breaking Set

Principal Donald Meagher of Montgomery Hills Junior High School, will be the principal speaker at ground-breaking ceremonies Friday at 1 p. m. for a new gymnasium to be built at the school.

U. S. Support of ITO Charter Urged in House Unit Report

United States support of the proposed International Trade Organization was urged yesterday by a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee.

Representatives Fulton (R., Pa.) and Javits (R., N. Y.) who attended the United Nations conference on trade and employment in Havana a year ago, issued a 25,000-word report recommending that the ITO charter drafted there be submitted to Congress for approval in January.

"We believe that the ITO charter merits a place above party consideration," the report said. "It is not perfect, but it is probably the best obtainable under existing world conditions, and this country's interests will be better served by this trade charter than by none at all."

Fulton and Javits attended the ITO preparatory conference in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1947, and were United States delegates to the Havana meeting.

Their report said this country's European recovery program can not be successful unless world commerce is expanded as the ITO charter provides. Only an international effort to abolish trade restrictions, the report added, can make it possible for Europe to recover economically "without periodic transfusions of foreign aid."

The report said that even though Russia and Argentina so far have refused to participate in the ITO, the United States should assert leadership immediately. Without the United States, the ITO will fail, the Congressmen said.

Tariff League Hits Proposed ITO Charter

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Havana charter for the proposed International Trade Organization came in today for rough handling at the world affairs session of the American Tariff League.

Speakers suggested it be renegotiated with the other 56 nations "on a more sound and constructive basis."

Col. Arthur Besse, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, said there was a general lack of enthusiasm for the charter among the other nations.

"We seek and have sought to tell other nations how to conduct their trade," Besse said. "A not inconsiderable part of the worsening of our relations with Britain and countries of South America and elsewhere may be attributed to our efforts in this direction."

Dr. Howard S. Piquet, senior specialist at the Library of Congress in Washington, suggested "a simpler charter, without definite commitments, and so many major exceptions."

Dr. Eivin H. Killheffer, at the Havana ITO conference as a representative of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, said: "If other nations are unwilling to renegotiate, then the most practical solution would seem to be a resort to bilateral agreements with those nations whose thinking is more nearly like our own."

County Asks Taxi Rule Aid

Baltimore, Oct. 27 (AP).—A Montgomery County spokesman today proposed changing Maryland's motor vehicle act to make it easier for counties to regulate taxicabs.

Albert E. Conradis, public utilities agent in Montgomery, asked the Legislative Council to back an amendment to the act which would enable his county to enforce regulations challenged in court.

A State official explained the effect would be to authorize political subdivisions to regulate cabs without running into conflict with the overall vehicles legislation.

Conradis said he hoped the General Assembly would act quickly.

Taxis are "charging all kinds of fares" in Montgomery County, he told the council.

Conradis said the County Court, overruling a preliminary protest by the commissioners, indicated it regarded as invalid a General Assembly act under which current regulations were adopted.

Proposals to create a State guarantee fund for workmen's compensation, and a new commission to deal with chronic alcoholics were ticketed for further study by the Council.

Hazelton A. Joyce, deputy insurance commissioner, offered a "majority" report, signed by himself and two others, recommending a fund to be built up by stock and mutual companies which insure employers for claims by injured workers.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Something Rotten In Illinois

CHICAGO.—The low point of a campaign that was low enough already has been reached here in this rip-roaring city that Carl Sandburg called hog butcher to the world. It suggests a kind of political bankruptcy which Americans will ignore at their peril.

Childs

On the one hand was President Truman's demagogic speech. It was a crude appeal to the fears and suspicions of the racial minorities that live in Chicago's vast slums.

The words had been written for Candidate Truman and they were utterly out of character. That made the crudity of the appeal more glaring. It underscored the recklessness of the implication that the Republicans were preparing the way for a Hitler.

On the other side we see Candidate Thomas E. Dewey embracing—going out of his way to embrace—Gov. Dwight Green and the Green political machine. This is in the face of the exposure of the corruption of the Green machine in a courageous newspaper, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In column after column beginning in early August the Post-Dispatch has documented the rottenness of the Republican machine in this State. Those stories showed how gambling and vice paid tribute to the Green organization.

They supplemented the report of a committee of the Legislature which showed a year ago how State institutions were being mulcted of millions of dollars. Expert observers believe the "take" of the Republican machine in this State is far greater than the graft of the Pendergast machine in Missouri at the height of its power.

WHAT IS the answer of the Green machine to these charges? It is to set up under the direction of State Attorney General George F. Barrett a grand jury investigation in Peoria, which ends by returning an indictment against Theodore C. Link, reporter who brought to light the charges against the Governor.

That is pretty brazen behavior. In fact, it is so brazen that it may cost Green his reelection in a State that seems certain to go for Dewey.

Green is the creature of the Chicago Tribune. Republican politicians, with good reason to know, say that three weeks before the Republican Convention at Philadelphia Green made a deal with Dewey. In return for delivering the Illinois delegation to Dewey at the right moment, Green was to be nominated Vice President, or if that could not be put over, then he would be made Attorney General in the Dewey Cabinet.

Shades of Harry M. Daugherty! But that little dream went glimmering. Colonel McCormick of the Tribune stepped on it. Later at Philadelphia McCormick, in an interview, said Dewey was such a poor candidate he could not carry 10 States.

THE Post-Dispatch, in a powerful editorial on Sunday, charged that the action of the grand jury in trying to muzzle its reporter was "an act brought by faithless politicians who know that a day of reckoning for their misrule in Illinois is at hand." The Peoria Journal called it a "whitewash" deliberately intended to cover up evidence of crime and corruption uncovered by a previous grand jury.

To give its editorial wider currency, the Post-Dispatch paid to have it reprinted in a number of Illinois papers, including the Tribune, which has consistently distorted and played down the opposition campaign.

The irony is that the Democrats this year have an able candidate for Governor and an able candidate for United States Senator. Adlai Stevenson, whose career has taken him into many fields of activity, has a chance to beat Green. He has won wide support from Republicans sickened by the mess that Green has made in the State.

The Democratic candidate for the Senate is Paul Douglas, college professor and reform councilman in Chicago with a splendid combat record with the Marines. He has somewhat less of a chance to defeat Senator C. Wayland Brooks, the Tribune's Senator, who is clinging hard to Dewey's coattails in the hope of being pulled through.

Billboards splashed around the entire State and paid for out of the huge campaign fund collected by the machine show a handsome picture of Green. The caption underneath says: "The G O O D Governor." That is to make a mockery of words. It is a bad joke flung in the face of the State that produced Abraham Lincoln.

City Center Lunch Room Told to Quit

The District Commissioners yesterday gave the operator of the Municipal Center lunchroom 30 days in which to clear out facilities and return the site to its originally intended use as a police pistol range.

The decision followed 26 months of complaints by District and Federal government officials that the establishment was existing rent-free, without a license and in violation of 14 Health Department regulations.

The operator, Mrs. Zada F. Daniels, of 2480 16th st. nw., could not be reached for comment last night. The lunchroom was opened during World War II to accommodate Federal workers, but has continued since then.

The matter reached the city fathers again this month after being pigeonholed as a result of a request by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barett for the immediate return of the basement lunchroom space so he could use it as a pistol range.

The police head asked the Commissioners to retrieve the space because of the current consideration of the razing of antiquated structures on C st. and Indiana ave. near the Center. A police pistol range is located in one of the buildings.

District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton recommended that Mrs. Daniels be given only 15 days in which to remove the eating facilities, but the Commissioners extended this to 30 days.

Consideration has been given to several alternative proposals for furnishing eating facilities in the Center Building, but cost estimates ranging from $45,000 to $175,000 forced tabling of the plans.

Latest Farming Tricks Shown In Beltsville Demonstration

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The extent to which mechanization has come to the farm was demonstrated to a group of soil conservation experts at the Government's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., yesterday.

Some termed the demonstration "push-button farming." It showed tree-planting machines, a "contour-liner" which marks out contour lines for plowmen, and "scrub-disintegrater" and other time—and labor—saving devices in operation.

The tree-planter was of particular interest to Maryland conservation workers. With it four men can set out more trees in eight hours than 24 could under the old system.

The tree-planter was demonstrated by Fred Gilpin of the West Suburban Sanitary Commission, which owns the only one in Maryland. With it 60 to 65 trees can be planted each minute. Gilpin reported that the commission had planted more than 10,000 trees with it this fall, including six types of pine, locust, ash and poplar.

For years Maryland has lagged behind schedule for reforestation set by the soil conservation authorities. The limited period for replanting—about 30 days—has made carrying out the program impossible.

Harry Dengler, extension forester for Maryland, believes that two such machines could restore Maryland woodlands to meet the conservation goal.

The contractor, mounted on a jeep or tractor, marks contour lines without the use of present surveyor instruments. One machine, according to C. S. Britt, does the work "five times as fast" as the old method.

The scrub-destroyer does the work of a herd of goats in one-tenth the time. On the principle of the bulldozer, it rides through underbrush, grinds it up and restores it to the ground as natural fertilizer.

The demonstration revealed how farms have adopted industrial methods. While the demonstrators were showing the new machines at Beltsville, a panel discussion at Annapolis of Maryland extension workers was considering much the same subjects.

"Too many city people think too many farm people are hicks," nine farmers at the conference said.

One farm wife urged "better public relations to overcome the stigma that is sometimes attached to farming."

She protested that city folk look on farmers as "uneducated, uncouth hicks who are way behind the times, and then added, "farmers nowadays have all the modern conveniences and live as well as city people."

Other farmers urged local groups to demand more county agents for their areas. Dr. Roger B. Corbett, associate director of the extension service, said county agents in Maryland average "10 to 12 hours a day, 6 days a week to their jobs. Many days run up to 16 hours," he said.

6th Montgomery Delegate Favors Charter Reform

Delegate R. Duncan Clark, of Montgomery County, yesterday strongly endorsed the proposed Montgomery County charter which will be voted on next Tuesday.

By his endorsement, Clark becomes the sixth member of the county legislative delegation to support the charter. The other five are Delegates Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., Leona Rush, DeWitt S. Hyde, Julian P. King, and State Senator Roy Tasco Davis.

The seventh member, Delegate John R. Reeves, is vigorously opposed to the charter.

Internes Serving On Ambulances Save D. C. $15,000

The assignment of internes to District Health Department ambulances will save at least $15,000 a year, John P. Sanderson, director of the Hospital Permit Bureau, reported yesterday.

Sanderson said that during the first quarter of the current fiscal year, 1714, or 23.3 per cent of all cases handled, were treated by internes at home, thereby making hospitalization unnecessary.

'Fuel Line' Built In Heart Operation

ually prove itself to be the operation of choice for heart attack patients, Dr. Beck said.

He stressed the importance of successful heart surgery by pointing out that mortality statistics for physicians last year showed that 26.6 per cent died of heart disease, as in contrast to 10 per cent from cancer causes.

The cause of coronary thrombosis has long been known as lack of pure blood to feed heart muscle fibers.

Heart attacks occur, Dr. Beck said, when the two coronary arteries, which stem from the aorta (main artery from the heart) and surround the heart with a network of heart-muscle feeders, begin to clog up.

Initial research was begun on the problem in 1932, financed largely by generous grants from United States Public Health Service, Dr. Beck said. And, by last week's first successful operation on a human, "several thousand" dogs were used in the experiments, he said.

(Apropos of the use of dogs, Dr. Beck stressed that "without animal experimentation we cannot have medical progress . . . Too many well intentioned people have been misdirected against medical work on animals.")

Step by step, Dr. Beck explained the progress toward the new operation:

First, he said, it was found that where slowing of normal heart-feeding process had begun it required but little extra pure blood to the heart feeding system to sustain heart action, but that that little extra supply often meant the difference between life and death.

A technique was then developed whereby the heart feeding system could be augmented by inflammation, surgically induced, of its own feeding arteries. This was accompanied by rasping the heart with surgical files and further irritating the surface by rubbing asbestos powder into it.

The technique was further modified by packing the heart exterior with fatty tissues (rich in blood supply) taken from the abdomen.

The method helped the blood supply to the heart a great deal and an operation was perfected for use on patients, said Dr. Beck. And those patients operated upon were helped, he added.

All this work, he said, was done during the 10-year period preceding the past war. The new technique, of channeling pure blood from the aorta into the vein network of the heart, was developed since the war.

Continuing their experiments with dogs, the researchers found that if an artery were connected up with the sinus vein of the heart this venous system, normally used to carry off the already used blood, could be reversed and would serve instead as an auxiliary feeding system for pure blood from the heart to the heart muscle fibers.

Only in the heart system could this be done, explained Dr. Beck, for there, he said, nature has provided two means for getting rid of used blood. These are the heart vein system, in normal usage, and by seepage of the used blood back into the heart chambers where it can be pumped out again to dissipate into other veins of the body.

The venal feeding process was first tried on dogs by severing the animal's large carotid artery (of the neck) and looping it back to the heart, where it was joined to the heart's sinus vein. It worked for heart feeding purposes, and proved that the vein system could be used to supply pure blood to heart muscle fibers needing it, Dr. Beck said.

A special clamp, originally devised for the now famous blue baby operations, is used to pinch off one side of the aorta for its connection with the new "feeder line." The clamp permits continued flow of blood supply to minimal needs during the operation interval.

The carotid artery of man is too important in its function to supply blood to the head to divert to any other function, he pointed out. But, he said researchers reasoned, why not take a less important vein of the body and connect it with the aorta to the sinus vein. Such expeiments were continued to success with dogs, and last week with man, he concluded.

Dr. Beck, 53 and a native of Pennsylvania, was graduated from Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., and received his M. D. degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1921. Since 1924, he has served with the surgery department of Western Reserve University School of Medicine, in Cleveland, where he headed the special research project on heart diseases.

Idea From Farm

Transfusion Speeded by New Method

Miami, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP).—Surgeons have borrowed from the farmer's book on speeding the transfusion of blood, the Southern Medical Association was told today.

Dr. Curtis J. Lund of New Orleans said:

"A simple method of 'stripping' the rubber tube through which the blood flows, somewhat like a farmer milks a cow, quickly forces the blood into the patient's veins. A pint of blood can be given in five minutes through a single unit.

"Sometimes two or three units are used simultaneously with such technic," he said.

He reported successful transfusions in six cases of shock and hemorrhages associated with childbirth, saying the mothers received anywhere from 7 to 15 pints of blood.

Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, East Bradley la., Chevy Chase, Md., last night was installed as president of the Southern Medical Association at its forty-second annual convention in Miami, Fla.

Dr. Hunter is a native of Arlington County and received his degrees at George Washington University.

GWU and National Institute Launch 3-Way War on Cancer

A triple attack on cancer has been launched at George Washington University under sponsorship of the university's Medical School and the National Cancer Institute, it was announced yesterday.

The attack is only the start of a new cooperative program of clinical research on cancer which will use a ward at the new GWU Hospital especially devoted to the care and study of cancer patients, the sponsors said.

Initial projects now under way include:

1. Research in endocrine and metabolic aspects of cancer of the breast, prostate, uterus, ovaries and testes, including the role of hormones in causing cancer, and possible use of hormones in treatment.

2. Studies in nutritional aspects of stomach cancer, and particularly abnormalities in this type of cancer such as failures to absorb certain foods. The first such study concerns the metabolism of Vitamin A.

3. Study of metabolic aspects of nitrogen-mustard therapy in lymphoid diseases such as Hodgkin's Disease, lymphoma and various forms of leukemia.

A clinical laboratory already has been established and the studies started by staff members of the medical school and the Institute NCI.

Clinic Post Still Unfilled

District Commissioner Guy Mason, unable to find a competent person to head the District's alcoholic clinic program at the $8100 a year salary set by Civil Service, is considering asking Congress to remove the post from Civil Service regulations.

Commissioner Mason said yesterday, in announcing the reappointment of the six-member Citizens' Advisory Committee on Alcoholic Clinics, that a six-month search by Health Department officials and committee members has failed to find an adequate candidate for the post.

"The director must be an experienced doctor, psychiatrist and administrator, all rolled into one, and such a person cannot be found for this salary," Mason declared.

The filling of a vacancy at Gallinger Hospital as head of the psychiatric department is also stymied by low pay, Mason said. Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, District alienist, formerly filled this position as well, but now is scheduled to devote full time to the alienist post as soon as a new man can be found for the psychiatric position, Mason explained.

The advisory committee, which was reappointed for a one-year term to continue its work in advising and consulting in the operations of the clinics, is headed by Col. E. Goring Bliss, assistant general manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Other members are Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital; Mrs. George C. Thorpe, civic leader; Donald C. Clemmer, superintendent of the District Corrections Department; Judge Walter J. Casey of Municipal Court, and the Rev. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist National Memorial Church.

Churches Enlist U. S. Aid on Sites

Some hope that Greenbelt residents soon may have a church of their own came yesterday from the National Housing and Home Finance Agency.

NHHFA officials met with Greenbelt religious representatives yesterday for more than an hour, then announced through Administrator Raymond M. Foley that they will do "what can be done" at present to make church sites available.

NHHFA will ask the Public Housing Administration to prepare the necessary surveys and papers for advertising six sites in Greenbelt for semipublic use.

This use, HHFA officials explained, would restrict the sites to such uses as churches or libraries.

The Rev. Eric T. Braund, minister of the Greenbelt Community Church, who acted as spokesman for the religious leaders, indicated to NHHFA officials that this action would be satisfactory, and that the church groups are prepared to bid on that basis.

Four of the proposed sites are at intervals on Ridge Road in Greenbelt. Other sites are located at the intersection of Hillside and Crescent rds. and on Crescent rd. further north.

Among Greenbelt leaders who attended yesterday's meeting with housing officials were the Rev. Raymond W. Cooke, Greenbelt Methodist Church; Miss Olinda M. Roettiger, representing the Lutheran Church group; Naf Shinderman and Ben Herman, representing the Jewish Community Center; Phillips M. Taylor, treasurer of the Greenbelt Community Church; F. Richard Stuart, representing the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints; Father Victor Dowgiallo and Charles T. McDonald, town manager, representing St. Hugh's Catholic Church.

Norfolk Banker Is Arrested in $50,000 Theft

The FBI announced here last night the arrest in New York City of Clarence M. Markland, jr., 27, Norfolk, Va., bank official sought since Tuesday on the charge that he embazzled $50,000.

The FBI said Markland, office manager of the sales finance department of the Bank of Virginia in Norfolk, admitted appropriating bank funds to use in dice games.

When arrested in a midtown Manhattan hotel, the FBI said, Markland related he had lost or spent all of the money except about $4000.

Markland will be arraigned before a United States Commissioner in New York today as a first step toward returning him to Norfolk.

Rent Rise Pleas Due Under Egress Edict

Landlords can cite the cost of capital improvements made to comply with the District's new egress regulations as a basis for requesting increased rents, District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said yesterday.

"They will have the right to apply, but as to what we will do, that's something else. Each case will have to be decided on its own merits," he declared.

Such costs cannot be entered in lump sum in rent boost petitions, he declared, but must be spread out over a period of years, depending on how long the improvements are likely to be used.

In cases where rent examiners are uncertain how long a period should be considered, experts probably will be called, Cogswell said.

The regulations, which affect about 17,000 structures in the District, will go into effect January 1, 1949. They are primarily intended to improve fire safety facilities and include requirements for enclosing of stairwells, installation of fire resistant doors, emergency lights, exit lights and fire exits.

Whisky Output Down 38 Million Gallons

American distilleries made less whisky in fiscal 1948—the 12 months ended June 30—than in the preceding 12 months, the Internal Revenue Bureau reported yesterday.

Whisky production alone was off 38,397,000 gallons in fiscal 1947, but still came to 129,597,000 gallons.

Suit for $100,000 From Doctor Tried

The District Court trial of the $100,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Kathryn Sinclair Jillson against Dr. Frank S. Caprio began yesterday.

Mrs. Jillson, 39, residing at 1841 R st. nw., charges that Dr. Caprio unjustifiably caused her to be admitted to Gallinger Hospital for psychopathic examination for 12 days in 1945.

She took the witness stand to affirm her soundness of mind. She said she was pregnant at the time and that she kicked and fought with "all my strength" to prevent being taken to the hospital by police. She testified that she suffered a wrenched shoulder, bruises and numerous pains and said that being kept with 3 women in the psychopathic ward "extremely humiliated" her.

In her behalf, two witnesses were called to testify that they knew Mrs. Jillson for many years and that they were convinced of her sanity. Also a court decree of 1946 was produced declaring her to be sane.

The entire affair took place while she was having domestic difficulties with Maj. George Jacob Jillson. Last March, she was awarded a divorce on grounds of cruelty and was given custody of their two children.

Missing Girl Coming Home To Annapolis

LENORE STANHOUSE
Leaves Montreal hotel

Montreal, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A 19-year-old Smith College girl, who said she had been dragged into an automobile and kidnaped by three men, promised police today to go right home to mother.

Police said hours of questioning failed to reveal why Lenore Shanhouse, of Annapolis, Md., fled from the women's college at Northampton, Mass., to a Quebec mountain resort. But they termed her tale of having been kidnaped "completely unfounded."

Tonight Miss Shannhouse was reported staying with friends prior to leaving by air at 7 a. m. tomorrow for Washington, D. C., to join her mother.

The slim brunette vanished from the Smith campus Monday. She spent two days in the Laurentian mountain resort of Ste. Agathe, then turned up in Montreal last night, homeless and broke. She wired her mother for $100, explaining that she had been abducted by three men but now was free and unharmed.

Police found the girl, wearing a green tartar coat and a red and white scarf over her hair, in the lobby of a hotel. They had traced her from hotel to hotel through the night. Because she had neither luggage nor money she had been unable to get a room.

'Axis Sally' Would Call Truman As a Witness

"Axis Sally" wants President Truman to take the District Court witness stand in her behalf when she is tried here on a treason indictment.

"Sally," who is Mildred E. Gillars, alias Mildred Sisk, petitioned the court yesterday to produce the President and the following witnesses for the trial scheduled for November 15:

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley, Henry Morgenthau, jr., Bernard Baruch, Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, David Niles, Walter Winchell, Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, and Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

According to the Government, "Axis Sally" committed treason by broadcasting for the Nazis messages to Allied troops telling them the war was futile.

Her attorney James J. Laughlin asked for a continuance so he can get evidence from Germany.

Missing Man Returns After 12-Hr. Search

Return of a nearly exhausted Washington accountant to his Bethesda home yesterday afternoon ended a 12-hour search by Montgomery County police and firemen.

Police quoted Mrs. Paul F. Craun, 6823 Hillandale rd., as saying her husband told her upon returning: "I don't know where I've been."

The 47-year-old accountant was running a high fever, his clothing torn and face scratched and he collapsed on the floor of his home, police said.

Mrs. Craun reported her husband missing about 9 p. m. Tuesday after he failed to return home at the usual time. She said she called his employer at a Washington dental laboratory and learned he had been discharged Friday.

Fears expressed by Mrs. Craun that her husband may have been despondent over loss of his job caused police and fireman to conduct the search which lasted most of Tuesday night and yesterday.

Craun's locked car was found in a field behind the apartment house in which he lives. The field and a nearby woods were combed by 25 to 30 police and firemen. One policeman, Corpl. James O. Breeden, a private pilot, took to the air for about 30 minutes, flying low over the spot.

Mrs. Craun told police she was placing her husband under the care of a physician. The couple has one child, a 7-year-old daughter.

TWA Seeks to Cancel Constellation Hike

Transcontinental & Western Air announced yesterday that it will cancel the 10-per-cent extra fare now charged on Constellations.

The cancellation will be effective November 1, if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves.

Mental Check Ordered in Dual Killing

Alexandria Police Court Judge James R. Duncan yesterday appointed three doctors to make a mental examination of Herbert D. Alexander, jr., Navy veteran charged with killing his wife and baby last Friday.

The commission was appointed at a hearing in which Alexander was to have been arraigned. However, his court-appointed lawyer, T. Reginald Dyson, said he could not enter a plea because Alexander still appeared to be in a "daze" and could not discuss the case with him.

Duty of the commission, which consists of Drs. James A. Gooch, Thomas L. Lucas and James E. Roberts, all of Alexandria, will be to determine whether Alexander was sane at the time of the killings and at the time he is examined. No further court action will be taken until they report their findings.

Alexander, who is accused of strangling his wife and 18-month-old daughter at their 3908 Elbert ave. apartment, sat looking at his shoes during the 20-minute hearing.

Dyson told the court Alexander, 23, had a history of mental illness dating back to 1943 when he was hospitalized for 14 months in a Navy mental ward. Last August, Dyson said, Alexander was admitted to the Veterans Hospital at Perry Point, Md., after a suicide attempt. Records show he was released two weeks later, Dyson said, at the request of his wife, but against the advice of the medical staff.

38 Suits Planned To Clear School Site

Writs of restitution will be asked in District Court this week for eviction of 211 persons living in 38 homes occupying land designated as the site of the Walker-Jones Elementary School at 1st and L sts. nw.

District Property Officer Paul Chalupsky said previous attempts to remove persons from homes on L, K and 1st sts. nw. to make way for the 24-room structure have failed in the case of the 38 residences and further action is necessary.

Firkusny Performance Is Happy One

By Paul Hume

Czechoslovakia today may have little inspiration for musical activity. But last night's Czech program of the National Symphony declared to an enthusiastic audience the music of a once-flourishing aesthetic center.

Smetana, Dvorak, Martinu and Weinberger were represented with the Bartered Bride Overture, the New World Symphony, a second piano concerto, and a Czech Rhapsody. Czechoslovakia's handsome, musicianly pianist, Rudolf Firkusny, was soloist of the happy event.

Firkusny is an exponent of the finest kind of piano playing. Music is his first concern, and to play it properly, he employs a master technique, sensitive to every shade of meaning in a score. His tone is large and unforced, his conception of a work unfailingly right.

With such an approach, Firkusny, who gave Martinu's concerto its world premier in 1935 in Prague, introduced the work to Washington in the best possible light. It is a highly tonal piece of writing, written full of pianistic passages, but music of real form. Thematically it varies from strong chorales to folkish tunes, not always strikingly original, but soundly constructed.

Kindler and the orchestra provided admirable support for the concerto. The sound of the ensemble was mellow, and the intricacies of a new work did not prevent a lucid persuasive reading.

The orchestra is in better form than at its first concerts. In the dramatic moments of Dvorak's thrice-familiar symphony, the brass were sure and noble, while the woodwinds, called upon for real subtlety, proved themselves mightily. To Kirkpatrick for the beloved English horn solo, generous laurels.

String tone was silken enough, but neither in the Smetana overture, nor the symphony were their attacks clean. It was also disturbing to note the number of times when fortes were read as sforzandos, and tempos were changed with no indication in the score that a different time was desired. Perhaps if Kindler would not insist upon the unnecessary burden of conducting from memory, he would add final desirable details to a conception which is on the whole good.

The audience was loud in its approval of both orchestral and piano music, and recalled conductor and soloist frequently.

Another $55,795.76 yesterday was added to the Red Feather campaign's drive for $4,586,790 in Metropolitan Washington.

Some 200 volunteer workers, at a residential unit luncheon in Hotel Washington, turned in 2368 new gifts—for a total of 6937 gifts and $223,435.55 in contributions to date.

Latest receipts placed the unit at 46.31 per cent of its $482,479 quota.

Parker Issues Warning

"That's good but not good enough," said Mrs. Theodore Wedel, chairman. "There's plenty of money in Washington if we will only see the people."

Chauncey Parker, general campaign chairman, warned that the "campaign as a whole is creeping along." He urged the workers to "get at it . . . and by Friday push this thing well over the 50 per cent mark."

Mrs. Raymond Clapper, author and wife of the late columnist, who was once a social worker, expressed satisfaction that so "many people are realizing the dilemma of our social agencies." Applauding the work of women volunteers, she held that "this kind of responsibility . . . is the reason you have liberty."

Bishop Dun to Speak

She said they were doing a "great job" not only for their neighbors but for the "United States of America and for mankind."

Another luncheon guest was Miss Gica Bobich, Italian newspaperwoman, who has been touring the United States as a representative of the Italian Association of Women Voters.

At Friday's general report luncheon, set for 12:30 p. m. in Hotel Washington, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, will be principal speaker.

Alcantara Caravan Banquet Saturday

The Alcantara Caravan of Alhambra will hold a banquet Saturday at 7:30 p. m. at the Hotel Washington in honor of the James E. Colliflower initiation class.

Among the 80 members in the class to be honored are District Court Judges Matthew F. McGuire and Edward M. Curran, Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn and United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

LIBBY HOLMAN

Libby Holman Blends Song, 'Theater' Well

By Richard L. Coe

In her voice of bottled, blue smoke, Libby Holman last night offered a novel collection of folk songs, blues and modern ballads at Pierce Hall, where her unique entertainment will be repeated tonight.

Libby, whose doings in the musical revues and in private life have been colorful for nearly 20 years, has stripped down to the essentials for her new approach to a song. She works only with an accompanist—a skilled one, Gerald Cook—an adaptable set and some effective lighting arrangements.

She makes her entrance in a Mainbocher gown, her hair looking like several hundred black balls of wire wool. Her voice, in this simplicity of setting, is clearer, better understood than it has been in her more recent stage musicals. Her material is that blend of the simple and the sophisticated which has lately given to our American folk and blues songs the adulation of the intelligensia bobby-soxers. In her unique, newly chosen field, Miss Holman is a first lady.

Her program ranges through that lovely Skye song, "I Know Where I'm Going," to "Smokey" and a New Orleans classic, "The House of the Rising Sun." Her originality is at its best in the modern group of "Blue Mountain Ballads" written by Tennessee Williams and Paul Bowles.

But, remembering "Moanin' Low" and all those years of the bleeding heart leaning against scores of proscenium arches, Libby's audience last night was happiest when the throbbing low notes slid round shoutin' and blue numbers, "Evil Hearted Me," "I the Evening" and "Buked an Scorned."

In a town so completely without theater, it is an added pleasure to hear and to see a live artist blending song and theater. And it's also something of a surprise to find that perhaps the evocative Miss Holman is becoming the Yvette Guilbert of her native rhythms.

The program is the first of a series of theatrical evenings planned by Productions, Inc., where seats for tonight's performance may be reserved at Hudson 9288.

D. C. Families Retain Lead in Life Insurance

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington families again lead the Nation in average ownership of life insurance with $7400 per family reported on January 1.

This was an increase of $200 per local family and an aggregate gain of nearly 100 million during the year, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Delaware and New York families were second, each with $7100.

The average for all American families at the start of this year was $4700, up $300 from the previous year and $700 greater than two years prior. This year's average is about $1400, or 42 per cent greater than that for United States families at the start of the war.

Altogether, there is $1,697,278,000 life insurance in force in the District of Columbia.

Maryland families with a total of $3,109,074,000 average $5300 each. Virginia families with a total of $3,079,294,000 average $4200 each.

These averages are based on preliminary figures of aggregate life insurance owned by States at the start of this year, prepared by the Spectator Yearbook.

IBA NOMINATIONS: Two Washingtonians will serve as leaders next year in the Southeastern Group of the Investment Bankers Association. James H. Lemon of Johnston, Lemon & Co. has been nominated as chairman of the group and William W. Mackall of Mackall & Co has been nominated for a three-year term on the executive committee. Unopposed, their election will take place at the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the group November 5 in Baltimore. Other nominations of the IBA group are: Joseph W. Sener, Baltimore, vice chairman; W. Peyton May, Norfolk, vice chairman; W. Carroll Mead, Baltimore, secretary-treasurer, and Edward K. Dunn, Baltimore, for a one-year term on the executive committee.

AIR COACH: Capital Airlines announced yesterday it will begin an early morning "air coach" service November 4 between New York-Pittsburgh-Chicago at about two-thirds cost of present rates. The New York-Chicago fare will be $29.60. This compares with the regular airline fare of $44.10 and a railroad coach fare of $27.30.

Trans World Airline announced that it is asking Civil Aeronautics Board permission to remove the 10 per cent extra fare charged for Constellation service, beginning next Monday.

CONFERENCE: The newly formed Washington Chapter, Association of American Executives, will receive its charter tomorrow at a conference in the Statler. By-laws will be adopted and officers elected. Following the business meeting, these speakers are scheduled: Leonard W. Trester, president of the American Public Relations Association; Dr. J. Freeman Pyle of the University of Maryland, and Dr. Arthur E. Burns, George Washington University. Appointment of committees will be announced. Lee Lloyd of the War Assets Administration will act as general chairman. Carl Henry Monsess, president of the national association, will present the local group with its charter.

REVERSAL: A complete reversal of the economic cycle in the savings and loan business was emphasized by F. Willson Camp, secretary of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, in his recent annual report. From 1935 until this year, loan institutions "were under constant pressure to secure sufficient desirable loans to absorb the funds offered . . . for investment," Camp pointed out. Now, he added, "we have a situation in which associations generally are seeking investment funds and are culling their loan applications carefully."

EARNINGS: Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. reported net income of 103 million dollars for the first nine months this year, equal to $3.30 a common share, compared with 66 million dollars or $2.12 in the same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Halloween Spooks Photogenic, But Not for Shaking Camera

By Ollie Atkins

SPOOKS, hobgoblins and fat-faced pumpkins, which will invade the scene this weekend, are photogenic subjects for your camera if the trick-or-treat boys will give you time to capture the Halloween freaks.

To photograph the eerie characters in their dimly lighted atmosphere, however, time exposures will be necessary and your camera must rest securely on a tripod or other firm support.

For proper exposure with simply a candle in the typical toothy pumpkin, I suggest a half second at F/8 on fast films. with box cameras and films like Verichrome, increase the exposure to 1 second at F/8, or whatever is your largest lens aperture. This will give you good exposure of the "face" itself, but everything else will be in darkness unless flood or high wattage fill-in illumination is used to light surrounding objects.

The kids who buzz your doorbells will always pose for pictures, but unless you have flash bulbs on hand your efforts will be useless.

To make "ghost" pictures, expose your negative with side lighting eliminating all background detail and see that the "real life" subject is confined to one section

To make "ghost" pictures, expose your negative with side lighting eliminating all background detail and see that the "real life" subject is confined to one section of the negative. A sketch on the ground glass of your camera will help you in this respect. Then dub in your spook by placing it on the underexposed portion of your negative.

This double exposure method is the most successful and can also be done on the printing easel, but with much more effort. When adding your ghost exposure to the negative, make this exposure out-of-doors at night with no lighting on backgrounds and entirely away from all backgrounds when possible.

Especially if you have children, you will enjoy making a few Halloween pictures. They are always wonderful additions to the family picture book. Everyone I've ever met likes to brag about the gags he pulled as a kid on this holiday, which is the bane of all car owners. But get your camera gear lined up and ready for instant shooting, for the kids will be nervous if you hamper their candy soliciting for the sake of mere pictures.

NOTICE to movie fans—a complete line of Kodak Cine Ektar lenses—the first series of professional type, high-aperture, 16-mm. camera lenses ever manufactured in the United States—is announced by the Eastman Kodak Co.

The seven lenses incorporate the latest types of optical glass and the newest developments in lens design and manufacturing. The series has been designed in geometrical progression, each focal length bearing a constant ratio to the next below it or above it in the series.

It is expected that the lenses will make optical history. Although all of them are fast—one opens to F/1.6—even at their widest apertures they meet extremely high standards of definition and edge-to-edge sharpness. They place within the range of the 16-mm. movie maker every lens needed for all movie making situations.

A WHILE back this column reported that the Foton, Bell & Howell's new 35-mm. camera, was tagged at an expensive $700. (By the way, I hear Fuller & D'Albert has ordered one.) Now we announce the world's most expensive picture magazine—the Nation's Heritage. It comes out every two months and costs a mere $150 a year or $180 if you buy it at your local newsstand's price of $30 a copy. I hear the editors of Life are not at all worried, even with their new price of 20 cents a copy.

One on the Aisle—

'Red River' Dust Almost Tangible

By Richard L. Coe

YOU CAN GIVE three cheers for "Red River," a swell, leathery picture which arrives today at the Palace.

This is the story of some Texans in 1865 who take a herd of cattle up to Kansas. John Wayne, who's used to such roles, is the determined leader of this band, and Montgomery Clift, the fellow you liked so much in "The Search," is his sidekick. With a crackling good cast abetting them, Wayne and Clift—plus about 10,000 cattle—make this one of the year's top pictures.

The key to "Red River," though, is its atmosphere, which has been superlatively achieved by Director Howard Hawks. As much as anyone, Hawks is the star of this bang-up film. In the last quarter you get the inevitable romantic angle, an angle which seems pretty absurd stacked alongside the rest of the film, but the hell-for-leather atmosphere doesn't completely disappear.

By atmosphere, I mean you feel a part of this husky horde which sets out from Texas to do the impossible. The dust all but gets in your eyes as the trek stumbles along, closing in on a stampede, slogging along through weeks of rain and finally taking that long chance that there'll be a railroad in Kansas, where their beef will bring a price that Civil War devastation has made impossible in the South.

Then, too, to complement the shifting panorama—an endless kaleidoscope of desolate beauty—Dimitri Tiomkin has written a corking good score that will make your pulses beat. They touted Tiomkin's "Duel in the Sun" music, which was overdoing what he achieved. But in "Red River," he's given Director Hawks music that's as fascinating to listen to as Cameraman Russell Harlen's scenes are stunning to watch.

"RED RIVER." United Artists release produced and directed by Howard Hawks. Screen play by Borden Chase and Charles Schnee from Chase's Saturday Evening Post story, "The Chisholm Trail." Music composed and directed by Dimitri Tiomkin. Photographed by Russell Harlan. At the Palace.

Focus on Wayne and Clift

The story concerns Wayne's determined effort to found the greatest Texas ranch in Texas. One of his two associates is his salty tongued cook, Walter Brennan. The other is a young lad who escaped the Indians when Wayne left an ill-fated saravan to set out on his own. The lad grows into Montgomery Clift, and between him and Wayne springs the love of a father and son.

Ambition makes Wayne ruthless to the point of killing the men who get in his way; you'll find him several times making corpses of living human beings and promising to read Scripture over them in the morning. Clift finally keeps him from pulling this once too often, but it means taking over command from Wayne and running the risk of more trouble.

Into this melee—during an Indian attack on a covered wagon convoy—Clift meets a girl and the picture very nearly meets its doom. She's an outspoken gal, this one, and a bit too typically Hollywood for such a realistic film as this, but the atmosphere holds pretty well. The final struggle between the younger man and the older man doesn't in the least depend on this trite puppet (acted by Joanne Dru), and you resent her appearance in a story which otherwise is so sturdy.

Exciting Stampede

The 100-day trek is almost daringly detailed. You get a deal of the monotonous drudgery which so spectacular a journey demanded, but you also get the most exciting stampede you'll recall seeing on a screen, you watch a fascinating dusk as 9000 head of cattle are led across the wide Red River, you get the thrill of discovery as you watch the herd meet an Iron Horse, bound into beef-hungry Abilene.

It is the sort of picture, too, that makes you marvel at the planning it takes to make a large-scale film, the imagination which planned it (from a Saturday Evening Post story, "The Chisholm Trail," by Borden Chase), the grit that carried it out and the dovetailing which fitted together the component parts of sight and sound.

I've seen no comparison of "Red River" with "The Overlanders," an Australian film on much the same subject which I unfortunately missed during the summer of 1947, so I can do no more than wonder about their similarities. I do know, though, that Wayne and Clift are exceptionally fine and that Director Hawks has achieved a picture of which Hollywood can well be proud.

For "Red River" gives you people that seem like people, dust that seems like dust and the feeling that you're being taken out of yourself, become, if you will, a Texas cattle-herder of 80-odd years ago. And that takes good viviemaking. That it loses faith in itself for the injection of stereotyped romance into the final half-hour is merely unfortunate, not fatal.

NEWCOMER: Montgomery Clift, on the New York stage since he was 13, makes his second screen appearance in "Red River," the leathery Texas tribute at the Palace, which today celebrates Texas Day. Clift's first screen role was the helpful sergeant in "The Search."

GUINN WILLIAMS, speaking of Texas, has just left town after a several days' visit with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Raymond Wire of Chevy Chase . . . The strapping movie guy who probably will outgrow the nickname "Big Boy" was here for his niece's marriage last Saturday and is bound for Texas to visit his mother before returning to Hollywood . . . It's often forgotten, but Big Boy's dad, Guinn, sr., once was a Congressman from Texas.

"THE RED SHOES" is dropping its intermission by order of J. Arthur Rank . . . New York and Washington, its first American audiences, were tested for the idea that the ballet sequence, as the film's high spot, was the natural place for a breather, but the British mogul feels that "the film's cumulative power should continue unabated." . . . Some audiences, it seems, were baffled by a movie with an intermission . . . The film, by the way, is following the "Hamlet" pattern by offering Saturday and Sunday showings at 5:30 as well as the regular 2:30 and 8:30 showings.

RUBINOFF and his Stradivarius will offer a concert at Lisner Auditorium for the Boys Clubs of Washington Friday, November 5 . . . The evening is being sponsored by the National Capital Optimist Club, with tickets at the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. . . . Rubinoff's program will include the first movement of the Mendelssohn Concerto, his own Dance of the Russian Peasant, the Warsaw Concerto, "Don't Fence Me in" and a Boogie-Woogie Etude.

HALLOWEEN gets ushered in early with a special party tonight at the Stagecrafters Club . . . Saturday afternoon at 3, Uncle Dave Ginsburg will hold his annual costume contest for youngsters on the stage of the Cheverly, with prizes for the most original, funniest and most elaborate costumes . . . "Escape," with Rex Harrison and Peggy Cummins, is playing a special date at the Apex ending tonight . . . Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, writes in praise of the Pix's "No Greater Sin": "I join with a number of Washington's outstanding laymen and women who give it their hearty approval." . . . Walter Abel, the stage-screen pipe-n-tweeds type, at the Carlton yesterday.

JOHNNY BAKER, the old Southern Cal. guard whose name lives in infamy at South Bend, Ind., is a Washington visitor this weekend. He is here on business for Denver University and that would be the business of ending Denver's five-game losing streak. Griffith Stadium is the locale of the effort, tomorrow evening is the date, and Georgetown the party of the second part.

POVICH

Baker is the head coach at Denver, with multiple spots on his coaching record so far and eager to cure a badly unarrested case of failure this season. But back in 1931 he single-footedly beat a great Notre Dame team. The scoreboard was showing a 14-13 victory for the Irish when Baker was hauled out of the line by the Trojans and told to place kick a 30-yard field goal from a sharp angle, which he did. Southern California enshrined his No. 30 jersey for that deed, and no Trojan football player has since worn that number.

Denver's backfield coach and chief assistant to Baker is better known to Washington football audiences, however. He is Bob Seymour, the old Redskin of happier Redskin days when they had a running attack and Seymour's bone-shattering charges were audible in the field seats. Three seasons ago Seymour jumped to the Los Angeles Dons, of the All-America Conference, with pleasure.

THE ALTIMETER says Denver is a mile high, but at this point the Denver U. alumni are not at all high on their football team which, after beating Colorado Mines, 33-0, went into a prolonged reverse. Kansas licked 'em 40-0. Oklahoma A. and M. did it, 27-7. The Colorado Aggies whupped 'em 14-10. Utah gave 'em a 17-0 beating, and the latest indignity was a 33-22 licking by St. Mary's.

There have be "Goodbye Johnny" signs making their appearance in Denver, as yet, perhaps because he has a two-year contract, but the other day he got an indication of the public pulse after a peek at the contents of a package that came to him through the mails. It contained a batch of pink panties with the suggestion that he had that kind of a football team.

Most of Denver's troubles, though, have been second-half troubles. They had Oklahoma A. and M. tied at the half, 7-7. And they were leading the Colorado Aggies ah late as the fourth quarter. Against Utah, it was 0-0 in the third quarter, and at half time they were still threatening to beat St. Mary's.

FUMBLES, THEIR OWN, have been ruining Denver. "We've been fumbling the ball in the darndest places, usually deep in our own territory," reports Roger Rambeaux, the team's advance man. "Our kids, though, are still strong for Baker. There's still plenty of spirit, and they don't see any point to losing any more games. We could start winning again Friday night."

That 40-0 defeat by Kansas was rough, says Rambeaux. "Dick Gilman of Kansas threw four touchdown passes that were caught on their finger tips by Kansas eligibles under full stride with the throttle wide open and we had no defense for that kind of football. After that game, Bob Seymour said he knew how the Redskin coaches felt about it the day the Bears won the 73-0 game. 'Now I know that the coaches feel worse than the players after a thing like this,' Seymour said."

Denver has Georgetown well scouted and holds high respect for Billy Conn of the Hoyas, but they doubt that he will be the best back on the field. Their own man, Fullback Andy Pavich, the only 200-pounder in their backfield, is as much of a threat, they say. Pavich is the workhorse of the club and a quick-kicking specialist.

THEY PLAY a strange sort of T-formation, in fact downright peculiar in that their quarterback, Jack Girtin, doesn't pass. "That's what we're up against, a T-formation quarterback who doesn't throw the ball," said Rambeaux. "When Girtin is in there, everybody knows we're running. But he's a smart play-caller and keeps our club hepped up and Baker is willing to have him in there despite the lack of deception."

But according to Georgetown, Denver doesn't really have the right to call itself a T-formation team. Up at the Hilltop they say it's more of a single and double-wing outfit. "Girtin is in motion half the time. When he's in motion to the strong side, they're a single-wing club. If he goes in motion to the weak side, we're playing a double-wing team. We don't trust them at all."

Another thing Georgetown is wary about is Denver's 32-22 defeat by St. Mary's. "Bad football teams don't score 22 points against St. Mary's" observed Rome Schwagel, the old Georgetown grad.

Chandler Cracks Down, Frees Ten TigerRookies

Cincinnati, Oct. 27 (AP).—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler today wiped 10 ball players off the Detroit American League baseball team's farm rosters and said "beyond any doubt these players were covered and handled contrary to baseball law and procedure."

The club was not fined.

It was the second time in eight years the Detroit club has felt the wrath of the baseball commissioner's office for its farm club operations. In 1940, the Late K. M. Landis, then baseball's boss, delved into the operations of the Tiger system and declared 91 players free agents. At that time the team also had to pay $47,250 damages to 14 other players.

McCoy Freed In 1940

That group freed included Roy Cullenbine, long a major leaguer, and Benny McCoy, who later sold himself to the Philadelphia Athletics for $45,000—and then never lived up to advance notices.

This also was the second time in Chandler's regime that he had cracked down hard on major league owners. On September 1 he levied a $2000 fine against Pittsburgh of the National League for violating the bonus rule. He also hung a $500 punishment on Ray Kennedy, the Pirate farm director.

Chandler said the free-agency will not become effective for 10 days and no club will be permitted to contract them or accept terms during that time. The Detroit club, of course, was banned from re-signing the players.

The Detroit club was punished for making oral agreements governing the rights to contracts of players who had been recommended and signed by Detroit scouts to Dallas and Lubbock (Tex.) contracts.

The commissioner said that the Tigers illegally retained control of the players without a contract even after Detroit had ended its working agreements with the two

'We Disagree With Decision,' Evans Says

Detroit, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Billy Evans, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, said tonight he "completely disagrees" with the action of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler in declaring 10 players in the Detroit farm system free agents.

"We accept this decision as final," Evans said, "but we completely disagree with it."

Evans denied that Detroit had "illegally" retained control of the players although a connection with the Dallas club of the Texas League had been severed.

"When we ended our working agreement with Dallas last December. Evans said, "all players were simply moved to other clubs in the Detroit system under usual baseball procedure."

As to Evans, Chandler replied:

"Billy Evans has had 42 years of honorable service to baseball. He inherited this agreement. He mistakenly believed and undertook to exercise rights with respect to the contracts of these players that the Detroit baseball company did not have and never acquired."

Art Cook Takes U. S. Rifle Crown

Ex-Marine Reeves Defeats Benner For Pistol Title

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Quantico, Va., Oct. 27.—They put an Olympic champion on the spot at the Marine Corps base today, but li'l Arthur Cook proved a true one and refused to be perturbed.

All the 20-year-old Washington, D. C. lad did was proceed methodically to unseat G. Wayne Moore, Washington; Pa., from the National Rifle title throne he occupied for two successive years.

Cook fired a 3150 score out of a possible 3200. Moore, at 41, old enough to be Cookie's father, finished a mere three points behind.

Reeves Regains Title

Reeves, 38 (as in calibex), regained the championship he lost last year to Army T/Sergt. Heulet Benner. Benner, who appropriately guards our gold at Fort Knox, Ky., was runnerup, but Reeves won in convincing fashion, scoring 2611 to Benner's 2590.

Cook's victory was wonderful, indeed. At 20, the fuzzy-cheeked University of Maryland junior would have little trouble getting into the movies with a child's ticket.

He already had proved himself the world's best small-bore marksman with his Olympic gold medal but today he had to beat his own country's best. It was no easy feat.

Arthur, wearing his Boy Scouts of America shirt (he's assistant scoutmaster of Troop 33), was the center of attraction after the match. He was mobbed by newsreel and newspaper photographers.

Cookie was polite to all of them, but when he finally broke away he confessed to be worrying about missing classes at the University of Maryland where he's studying mechanical engineering.

Said youthful Cook, "Gee, I have to get back to school. I have an English test Thursday."

Perkins Fought Beside Chinese

Third in the rifle competition, and only a point behind Moore, was Robert Perkins, Fresno, Calif. Perkins hadn't lost a tournament since finishing second to Moore in the National Rifle Association's championship last year.

There's a good story in Reeves, pistol champion, too. The former marine did a peacetime hitch as an enlisted man from 1932-37. Now a Marine Corps Reserve major, he finally fought his way out of Quantico where he was a firearms specialist and saw overseas duty during World War II.

Reeves was with Chinese guerilla troops in 1944 and 1945.

Behind runnerup Benner was Marine Lieut. Col. Walter Walsh, of Arlington, who fired a 2574 card. Marine Capt. Thurman Barrier, of Washington, who was tied for the lead at the two thirds mark with Benner, had tough luck today. Because of mechanical difficulty, he lost ground in the rapid-firing and finished out of the first 10.

TWENTY-YEAR-OLD ARTHUR COOK AFTER WINNING NATIONAL RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIP

Dickey Named Coach in New Yankee Move

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—The New York Yankees completed their fall housecleaning today by bringing back Bill Dickey, great former catcher, to round out Manager Casey Stengel's coaching staff.

Dickey, who has been out of baseball for a year, said "it feels like coming back home—I feel all choked up about it."

The tall man who for nearly 20 years helped club the Yanks to baseball glory joins three other old Yankees — Frank Crosetti, Jim Turner and Johnny Neun — on Stengel's brain trust.

Announcement of Dickey's appointment came only a few hours after word that Chuck Dressen, last of the club's holdover coaches under the two-year regime of Bucky Harris, had signed to Manage the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast League.

General Manager George Weiss said he didn't know exactly what Dickey's duties would be—whether he would coach on the baselines or concentrate on developing pitchers.

"All I know is that Stengel jumped at the chance to get him.

"Whatever Stengel wants me to do is okay," Dickey said. "I'm really glad to be back with the Yanks. I turned down a job with another big league club last season."

At Uline's Arena

Jack Choice To Win From Boon Tonight

It's a boon or bust tonight for former lightweight champion Beau Jack, who fights Eric Boon of Great Britain at approximately 10 o'clock at Uline Arena.

Undismayed by his recent TKO loss to Champion Ike Williams, the Beau, who lost his crown in 1944, is launching another comeback. He's a 7-5 favorite tonight.

One of those who disputes the odds is Ray Arcel, who once trained Jack, and who now manages the Briton. Arcel calls Boon a "stronger, tougher, harder hitter than Tony Janiro," who was the last person to stop Jack before Williams did.

This is the Beau's second appearance in Washington in recent months. He outpointed Janiro in a return bout here in May before losing his title chance against William in Philadelphia.

Though this will be Boon's first fight in the United States, he's done considerable campaigning elsewhere and with notable success. He's a former lightweight and welterweight champ of Great Britain and has been a professional for 12 years.

Twenty-eight years old now, he has 235 bouts behind him and he's won all but 20. His last ring appearance was in Montreal six weeks or so ago, and he lost by a TKO to Johnny Greco because of a cut eye.

A six-round heavyweight bout will top the preliminary card. Elkins Brothers, a local boy, will face Willie Champion, former Golden Gloves champion of Cleveland.

Bob Baldwin and King David will tussle in a six-round middleweight match. And Jackie Ford and Gransdale Jones will clash in a welterweight four rounder. Another four rounder is to be announced. First bout is at 8:30.

Fit Denver Squad Arrives, Practices At Griffith Stadium

Denver University's football squad arrived here yesterday and Coach Johnny Baker pronounced it more fit than it's been all year.

The thirty-seven gridders came in by plane at 3:30 p. m. and immediately went out to Griffith Stadium for a workout. They're scheduled to go back tonight for another workout before they face Georgetown there tomorrow.

Denver, trying to break a five-game losing streak, has been plagued by injuries all season. But the Pioneers are ready to spoil Hoya hopes for getting over the .500 mark.

At the moment, Denver's starting backfield is slated to be Jack Girtin, quarterback; Jim Jordan, Negro star, and Bill Fitchie, halfbacks, and Andy Pavich, fullback. (Pavich, Mountain States Conference choice last year, hasn't played much since Denver won its opener from Colorado Mines, 41-0.

Redskins Buy Halfback Madarik From Detroit

Elmer Madarik, four-year veteran of the Detroit Lions' backfield, was bought yesterday by the Washington Redskins and will start the game against Boston at Griffith Stadium on Sunday.

Madarik, a graduate of Detroit University, saw little action at halfback with the Lions this season. He is a five-foot-eleven-inch 200-pounder, is 25 years old. He doubled as both ball carrier and passer for the Lions.

Salary Talk With Griffith On Nov. 13 Is Arranged

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The 1949 plans of the Washington Baseball Club include the familiar figure of Buddy Lewis, now ready to end his one-year retirement of the game and rejoin the Nats.

At his Gastonia, N. C., home last night, Lewis told The Washington Post "I'll be in Washington to talk terms with Mr. Griffith in a couple of weeks."

Washington Owner Clark Griffith attempted repeatedly last season to lure Lewis out of retirement without success. A few days ago, Lewis hinted to Griffith that he was ready to make a comeback.

Little difficulty is expected in the salary talks between Lewis and Griffith. The Nats' president, desperate for hitting power in the outfield, highly esteems Lewis' run-producing talents.

Eager to Play Again

Lewis, now 32, declared he is eager to play ball again. "That back trouble I had at the end of the 1946 season doesn't bother me any more," he said.

Originally, Lewis offered his back injury as an excuse for retiring last spring when he declined to join the Nats in Florida. Later, however, he admitted that his chief reason for quitting the game was to devote more time to his Gastonia business interests that included a thriving automobile agency.

"I'll be in Washington to see North Carolina play the Maryland football team on November 13," said Lewis, "and that is when I expect to talk with Mr. Griffith. I've told him I'll be ready to talk then." It isn't definite that I will play ball again but I like the idea."

Lewis' clutch hitting made him a long-time favorite of Griffith, and his portrait still adorns the desk of the Washington owner. It shows Lewis as a captain in the Air Force, standing beside the plane which he named "The Old Fox" in tribute to the Washington owner. He flew 351 missions over the Hump in India.

Rejoined Nats In 1946

Following his discharge from the service in 1946, Lewis rejoined the Nats and displayed no sign of slowing up. He batted .291 and led the club in producing runs. Handicapped by his injury in 1947, his .300 average slumped to .262 in the late weeks.

Lewis joined the Nats originally in 1935 as the 19-year-old rookie sensation from Chattanooga where he was a .303 hitter. In 1936, he became the Nats' regular third baseman and four years later shifted to the outfield. When he went into the Air Force in 1941, he had a .304 batting average for his six-year career in the majors.

Davis Wins Post Football Contest

Commerce Employe Misses One Game— Penn State Tie

Dean H. Davis, 37-year-old Falls Church Government employe, knows now how these football teams feel that win by a point.

That's exactly what he did in last week's Washington Post Pick-the-Winners football contest.

Davis missed only the Penn State-Michigan State tie and so did runnerup Robert Feather, 1823 16th st. nw. Davis predicted a 20-13 Army over Cornell score; Feather's score was Army, 26-20.

The actual score was Army, 27; Cornell, 6. This meant that Davis missed both teams by 14 points—and Feather by 15.

Winner of one of the closest contests in the two-year history, Davis works as a tariff examiner with the Interstate Commerce Commission. He lives with his wife at 1104 Custis Parkway, Falls Church, Va.

Said the happy victor, "I'm really thrilled about this—it's one of the few things I've ever won. I would not ask for a nicer present than a trip for two to the Army-Navy game."

In addition to that all-expense trip for two to the service classic at Philadelphia, November 27, Davis also will receive from The Washington Post four tickets to the Boston Yanks-Redskin game.

Davis was a 160-pound freshman end at Illinois in 1929.

DEAN DAVIS, TOPS IN PICK-THE-WINNERS CONTEST

Of the upsets he predicted, he's proudest of selecting Illinois over Purdue. The Illini won that one, 16-6.

Said Davis, the old grad, "It really paid ot be sentimental. I thought the boys at Champlain were overdue for one."

Irisen Captures Georgetown Purse at Laurel, Paying $7.20

Dixie Notes

Virginia Set For Princeton Air Attack

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—Virginia had its pass defense checked today for the approaching Princeton game. The Cavaliers found receivers running from the deceptive Tiger single wing difficult to follow.

Repeating the practice program of the past several days, Coach Art Guepe also worked hard on a running, passing noncontact drill. Joe McCary and Jack Michels, who have better than 50 per cent throwing efficiency, mixed passing with ball carrying.

Optimistic Penn Foe

Lexington, Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis predicted today that his Washington and Lee Generals would "play a good game Saturday against Pennsylvania."

"Of course, we know Penn is far out of our class, but our boys have shown they mean business this week and we will play the best brand of ball we know."

Indians Lose Back

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—Sophomore Wingback Bob Reinerth of Norfolk, Va., will be out of William and Mary's lineup Saturday when the Indians meet the University of Richmond here in a Southern Conference game. He was hurt against V.P.I. two weeks ago.

Little Harp Trails by 2 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 27.—Mrs. O. L. Nyberg's Irisen, a brown filly, which seldom runs a bad race, turned in one of her better efforts today to win the Georgetown Purse, featuring the final Wednesday program of the 25-day session here. The daughter of Sweep Like finished two lengths in advance of the Shamrock Stable's Little Harp, which had a neck margin over Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Dr. Almac for place money.

A crowd of 11,000 took advantage of a summer-like afternoon to see the sport and watched Irisen, ridden by Apprentice Willie Gilbert, step the 6 furlongs over a fast track in 1:11 3-5. Backers of the 4-year-old collected a $7.20 mutuel.

The victory was hte fifth of the season for Irisen in 18 tries. Her successes have come in allowance races. The filly having failed so far in 1948 to win in stake company.

Apprentice Gilbert not only won the day's feature but came back in the next event to take the secondary offering, the Olney Purse. He had the mount on Royal Lily and kept the daughter of Bull Dog on top virtually all the way. W. L. Brann's Laurina was second with the Rarco Stable's Dismal Key third in the field of nine going a mile and a sixteenth. Clocked in 1:46 2/5, Royal Lily returned a $20.80 mutuel.

The program brought another sizable pay-off on the daily double, backers of the 4-and-3 combination taking down $252.

R. A. McConnell's Mint Tulip won the first race at $8.40 and Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Pam Light survived a photo finish to win the second test at $35.40. Jockey J. Robertson rode both horses.

Suspensions of two jockeys were announced by the stewards. Jockeys Bobby Strange and George Cardoza were set down for five days each. Both were accused of causing jams. Strange's case involved the winner of today's fourth race, Beverley Broun's Magna Charta. Cardoza was disciplined as the result of his ride aboard Lady Pam in yesterday's eighth race.

In the seventh race, Gilbert rode his third straight winner when he piloted Turnabout to the tune of $89.

We Can Do It, Says Sauer

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 27 (AP).—Navy looked good against the J V. version of Notre Dame's sliding defenses today, and Coach George Sauer said "we could do it"

Notre Dame seeks it 24th straight win Saturday at Baltimore against Navy, which has lost 10 straight.

"They're not invincible," Sauer said after new fullback Al McCully broke loose for a couple of 60-yard dashes. "McCully was running better than he has all year," Sauer said.

He said Navy's downfield and close-line blocking "is improving every day" and "the boys will be pretty well up" for Notre Dame.

Irish Alter Lineup

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP).—Bill Gay and Ernie Zaleskie were named today to share the left halfback position for Notre Dame in its game with Navy Saturday.

Jack Landry, sophomore, also may be shifted from right halfback to bolster left half. Terry Brennan, 3-year veteran, is out with a knee injury.

The Irish concentrated on passing today. Frank Tripucka, Bob Williams and Gerry Begley did the throwing.

25-1 Shot Wins Owner $600,000 In Cambridgeshire

Newmarket, England, Oct. 27 (AP).—Sterope, a 25 to 1 shot ridden by an 18-year-old apprentice jockey, galloped to victory in the Cambridgeshire Stakes today and landed a betting fortune for his owner, J. B. Townley.

Townley, a Preston businessman whose silks have raced only the past three seasons, won 150,000 pounds ($600,000) by backing his 3-year-old bay colt in one of England's biggest betting coups in 50 years.

But the horse and his rider, Dennis Schofield, had to survive a foul claim to make the victory official. The objection, on a charge of crowding, was lodged by Jockey Charlie Smirke, who finished second on Royal Tara, half a length behind.

9 Major 'Perfect' Teams Expected to Stay That Way

Replacing Duke

Terps Add Mich. State As '49 Foe

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

MICHIGAN STATE, which held mighty Michigan to a 13-7 victory and tied previously unbeaten, untied Penn State Saturday, has been added to Maryland's 1949 schedule . . . The Spartans, making a football comeback under Coach Biggie Munn, late of Syracuse, plastered Maryland, 33-14, when the schools last played in 1946 . . . Michigan State replaces Duke on next year's card. The Spartans will meet the Terps here in 1950 . . . N. C. State also returns to the 1949 Maryland schedule after a year's absence. The Wolfpack replaces Miami University . . . There are still two open dates on the schedule and Athletic Director Jim Tatum is dickering with a powerful Eastern team to fill one of them.

THE CROWD of 40,000 who'll watch Maryland meet Miami in the Orange Bowl Friday night will be the largest any Maryland team has ever played before . . . The Terps ended preparations for the tiff yesterday with a three-hour session. Vern Seibert, injured in the Duke game and unable to play against George Washington, was back at his right halfback spot and will probably open against the Hurricanes . . . Another right halfback, Bernie Sniscak, also rejoined the team. He's been out with an injured knee

AL HUDSON, the end who caught the last-minute touchdown pass which brought Miami a thrilling Orange Bowl victory over Holy Cross two years ago, will captain the Hurricances' for their homecoming clash against the Terps . . . Hudson collaborated with Halfback Frank Smith in an 81-yard pass play against Georgia last week

DESPITE THE PRESENCE of Charlie Justice and Hosea Rodgers in the North Carolina lineup, don't expect too much of an offensive show at Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday when Carolina tackles tough Tennessee . . . Tennessee is eighth in the Nation in total defense, Carolina third . . . 12 of the 15 leading offensive teams in the country employ the "T" formation . . . Maryland is sixth in total offense with an average of 388 yards per game, only one less than Army . . . The Terps are also fifth in forward pass defense. The opposition has completed only 17 of 66 passes against them . . .

Tar Heels Face Rugged Tennessee

By Steve Snider
United Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—It looks like a week of grace within the charmed circle for all nine of the Nation's major perfect record football teams.

They all stack up as probable winners again this weekend, although Georgia Tech, Clemson, California and North Carolina tangle with toughies or traditional foes capable of rocking them out of the ranks of the unbeaten and untied.

The remaining five — Army, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Notre Dame and Nevada—figure to carry on with comparative ease. A defeat for any of these five would be hard to top as the upset of the year.

THE UNBEATEN

Army over Virginia Tech—Scoreless Tech has improving defense but not enough.

Georgia Tech over Duke—An edge in the offense. May be tough.

Penn over Washington and Lee—Should be decided early for a change.

Michigan over Illinois — Two touchdowns, but it's a bitter series.

Clemson over Boston College—And no point spot.

North Carolina over Tennessee—Justice and Rodgers should top Vols' new punch.

California over Southern California—A power club Rose Bowl bound.

Notre Dame over Navy—Navy is willing but far from able.

THE EAST

Cornell over Columbia—Banged up by Army, Big Red has enough left.

Dartmouth over Yale—By 14.

Penn State over Colgate—Even easier.

Also: Georgetown over Denver, Boston U. over Syracuse, Brown over Rutgers, Princeton over Virginia, Lehigh over New York U., Lafayette over George Washington, Harvard over Holy Cross, Temple over Bucknell.

THE MIDWEST

Northwestern over Ohio State—Better backs should capture a thriller.

Minnesota over Indiana—Too much defensive armor for this class.

UCLA over Nebraska—Strictly a guess.

Also: Purdue over Marquette, Iowa over Wisconsin, Wichita over Tulsa, Pittsburgh over Western Reserve, Ohio U. over Duquesne, Detroit over Villanova.

THE SOUTH

Georgia over Alabama—Johnny Rauch is the key.

Tulane over Mississippi State—The line oughta do it.

Mississippi over Louisiana State—Should be easy.

THE SOUTHWEST

Texas Christian over Baylor—would be a mild upset.

Southern Methodist over Texas—Taking a chance on Walker and Johnson.

FAR WEST

Stanford over Washington — A Saturday special.

Michigan State over Oregon State—Too much power.

Oregon over St. Mary's—They're singing Van Brocklin's praises.

And Topping Answers Thompson

Grid Yanks Give Flaherty's Successor '49 Pact Already

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Norman (Red) Strader has been signed both as head coach and general manager of the New York Football Yankees in the All-America Conference for next season, President Dan Topping announced today.

Strader, formerly an assistant, took over as coach of the Yankees earlier this season after Ray Flaherty was dismissed. There had been some question of his future with the club until Topping cleared the air.

The Yankee president also took occasion to say a few words about the professional football picture in general.

"When I pointed out last week that football, under the current set-up, was a losing proposition, I did not wish this to be construed as derogatory of any club or individuals," he said.

"I hope we can all make money some day and that we can find the set-up to do so."

Topping was accused last week by Alexis Thompson, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles of the rival National League, of having broken up a projected "peace meeting" between the warring circuits.

10 Players Free Agents

Texas teams in December, 1947.

"Because of the fact that these players have been covered and mishandled, and their contracts handled by officials of the Detroit Baseball Co. without any authority and contrary to laws of baseball, the players are declared free agents," said Chandler.

Today's action by Chandler deprives the Tigers of only one player who was in line for a major league trial in training camp next spring.

He is Ossie Kolwe, a pitcher who was with Durham in the Piedmont League last season and whose contract was transferred to Detroit at the close of the 1948 season.

Besides Kolwe the best prospects appeared to be Pitcher Paul Hinrichs, who won nine games and lost eight last season for Dallas in the Texas League, working in 38 games; Infielder Bill Serena, who played 62 games for Buffalo of the International League and batted .261, and Jerry Ahrens, 19-year-old righthander pitcher with Flint's Central League champions, who won eight games and lost four.

Among the other players made free agents, Clifford (Mike) Dooley batted .244 in 1948 as a Flint catcher, Righthand Pitcher Bill McDonald, also of Flint, won 15 games and lost 7, and Zeke Wilemon hit .276 in the Flint outfield.

Mack Marks 48th Year as A's Pilot

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A volume containing congratulatory letters from the Governors of the 48 States was presented to Connie Mack today on completion of his forty-eighth year as Philadelphia Athletics' manager.

The presentation was made by Mayor Samuel in City Hall. The letters praised the 85-year-old Mack as an inspiration to the youth of America.

Gino Garibaldi Pinned By Dutch Schweigert

Two Colonial Linemen Out With Injuries

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington's "fightin' 15" were reduced by 2 yesterday as Tackle Jim Feula and Guard Howie Deiderich were ordered to sit out Saturday's Lafayette game because of injuries.

Both of these boys play on the left side of the line. Their loss, together with the incapacity of Regular Left End Bill Szanyi, will take much of the starch out of the port side of the Colonial line. Szanyi, with chest bruises, missed the Maryland game, but may test himself for a few plays at Easton, Pa.

Feula, 195-pound successor to Carl Butkus, now of the Redskins, has held up the left side of the line. He suffered a severe knee injury in the Terp game. Deiderich, who's played mostly on defense, wrenched his knee against the Terps.

As a result of the injuries, three Washington boys may get a chance to see more action. Clarence Drayer, the McKinley Tech alumnus, who has been the No. 3 guard, is expected to fill in for Deiderich.

Duke Mathieson of Anacostia, and Johnny Grinnell, Washington-Lee, a Arlington boy, are expected to get a crack at Feula's spot. Grinnell has been alternating at center with Tal Dredge, and has been used as a halfback on defense.

Bill Rorer Signs With Tribe Farm

Billy Rorer, 18-year-old Alexandria athlete, yesterday was signed to a Class A Wilkes-Barre, Pa., contract by Cleveland Indians Scout Bill Killefer.

The 5-foot, 10-inch, 170-pound third baseman will report to the Indians' Tucson, Ariz., spring training camp in March. Rorer graduated from George Washington High School last June. He was All-Virginia High School baseball and basketball player in 1947 and 1948. He missed the coaches' all-State football team by one vote last year.

There's No Slack Period For Military Lobbyists, But Results Are Varied

If you want to become an expert lobbyist, take a tip from the military agencies. Some of the military's most effective work is being done now while Congress is adjourned, and while other lobbyists are taking it easy.

In yesterday's mail, for example, most members of Congress received a personal note from Navy Capt. A. S. McDill, which said:

"The Secretary of Defense asked the three services as to members of Congress who might be in Washington during adjournment of Congress. The Navy Department was assigned this duty for the months of November and December.

"It would be appreciated if you or your office would notify me of your intention, if known, as to your presence in Washington during this period." A franked card was inclosed for the Congressman's answer.

In the matter of lobbying, apparently, the Army, Navy and Air Force are unified, or coordinated, up to a point. Secretary Forrestal assigns the three services definite periods when they may contact members of Congress. The Army and Air Force have already had their turns.

The McDill letter, however, is only the beginner. It will be followed up by phone calls and invitation to inspect this and that naval activity.

The attention the military gives to members of Congress may do some good, but as a Senator commented yesterday as he tossed the McDill letter into his wastebasket: "They're trying to butter me up and I don't like it."

RATINGS: The plan of Commissioner Frances Perkins to simplify the efficiency rating system has been declared "legal" by the Civil Service staff. In fact, the staff has drafted proposed regulations to cover all of the questionable legal points if and when the commission orders the new plan put into effect.

Miss Perkins says there isn't anything new about her plan. She points out that it has been before the commission for nearly a year and that there have been frequent discussions on it during that period. She explained that the commission decided to do something about the rating system because it was the No. 1 gripe of Federal workers.

NLRB: An efficiency expert has been hired by the National Labor Relations Board. His name is Arthur H. Lang and he'll assist the director of administration. He'll work on better utilization of the board's personnel, improved procedures, etc.

UNION NEWS: An open house at its headquarters will be held today for Stanley W. Oliver, the new president, by the AFL's Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen. The union has a sizable group of members in Navy yards . . . Trall Price Jr., is now assured of being elected a vice president of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes. He already has 3000 of the 5600 possible votes here. His opponent is Harry Keller of the Army. Price is employed at Employes Compensation . . . The National Alliance of Postal Employes is celebrating its thirty-fifth birthday today. Thomas Hall of the Postoffice Department will speak to the Washington branch tonight at 1114 6th st. nw.

AWARDS: Three employes of the Labor Department here have been given cash awards for merit suggestions. They are: Wanda Durst, Theodore Brunell and Vincent S. Pisciotta . . . Similar awards were made to four Interior employes, who are: Maurice Shelton, Sol M. Greisman, Floyd W. Campbell and Oliver C. Ralston.

PEOPLE: Dr. Emanuel Maxwell, who formerly worked on microwave radar at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has joined the staff of the Bureau of Standards. Another scientist to join the bureau is Dr. Donald Burcham, who is to be assistant chief of the Ordnance Research Section. Dr. Harold Goldberg is the new section chief . . . Alvin V McCormack is the new chief of Agriculture's conservation programs branch

STORY: In these dying days of the campaign, the Democratic National Committee is having a welcome experience. It's receiving scores of modest contributions from Federal employes and would-be employes.

The contributors are gambling that the new Senate will be Democratic. Hanging fire before the Senate are more than 900 Truman appointees that the GOP-controlled Senate refused to confirm. Most of them are postmasters. Scores of top-drawer Federal jobs are vacant, and even if Truman is defeated, he'd be in the White House long enough to nominate a raft of people who supported him for reelection.

And if the Senate is Democratic, most of the Truman nominees would be confirmed and there wouldn't be much Dewey or the Republicans could do about it immediately.

The possibility of a Democratic Senate has the staff members of most Senate committees in the jitters. The staff appointees are supposed to be "nonpolitical" and career people under the Congressional Reorganization Act. Even so, it's a good bet that a good many of the GOP appointees would be fired if the Democrats took over again for the simple reason that too many of them have been partisan in their views and in their work. This is particularly true on the House side.

Civilian Unit Of Reserve Police Asked By Barrett

Plan to Augment Regular Force Is Seen as Tied to Defense Program

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked the Commissioners to approve formation of a civilian police reserve corps to augment Washington's regular police force.

It was believed the police reserve corps will fit into the national program mapped by the Office of Civil Defense Planning. Barrett would not comment on this.

Barrett is a member of the advisory committee of a group of national police officials who met last July at the Pentagon to study plans for civilian defense.

It is expected that the new corps will be organized in time to assist regular police at the Presidential Inauguration January 20.

The Commissioners made no comment on Barrett's request and passed it along to the office of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West for study. West also withheld comment.

2 Inspectors in Charge

Under present plans, the training and direction of the civilians who will serve as reserve policemen without pay will rest with Inspectors Lloyd E. Kelly and Walter Storm.

Kelly is head of the 300-man riot squad organized recently to be prepared for subversive disturbances or sabotage. Storm is head of the police training school where rookies are drilled.

Police officials did not disclose how large a force the police reserve corps will be.

"That will have to be determined by the Commissioners," said one. "They also will recommend legislation to give the force authority."

Civilian Defense Idea

However, it was admitted the new police reserve corps will be in some ways comparable to the civilian defense corps organized here during the war. The wartime civilian defense corps numbered about 5000.

"But these men," said a department spokesman, "will undergo an intensive period of training and there won't be any honorary positions as there were in the civilian defense corps."

Who may join the new police reserve corps?

"Any civilian can volunteer," said a police official, "but this does not mean that every volunteer will be selected as a police reserve. Only outstanding men will be chosen, those able to devote a certain amount of time each week to training and to the performance of their duties."

Like any rookie, the candidates will be well schooled in all phases of police work.

Authority to Arrest

Can the reserve policemen make arrests?

Yes, said a department official, they will be armed with all the authority of a regular policeman, but only when assigned to active duty.

In announcing the planned auxiliary force, Barrett said:

"The Metropolitan Police Department at this time is faced with an acute shortage of personnel, despite all our efforts and those of the United States Civil Service Commission to recruit personnel up to the full authorized strength.

"Among other events that will occur in the near future will be the inauguration of a President of the United States on January 20, 1949."

Barrett said in view of this and "the many increasing demands for police service" it has been deemed "highly desirable" to form a trained reserve of special police privates without pay as an integral part of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Barrett pointed out to reporters that the District code now provides for the appointment of special police.

In his request, Barrett asked that all appointments made by the Commissioners be for a period of three years, with the proviso, however, that such appointments may be terminated at any time at the discretion of the Commissioners, without cause and without trial.

Nazis Blundered in Neglecting Sea Air Arm, Kenney Says; 20 Installations in Area Are Host to 50,000 Navy Day Visitors

Guns, Submarine And Helicopter Give Crowds Big Treat

With a courteous "Glad to have you aboard," the Nation's sea arm yesterday opened its shore stations and ships to the public in the annual observance of Navy Day.

In Greater Washington, taking advantage of clear, summer-like weather, an estimated 50,000 persons turned out to inspect 20 naval installations. Over the country, citizens responded in great number to join with the Navy in celebration of its 173d anniversary.

One of the biggest individual shows here was that of the Naval Gun Factory, which was host to about 15,000 area residents from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. It was a toss-up as to who enjoyed the show most—bluejackets and civilian gun factory personnel, civilian grown-ups, or their children.

There was the helicopter, for instance, that flitted 50 feet above the waterfront all day, bombing the throngs below with thousands of table tennis balls. And youngsters from 6 to 60 raced to capture them.

At the same time, hundreds of others crowded aboard ships moored at waterfront piers to take a long look at how the Navy lives and works at sea. They toured destroyers, LST's, and the submarine USS Drum, veteran of Pacific warfare with 27 Japanese ships emblazoned on its side.

For countless boys, the "Navy's Voices of Authority"—guns of all calibers from .30-caliber twin machineguns up to massive 16-inchers—proved one of the most fascinating features. They couldn't resist putting their eyes to the sights, their fingers on the triggers, and shooting an imaginary enemy.

Throughout the day, the crowds witnessed a seaplane being launched by catapult hourly, toured the factory's many shops, saw diving exhibitions, and inspected captured Japanese trophies, including a one-man submarine.

More than 5000 persons visited the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md., yesterday—first time the huge research and development center has been opened for public inspection.

On view were scientific workshops, including huge wind tunnels found in Germany at the war's end, which had served the Nazis as research laboratories for their V-2 rockets. Also visited was the world's first mobile betratron, a 10-million-volt X-ray generator whose rays can penetrate 16 inches of steel.

At noon, some 2000 persons witnessed wreath-laying ceremonies at the John Paul Jones Monument at the Tidal Basin, in which more than 80 patriotic and veterans groups participated.

On the Washington Monument grounds, the Navy set up a mobile radar unit with its scopes in operation. Nearby were two helicopters and a twin-jet "Phantom" fighter plane.

Over at the Naval Ordnance Plant in Alexandria, about 14,000 attended "open house," which also commemorated founding of the plant 30 years ago.

Featured there were torpedo firings, diving exhibitions and hobby displays. On display were rockets and mines and equipment used in building and testing them.

Other Navy Day "open houses" were held at:

Naval Air Station, Anacostia, where Navy aircraft were open for inspection.

Naval Barracks, West Potomac Park; opened to inspection by the public.

Naval Radio Station, Arlington, where visitors saw relay of messages out of Washington to ships and stations throughout the Atlantic Coast and Ocean area.

Hydrographic Office, Suitland, Md., which demonstrated how charts and publications for air and surface navigation are produced.

Naval Research Laboratory, Bellevue, Washington; visitors saw scientific developments in the exhibit room.

Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, which showed every phase of Navy medical and dental research and treatment to visitors.

Model Basin, Carderock, Md., where facilities used in hydrodynamic, aerodynamic and other research fields were explained.

Naval Observatory, Washington, where visitors toured the library, almanac office, time service and office, 40-inch reflector, and other facilities.

Naval Powder Factory, Indianhead, Md., parade, band contests, and a Navy Day Queen contest.

Naval Proving Ground, Dahlgren, Va., where a variety of guns, big and small, were fired.

Naval Receiving Station, Anacostia, which featured exhibits and displays.

'PING,' 'PONG!'—Visitors to the "open house" yesterday at the Washington Naval Gun Factory race for the souvenir ping-pong balls with which the Navy establishment was "bombarded" yesterday by a Marine Corps helicopter. Some 10,000 balls were dropped during the day.

INSIDE LOOKING OUT—Chief Torpedoman J. E. Ridgway of Berwyn, Md., shows two young Navy Day visitors how to use the periscope of the submarine, USS Drum, tied up at the Naval Gun Factory. The boys are Kenneth William, 13, of 5193 MacArthur blvd., sighting through the device, and John Crossin (left), of 1602 25th st. se.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

SUITED FOR NAVY DAY—Two members of the diving school at the Washington Naval Gun Factory show a Navy Day visitor how a diver's suit is fitted. She is Mrs. Betty Bunch of 1012 13th st. se., a 16-year-old Army bride of three weeks. Chiefs C. R. Peters (left) and W. M. Dickson are giving the demonstration. The suit and all its gear weighs 194 pounds.

Undersecretary Sees Danger of Ships Being Unprotected

Germany may well have won the Battle of the Atlantic but for a "monumental blunder," and therein lies our justification for a strong military establishment embracing a powerful Navy.

That was the keynote of a Navy Day address by Undersecretary of the Navy, W. John Kenney, last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Between them, Hitler and Goering erected a monument to the fallacy of developing a single air force at the expense of naval aviation," he said of Germany's failure in World War II.

There are many who still question the need of the Navy member of the armed forces' three-part team, he said.

Such developments as the Navy's "hunter-killer units" are absolutely necessary, he added, to protect bases and their ocean lifelines in the event of another war. Ships, without proper protection, "can be sitting ducks to the new high-speed submarines."

The "modern, three-dimensional might" of the Navy—power on, under and above the surface of the sea—"no longer is known simply as 'sea power,'" he said.

"It is 'naval air-sea power.' It is the power by which your Navy can gain and keep control of the sea lanes and the skies above them and, at the same time, deny that control to an enemy."

And the power of the Navy extended to yet another area, he added—"the four-dimensional area of the human mind."

He cited the presence of naval forces in the Mediterranean, Norway, Sweden, the British Isles and elsewhere as a "splendid example of how this power can be realistically and beneficially exerted."

The Navy Day dinner was sponsored by the District of Columbia Council of the Navy League. E. Cortlandt Parker, president of the council, presided at the meeting, and Jenning Randolph, former Congressman from West Virginia, was master of ceremonies.

The Navy League presented a gold medal to Miss Ruth Oriani, 17, of Los Angeles, for heroism in saving the life of a 2-year-old boy last year after he had fallen into a petroleum pit. Her father is a veteran of 30 years' service in the Navy.

The medal of merit was presented by the Navy League to Capt. Albert S. Freedman, who completed 50 years of active service with the Navy.

Gen. Hershey Praises Rifle Unit Training

Survival of the Nation depends on preparedness of each individual, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, said last night.

Hershey spoke at the National Rifle Association's annual banquet at the Shoreham Hotel, urging the NRA to expand its training program.

The physical and mental training developed by the program, Hershey said, are "invaluable assets" to men coming into the service and provide a basis for a qualified instructional staff.

In discussing the present Selective Service system, Hershey said there are only four to six million men available for the draft under the present set up. Only 200,000 men will be inducted this year, Hershey explained.

Hershey presented awards to Arthur Cook, University of Maryland sophomore, and Sergt. Harry Reeves, Detroit police force, the NRA's 1948 rifle and pistol shooting champions.

At the annual members' meeting Tuesday, Col. James F. Strain, 1403 N. Vermont st., Arlington, and Lieut. Col. Glenn C. Funk, Washington Marine headquarters training officer, were among those elected NRA directors. The directors will meet Friday to elect new officers.

District Man Fatally Shot In Tavern

Cleveland Gladden, 29, of 1126 10th st. nw., was shot fatally last night during an argument in a 5th st. tavern.

Three bullets were fired from a .32-caliber revolver, police said, one entering over Gladden's right eye. The others missed. Gladden was pronounced dead at 10:40 p. m. at Freedmen's Hospital.

Davis was shot five times, police said, by Gabe McRae, 36-year-old fruit vendor of 1116 T st. nw., when he accosted McRae after the former's wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Davis, entered McRae's truck in front of her home, 2006 17th st. nw.

McRae, who suffered knife cuts, and Davis were both admitted to Freedmen's Hospital. Mrs. Davis was treated for a slight cut on her hand.

McMahon Death Called Accidental

District Coroner A. MacDonald Magruder yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death for Richard McMahon from a fall Tuesday night.

McMahon, a 48-year-old retired butcher, plunged three floors to his death from the roof of his home at 4523 Nebraska ave. nw.

His wife, Mrs. Virginia McMahon, told police he had been receiving treatment for a nervous condition. He apparently fell from a back porch on the third floor level, police said. A railing on the porch had become loosened, they said.

N. Y. Ave. May Get Overpass At Eckington

Proposal Offered By Highway Dept. As Solution to Traffic Congestion

A proposal to construct an overpass on New York ave. at the intersection of Florida ave. and Eckington pl. was revealed yesterday to members of the Washington Board of Trade Traffic Committee.

District Highway Director James N. Robertson said the plan had been advanced after the Capital Transit Co. had notified the District Commissioners early this year that it might reroute its Eckington line in the congested area.

The highway director said that as a result of the Capital Transit Co.'s suggestion, highway officials now are suggesting abandonment of the Eckington line from North Capitol st. east to Eckington pl. and R st., through New York and Florida aves., and the construction of a new line in R st. to North Capitol st. and down to the present turn in New York ave.

Cost Put at Million

With removal of this troublesome factor from the Eckington pl. picture, Robertson said the Highway Department can go ahead with plans to accommodate motor traffic on the intersection, now figured at 50,000 vehicles for a 24-hour period.

The projected New York ave. overpass, which would start about 275 feet west of First st. and end just short of the present New York ave. railroad overpass, is the Highway Department's best guess for a solution to the complicated traffic pattern.

This project, Robertson said, would cost an estimated one million dollars, under current prices. Some plans proposed for Eckington, he said, would cost between four and five million dollars.

The New York ave. overpass must await funds from the District Commissioners, and must be approved by the Commissioners, the D. C. Coordinating Committee, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission.

Outline of Plan

The plan would see 1st st. made one-way for southbound traffic, with Florida ave. traffic traveling west on O st., and a ramp for northbound traffic coming up from the overpass on the south side. Traffic light controls would be installed at Eckington pl. and Florida ave., Robertson said.

The Highway Director said his department currently has about 19 million dollars worth of construction work under contract, and gave progress reports on four major highway projects now under way:

Whitehurst Freeway (K st. elevated): 80 per cent of the work is completed and the project should be finished by March 1.

Fourteenth Street Bridge: The substructure is 90 per cent complete. All steel has been put in with the exception of the floor of the bridge. The project is expected to be completed in about a year.

South Capitol Bridge

South Capitol Street Bridge: "The people in Southeast Washington think we've forgotten them, but we haven't," said Robertson. He said that the American Bridge Co., which was awarded the contract about six months ago, is now in Washington, and expects to complete the work by the contract date of November 1, 1949.

Robertson said the failure to start on the work sooner was caused by the fact that the type of steel needed for the bridge took longer to fabricate than other types of steel.

Dupont Circle: The project is on schedule, but it will be 1950 before it is completed.

At the Board of Trade meeting in the Burlington Hotel yesterday, Traffic Committee Chairman George V. Graham announced that the following men had been renamed as members of the executive committee: Francis J. Kelly, William H. Ellis, Charles M. Upham, Louis J. Grayson, Charles A. Appleby, Washington I. Cleveland and Charles T. McGavin.

Films Evidence

Rapt Court Sees Girlies Reveal All

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A 25-minute "girlie show" was presented to an all-male audience in District Court.

There were no catcalls, no ribald whistles, and only a few restrained sighs as Judge Edward A. Tamm and a dozen lawyers and court attaches watched intently a courtroom showing of three films entitled, "Too Hot for Harriet," "Boudoir Secrets" and "Hard Work."

It was entirely in the interests of justice—naturally.

Complaint to Court

Samuel Lazerson, trading as the Camera Place & Novel Films in Baltimore, had been distributing the films to artists who could not afford models. He complained to the court that Jesse M. Donaldson, Postmaster General, refuses to deliver mail to the Baltimore address. The Postoffice, it was charged, feels that the films appeal more to salacious than to artistic sensitivities. Lazerson wanted an injunction to prevent the Postoffice from refusing the mail deliveries.

Allen M. Mesirow, Lazerson's attorney, suggested that a showing of the films would prove Donaldson wrong. Not a soul in court had any objection.

"Too Hot for Harriet" showed two girls in a seemingly torrid room. It was so torrid, in fact, that they fanned themselves and then undressed each other.

Bather, Paperhanger

"Boudoir Secrets" showed a young lady in the bathtub. She stood up in it and dried herself with a towel.

"Hard Work" portrayed a girl trying vainly to put up wallpaper. She found it easier when she undressed to do it.

Assistant United States Attorney Sidney S. Sachs, who represented the Postoffice, said that the films were evidence enough that they were little more than a "strip tease," and proved his point that they were "potently arranged to cater to the pornography seeker and the pruriently curious."

Judge Tamm refused to grant the requested preliminary injunction. He said the parties might argue the case further on a hearing for a permanent injunction.

100 Children Hear Stories At Book Fair

"This is the story of a town where everybody whispered," the slender young man in big, round glasses began.

Little Keith Shepherd, 6, listened. His sister, Landis, 5, listened, too. And so did some 100 other youngsters in the Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 3400 Lowell st. nw.

And when Carl Green, who won the Peabody award last year for his radio program, explained how quiet the town was—"why you could have heard a mouse swallow,"—his audience shrieked and giggled.

The youngsters, attending a "story hour" at the Cleveland Park Memorial Library Committee's third annual Children's Book Fair, also heard about Pee Wee, the little dog who "grew and grew and grew and groooo" until he was the "most enormous dog in the whole world."

And when it was all over, the audience, berets, ribbons, braids and all, went tripping into the next room to look at all the wonderful books displayed for them.

There's a big program for today, too, beginning at 9 a. m. and continuing until 4 p. m.

Neighborhood Goblin Capers Slated Today

Washington youngsters will have a chance to hobnob with goblins and ghosts at a number of Halloween parties to be given by the various neighborhood houses today.

Friendship House, 619 D st. se., will hold a costume party in the garden from 3 to 4:30 p. m. for youngsters from 6 to 12 years old. Prizes will be given for the best costumes. In the evening, a dance for teen-agers will be held from 8 to 10:30 p. m.

Georgetown House, 3234 N st. nw., will hold a costume party from 7 to 9 p. m. for boys and girls 10 to 13 years of age.

Southwest Community House, 301 2d st. sw., will have a party for youngsters up to and including 12 years of age at 6 p. m.

Southeast House, 324 Virginia ave. se., has scheduled two parties—one at 3:30 p. m. for youngsters 6 to 12 years and one at 7:30 p. m. for youths 13 to 18 years.

Other organizations that have planned parties for today are the Naylor Gardens preschool center, which will have a costume affair at 10:30 a. m., and St. Vincent's Home and School, which will have a party at 4 p. m.

City College Alumni Meet Here Tonight

The Washington Chapter, City College Alumni Association, will meet at 8:15 p. m. today at Hotel Annapolis. Principal speaker will be Dr. Jacob Rabinow, chief of ordnance mechanics in the Bureau of Standards.

Area News in Brief

Smoldering Patrol Delivers Prisoner

A Thirteenth Precinct patrol wagon, its floor mat smoldering, delivered a woman prisoner to the station house safely yesterday before the fire was extinguished.

The patrol wagon, manned by Pvts. Paul E. Gothard and William E. Johnson, was transporting a woman prisoner to the station house at 7th and U sts. nw., nine blocks short of their goal, at 18th and U sts. nw., the officers noticed smoke coming from the floor mat of the cab.

Johnson radioed the central dispatcher, saying that they would attempt to reach the station. When the wagon pulled up at its destination, Fire Engine No. 4, summoned by the dispatcher, was also arriving.

The fire was quickly extinguished with damage only to the mat. Faulty electric connections to the heater were blamed for the blaze.

Fat Piggy Banks Stolen

Arthur R. Wilson of 3110 33d pl. nw., reported to police yesterday that $500 in three piggy banks was taken from his house, which he said was broken into between September 26 and October 26, while he was away. Entrance was gained by breaking glass in a French door.

Parking Rates Raised

District Commissioners yesterday approved a major boost in parking rates on Municipal Center Building facilities used by District workers.

A $3 monthly charge for parking in the 92 spaces underneath the structure was hiked to $5, and a $2 monthly charge on the 57 exterior spots was raised to $4.

In addition, a committee consisting of Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett, Director of Construction Archie G. Hutson and Purchasing Agent Roland J. Brennan, was named to study a reshuffling of car spaces to make way for housing of 37 District-owned vehicles for which room is no longer available at the Central Garage.

Detectives Reassigned

Detective Sergts. Maury Kutner and Herbert Young of the special squad investigating unsolved murders have been temporarily assigned to the robbery squad. Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, said the robbery squad was short of men.

Breakage Trial Set

Mrs. Hazel Blades, 25, of 1446 Newton st. nw., who police say broke a mirror and a window in the Second Precinct station house, appeared yesterday in Municipal Court where her trial on a charge of destroying property was set for November 3 by Judge Walter J. Casey.

Police reported Mrs. Blades, a hairdresser, was arrested on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge, but while in the station house she tossed a paper cutter at the station house window and mirror.

The officers used the mirror to straighten their neckties.

Porter, $1760 Missing

A man wearing "snazzy pants," who may have $1760 tucked in a hip pocket, is being sought by police.

Andrew J. Coakley, manager of Peoples Drug Store at 2616 Connecticut ave. nw., told police he sent Zelos Mason, 24, a porter, of 418 K st. se., yesterday morning, to deposit Tuesday's receipts at Riggs National Bank, 18th st. and Columbia rd. nw.

Both Mason and the money disappeared, police said.

Coakley described the man as weighing 180 pounds, 6 feet tall, wearing a tan jacket and brown trousers, known as "snazzy pants."

Postal Economy Urged

Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, yesterday outlined to the District Commissioners how they could save "a considerable sum of money "through" more careful use of mails."

Amplifying remarks made at the Commissioners' public hearing on the municipal budget, Lusk suggested that all material "which does not require first-class postage be mailed at the lowest prevailing rates." He said tests from his office showed that such mail is given as speedy handling within the city as first-class letters.

Lusk also recommended a study of the possibility of "using a postcard system for the mailing of all real estate tax and water rent bills" which would mean a "two-cent saving in postage on each bill and will save a very substantial sum in labor."

In Memoriam

LENORA MONEY. In memory of our beloved mother and grandmother, LENORA MONEY, who left us five years ago today.
God is good, He gives us strength,
To bear our heavy cross.
He is the only one who knows,
How bitter is our loss.
Since you've gone first and I remain,
One thing I'll have you do.
Walk slowly down the path with death.
Some day I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take,
That I may take the same.
For somewhere down the lonely road,
You'll hear me call your name.
Your loving Daughter and Grandchildren,
GWENDOLYN, NANCY and STEVE.

"I acted on Pepco's Free Home Lighting advice!

"Expert advice was what I needed! So I didn't just rush in and change things all by myself. I called NAtional 8800, asked for Home Service Bureau and made an appointment with a Lighting expert to call on me. She brought a Sight-Meter and went systematically through every room in the house. I learned from her how to do away with glare and gloom, how to save eyesight with correct reading lights, the exact-size bulbs to buy, how to get lovely effects with lighting!

"Her advice made all the difference! Today, my whole family finds home a pleasanter place to work and play in—simply because I brought our out-of-date lighting up-to-date.

"Of course you can do the same thing! Just call NAtional 8800, and ask for Home Service Bureau. Pepco's free lighting advice is a friendly service—and it's yours for the asking!"

Eisenhowers Arrive For Visit 'Back Home'

By Marie McNair

MRS. DWIGHT EISENHOWER, on her first visit back to Washington since she became a university president's wife, arrived late yesterday afternoon for a few days' stay at the Statler.

The General, now president of the Columbia University, had come down earlier yesterday from New York, spent most of the day in conferences and joined his "Mamie" at the end of the day.

Mrs. Eisenhower made the trip in the university president's car, absorbed the beauty of the autumn coloring all along the way and found the Pennsylvania foliage the most brilliant of all.

Rolling into the outskirts of the city where she lived all during the war, where she and the General lived at war's end, Mrs. Eisenhower admitted a pang of nostalgia at coming "home." Her old friends are here, and she had hoped if she'd arrived earlier to pay a surprise visit to her little group which gather weekly to play mahjong and who were playing yesterday afternoon.

Tonight the Eisenhowers will be guests of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Henry B. Sayler at dinner, with just their close friends asked. At lunch time Mrs. Eisenhower will meet other old friends at the party Mrs. Ruth Butcher is giving. Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. George Allen will give a dinner for them; Saturday night Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Everett Hughes will fete them and on Sunday evening Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Allen Gruenther will have a supper party for the visitors.

The General expects to leave that night or early Monday morning but it won't take much persuasion to make Mrs. Eisenhower stay a day or two longer.

TO THE QUESTION put to her by a mere male one day, on why do women want to be in politics, Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., associate campaign manager for the Dewey-Warren ticket, had the perfect answer.

She was surrounded by half a dozen men, all there to get an interview, all hanging on every word.

"What better reason," she declared with a wave of a hand, "where else could I get six men who would be so attentive?"

Yesterday Mrs. Weis and Mrs. Robert W. MacCauley, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, entertained a handful of women from the press and radio for a cocktail at the Sulgrave Club.

Mrs. Weis, her job done, has been cleaning up her files preparatory to leaving Friday for home and family in Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. MacCauley will stay on at headquarters here, confident, but not too confident, of victory.

THE FRIDAY SUPPER CLUB, bigger and better this season, will meet for its first of three dances tomorrow evening at the Sulgrave Club.

This year more invitations have met with response, the group has grown and as a consequence, so have the dancing confines.

For the first time, the committee has arranged to take over the downstairs suite of the club for a cabaret arrangement of tables around the bar and adjoining rooms and a rumba trio to play for dancing. Upstairs in the ballroom, Meyer Davis, as usual, will lead his own orchestra.

There'll be any number of dinner parties before the dance gets under way. Col. and Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton have asked a few of their friends for a Halloween supper party and Mrs. Pearsons Rust will also entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins, jr., will be hosts at dinner and also the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr.

The Friday Supper Club, which began way back in the '30s as the Thursday Evening Supper Club, will meet again on November 19. Their last dance will be January 28 unless the till is just busting with money, when they'll give a "bonus" dance.

Ambassador, Mme. Dendramis Entertain at Farewell Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

MR. AND MRS. ALEXIS S. LIATIS of the Greek Embassy are leaving Washington today to take a Mediterranean cruise en route to their new post at Cyprus. Mr. Liatis has served as First Secretary at the embassy here and in Cyprus he will act as Consul General.

A farewell party in their honor was given yesterday afternoon by the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis. The hostess, who is one of the Capital's most attractive diplomatic ladies, looked unusually well-gowned in black satin with a double strand pearl choker. She and the Ambassador received their guests standing at the door of the dining room.

The oak-paneled room looked very inviting with a table centered with long stemmed pink snapdragons and laden with specialties, prepared by the Greek chef of the embassy. There were platters of stuffed celery, shrimp patties, toasted biscuits, Greek burecks, and candies and nuts. A bar was set up at the side. Doors from the dining room led into the yellow drawing rooms, which looked very mellow in the soft lighting.

Mme. Michel Valsamis, mother of the hostess, was there discussing the movie Hamlet.

Among the Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard were there, she in peacock blue Korean silk. Mrs. Bernard Connelly, Mrs. George Thorpe and Mrs. H. P. Hevenor were other guests. The wife of the Luxembourg Minister, Mme. Le Gallais, was at the party in black dress and small black hat trimmed with a long swoop of white feathers. Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, who before her marriage was Princess Emina Tousson of Egypt, was squired by her husband.

Mme. Fotich, wife of the former Ambassador of Yugoslavia, had a chat with the Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and chic Senora de Echegaray. The Assistant to the President and Mrs. John Steelman were there, talking with Count and Countess Moltke-Huitfeldt of the Danish Embassy.

The Ambassador of Iran and Mme. Ala were told by everyone what a success their party had been the evening before. Guests, Mme. Ala said, had danced till almost three. A toast to the health of his majesty, the Shah of Persia, had been made at 11 o'clock and, after that, rugs were rolled back for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Liatis continued to say good-by to nearly 200 of their friends yesterday until well after 8 o'clock. Among the many who dropped by were Ilia Sumenkovich, former Ambassador of Yugoslavia to Turkey, and Mme. Sumenkovich; the Egyptian Minister, Anis Azer; the Greek Counselor and Mme. Economou-Gouras; Mrs. William Culbertson; Mme. Nasserol-Moulk; Miss Lena Valsami, sister of the hostess; Mr. and Mrs. William Baxter; the Military Aide to the President, Gen. Harry H. Vaughan; Mr. and Mrs. Hale Shenefield, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gardiner and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Satterthwaite.

Gen., Mrs. Larkin Entertain; Luncheons Fete Service Wives

MAJ. GEN. Thomas B. Larkin, Quartermaster General, and Mrs. Larkin gave a cocktail party yesterday at the Officers Club at Fort McNair, for about 150 of their friends from the service and resident Washington.

Members of the Army, Navy and Air Forces and their wives, and a group of Military Attaches from foreign embassies, with their wives, were there. In addition there were old friends of the hostess who calls Washington "home"

Assisting were Mrs. Herman Feldman, wife of Major General Feldman, Assistant to the Quartermaster General; Mrs. William H. Middleswart, wife of Major General Middleswart, Assistant to the Quartermaster General, and Mrs. Kester Hastings, wife of Brigadier General Hastings, who is another assistant to the host.

MRS. LAURIE NORSTAD, wife of Lieutenant General Norstad, was the guest of honor at the luncheon yesterday given by the Ladies of the National Guard at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Cramer, wife of Major General Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau of the Army, headed the receiving line. Mrs. Edward P. Mechling was the chairman of arrangements for the luncheon and she was assisted by Mrs. Edward J. Geeson and W. A. R. Robertson.

MRS. E. L. FORD of Aberdeen, Md., and Mrs. Carl Andrew Spaatz were guests of honor at the Ordnance Ladies luncheon held yesterday at the Officers' Club of Fort Lesley J. McNair. Guests, numbering about 80, were seated at a long table, centered with pumpkins filled with autumn flowers and leaves.

Mrs. Ford spoke on the work done by the Ordnance Department in Germany among the German children at Christmas time. Each child, she said, is given one piece of clothing, one piece of candy, and one toy. Mrs. Spaatz spoke on the Washington Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

Mrs. Everett S. Hughes, wife of General Hughes, chief of ordnance, was among the guests at the luncheon. Mrs. James L. Massey was in charge of arrangements, and Mrs. John Stark did the flower decorations.

IN FASHION circles they're gossiping about: Nylons that are "plasticized," and thus possess miraculous snag-proof properties.

Word of the new nylon strikes a chord of joy and hope in feminine hearts. Just think of it—sheer stockings that have a good chance of lasting longer than it takes to run a hangnail through them!

The experts claim that the new "plasticizing" process will reduce the snag hazard to a minimum. Nice news too, is that the processing has no effect on the stocking other than strengtheing its resistance to wear.

You'll find them at Brooks where a large and varied supply has just arrived. The cost? Same as for unprocessed nylons.

Brooke Johns Will Comment At Style Show

Brooke Johns, chairman of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners, and well known for his ready wit and humor, will be a commentator at the fashion show and luncheon which Women's Board of Emergency Hospital will sponsor at the Mayflower Hotel November 9.

Lady Welsh, board president, has just signed up Mr. Johns, who is taking an accelerated course in fashions before the benefit.

Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs. Percy Black and Mrs. Ralph Whitley are a busy trio these days taking reservations for show tickets, and Mrs. John J. McCloy, chairman of the table committee, is arranging reservation for parties and groups.

As over-all chairman of the benefit, Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart is enthusiastic over the cooperation of local stores, specialty shops and merchants who have donated the prizes. Topping the list is a Ben Reig dress such as will be modeled at the show. Other prizes include stationery, orchids, linens, note paper from the town's social engraver, an autographed copy of General Eisenhower's new book, "Crusade in Europe," a handsome wrist watch and luncheon for two at a smart restaurant.

Nurses from Emergency Hospital will join the parade of models, showing what the correctly uniformed nurses wear on duty—graduate, student, probationer, green aide and Red Cross aide.

Entire proceeds from the show will go toward the fund being raised by the board for its "special needs" fund.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 16, Who Doesn't Mind Taking Care Of Younger Brothers When Parents Go Out, Has Fiance Who Hotly Quarrels About It

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl, 16, one of five children, and since my 14th year I've had to take care of my younger brothers when my parents go out. Mom asks me to stay in one night, sometimes two nights, a week to do this.

I don't mind my parents' going out and relying upon me to take care of the kids, because I realize they have a right to go out when they wish, and I don't enjoy going out every night of the week.

My problem is my fiance's reaction to this situation. Dick is 21 and until his 15th year he was an only child. Last December we started going together and became engaged three months later. I was accustomed to seeing him every night, and at first he didn't mind staying home with me, as we went out every other evening.

Girl Is Distrait, Angry at Parents

THEN he started to quarrel about it every time my parents went out, and during the last month or two it has been nerve-wracking for me. My parents won't let me go out every night, and Dick isn't very agreeable about this; but furthermore he can't understand why I should have to take care of my brothers at all. His parents never went out without him.

What has me stymied is Dick's recent behavior when I have to stay home. He goes places without me, which makes me feel badly and I take it out on my parents. I am miserable and everyone else in the family is miserable, too, because of the way I act.

Should Dick resent the fact that once or twice a week I have to stay in? Should I ask or expect him to keep me company, or let him go without protest? He seems so unreasonable to me. I hope you understand what I'm trying to say and that you can help me. Please answer soon. K. L.

Parents Foolhardy in One Particular

DEAR K. L.: Reading your letter, one is impressed by the substantial harmony that exists in your home, with all members pulling together in a spirit of "all for each and each for all."

Obviously your parents are a loving congenial pair, devoted alike to each other and their children, else the atmosphere of emotional solidarity, mutual trust and affectionate consideration of each other's right to moderate "pursuit of happiness" would not be present.

The only flaw I see in the picture is your parents' practise, a hoolhardy one, of letting you have a beau for company on nights when they go out leaving you to take full charge of the younger children. This is imprudent, for it opens the door to potential excesses in adolescent lovemaking that may have tragic consequences for the girl, which no amount of subsequent solicitude and remorse can adequately repair.

Has Girl Permitted Overmuch Lovemaking?

WHILE I am assuming that no such misfortune has darkened your dealings with Dick thus far, it occurs to me that possibly, in the early rounds of romance with him, you may have participated in lovemaking as a stay-at-home pastime, to a degree that quickly destroyed freshness of interest and respect on Dick's part, with the result that his infatuation is now a thing of the past, and he is quarreling with you for manufactured cause, as excuse to break the engagement—or force you to do so.

Marriage experts sagety counsel even newlyweds to beware of relying overmuch upon lovemaking as a substitute for social recreation, lest the blight of satiety overtake their relationship, starting a chain reaction of boredom, distaste and quarrels, in the first months of marriage. So, here is a thought to consider, in trying to evaluate (for your future guidance) what you may have contributed to Dick's change of heart.

In itself, Dick's belligerent resentment of your willing helpfulness in family relationship is preposterously unreasonable, certainly; an attack on exemplary behavior, in that respect, which a man of good sense and some emotional maturity would rejoice to observe in his betrothed. And since he takes that attitude, or feels that way, my advice is to dismiss him from your life, without further protest, or quipping, or attempts to decipher his motives, change his views or humor them. M. H.

Relief Group For Austria Formed at Tea

At a tea held at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot on Monday afternoon, the organization of American Women's Good Will to Austria was founded. Mrs. Hobart Gay was elected chairman, and Mme. Kleinwaechter, wife of the Austrian Minister, was named honorary chairman.

The organization will collect parcels, especially of clothing and food, to be sent to Austria. Packing is to be done at Fort Myer. The packages will be sent to New York and shipped to Austria by the Army, and distribution in Austria will be done by wives of leading American officials.

One of the special features of the organization is that through it one can send up to 55 pounds, where previously the limit was set at 22 pounds. Any contributions to the organization will be accepted by Mrs. Henry B. Saler at Ordway 5130.

Ladies serving in the organization include Mrs. Norman Littell, Mrs. Henry Lindon, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, 3d., Mrs. A. G. Bowley and Mrs. Anthony C. McAuliffe.

Dr. Wright Reports on Food Ration

By Lucia Brown

A first-hand report on the food situation in Great Britain today was given to members of the American Newspaper Women's Club and their guests by Dr. Norman Charles Wright at a tea given in his honor by the club Wednesday.

Dr. Wright, who is scientific adviser to the British Ministry of Food, arrived in the United States only three days ago. He is here to study advances in food technology and handling in this country and to attend the world-wide Food and Agriculture Organization conference here next month.

"The people of Britain, despite shortages and monotony, are still maintaining health and vigor on a ration of about 2850 calories apiece," Dr. Wright said. The prewar ration, he pointed out, averaged around 3000 calories, and was, of course, much more varied and palatable.

"Marshall Plan aid came in the nick of time to keep our diet from falling below the 2800-calorie level," he said yesterday. "The generosity of the United States has made the ration what it is today and enabled us to maintain nutritional standards on a reasonable basis.

Purpose Is Given

"Putting our house in order," from a food standpoint is our purpose during the next four years when Marshall Plan assistance will apparently be available," he continued. "We want to get back on the basis we were on before the war, increase our self-sufficiency if possible."

Great Britain can hope to be only about 50 or 60 per cent self-sufficient as far as food is concerned, Dr. Wright explained. Recent increases in planted acreage and in yields per acre show that this goal can be achieved, he said.

"Though we have less food, the present system of distribution and rationing assures a fair share for all," he went on: "The really hard job today is done by the housewife, who must stand in a queue to get both rationed and unrationed food.

Waste Cut Down

"Cutting down on waste has been one of our major feats, I believe," he declared. "It shows just how much it means when you don't waste anything. Distribution is better, too planned so that food goes to nearby markets instead of being shipped all over the place."

Returning to Washington was in the nature of a home-coming for Dr. Wright. Twenty years ago, he spent a year here, studying at the United States Department of Agriculture. He was a Commonwealth Fund Fellow, the English equivalent of a Rhodes scholar, and also attended Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Dr. Paul Dunbar, director of the United States Food and Drug Administration, and Mrs. Dunbar, and Dr. Hazel Stiebeling, chief of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, were among the guests at the tea.

Competition Of Television Seen as Benefit

Competition of television will produce better newspapers, magazines, movies and radio programs in the future. This is the prediction made yesterday by A. D. Willard, jr., executive vice president, National Association of Broadcasters, in a luncheon address before members of Women's Advertising Club of Washington.

Twenty-five years ago when radio was introduced he said many forecast the death knell of newspapers, phonograph manufacturers, record makers and piano manufacturers. All have prospered side by side with radio, according to the speaker.

Willard termed frequency modulation, facsimile, television and ultra-facts as the "new look" in radio. Through the ultra-facts medium books can be transmitted at the rate of one million words per minute, he said. He pointed out that 650 frequency modulation stations have been licensed since the war and 3½ million f. m. radio receivers sold.

A survey revealed that about 92 per cent of bus and streetcar riders would like to have music and news broadcasts as they commute from job to home, revealed the NAB executive, adding a prophecy that the customers will get their desires in the future.

Mrs. Hazel Markel introduced the speaker, and Mrs. Jean Ambrose, club president, presided.

During the meeting, Dr. H. Donald Upton made an appeal in behalf of the Community Chest fund drive.

Halloween Dances Will Be Given for Military Personnel

Military camps around Washington are busy planning formal and informal Halloween dances. A dance was given at Andrews Field last evening with music furnished by the 702 Air Force Band. A dance Saturday evening will be given by the NCO Club at Andrews Field. Sergt. John Kuzminski is chairman of arrangements.

Mrs. Betty Maddox, director of recreation and special services at Andrews Field, is planning a costume party for Sunday evening at which there will be square dancing.

How to Clean Nylon Curtains

I have several pairs of curtains made of parachute nylon. Through the summer, they've become rain spotted and rusty. (Washed twice but to no avail.) Would sodium perborate help? If so, what proportions? Would the same solution work on a linen tablecloth stained with iced tea? B. P. S.

Yes, sodium perborate may remove the spots. Use four tablespoons of the perborate to a pint of soapy water and let soak for 30 minutes. If this doesn't completely remove the stains, I'd suggest you try one of the commercial rust removal products sold at some drug stores. Sodium perborate may remove the ice tea stains, but if it doesn't you could use a household bleach on the linen if it is white.

I have some silver Japanese saki cups which are gold-washed (or gold-plated) inside. I wish to use them for salt dishes. Will the salt harm the surface? If so, what can I do to protect them? D. H.

The salt should not harm the gold on the cups. Usually such decoration is covered with a glaze to protect it. However, I would suggest you not let salt stand in them and rinse them immediately after each use.

Can you give me the recipe for mixing my own finger paints? D. H.

Dr. Ernest G. Osborne's "Family Scrapbook" in The Washington Post of Saturday, October 23, answered the question. Here are his directions:

"Take 1-3 cup glossy laundry starch, 2 cups boiling water, and ½ cup soap flakes. Dissolve starch in small amount cold water to make paste. Add boiling water. Cook until it becomes clear. Stir constantly. Remove pan from stove, add soap flakes, stir until dissolved. Put part of mixture into each of several jars that can be kept tightly closed. Add vegetable or calcimine coloring so that there are several colors from which to select."

I was recently given a beautiful imported slipover sweater. As I do not need a sweater of this type now, I would like to have it made into a cardigan—i. e., cut down the front, bound with grosgrain ribbon and buttons and buttonholes added. Do you know of any Washington firm that does this sort of work? I have contacted a sewing machine company but was told that they could do only the buttonholes. J. M. A.

Because the front of a cardigan is always wider than the front of a slipover to allow for the overlap for the buttons, it seems doubtful that you would find the made-over cardigan a satisfactory size, if the slipover fits you. Then, too, it is very difficult to catch each cut stitch securely enough to avoid future running of the stitches. This would be especially true if there were any strain on the bands. Is there any chance that you could return the sweater to the shop where purchased and exchange it for a cardigan? If not, another suggestion would be to sell it through one of the shops which sells articles for individual customers. One such shop on 14th st. can be reached by calling Tuckerman 0220. Another shop in Alexandria can be reached by calling Alexandria 0649.

I dipped a black cotton dress with white trim) in a boiled starch solution. The starch left white streaks on the black. I put the dress through the washing machine, but the starch stain persists. How can they be removed? S. M.

Wet the dress, lay it on a hard flat surface and vigorously brush the starch streaks with a stiff brush. This should loosen them enough so that they will come out entirely when washed. Wash the dress immediately after loosening the starch.

Miss Crane Speaks to Theta Sigma Phi

Miss Ruth Crane, director of women's activities for WMAL and WMAL-TV, told of her experiences on television at the dinner meeting of Theta Sigma Phi, national fraternity for women in journalism. The dinner was held at the Hotel 2400 at 6:30 p. m. yesterday.

Miss Crane discussed the limitations and problems of television as well as the way in which television programs originate and are produced.

Television will affect our lives, Miss Crane said, in such ways as furniture arrangement, social life and maybe reading habits.

Although she has known of many people having "mike fright" in radio, there is very little nervousness on television, Miss Crane said.

Miss McQuatters Speaks

Miss Geneva McQuaters, assistant in the women's division of Republican National Campaign Headquarters, was the guest speaker at the weekly Zonta luncheon yesterday in the Dodge Hotel.

Women have the greatest challenge in history in 1948, Miss McQuatters said, since there are over 1½ million more women than men of voting age.

But merely to vote is not enough, she said. "We must also become politically active in the party of our choice, contributing our best efforts to the formulation of the policies which will help us attain the principles in which we believe," Miss McQuatters told club members.

Miss McQuatters was introduced by Miss Marguerite Rawalt, vice president, who presided over the the meeting in the absence of the resident, Mrs. Alice Sheldon.

Business Show Offers Devices To Ease Work

By Sam Dawson

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Life is going to be more beautiful for Sadie the, steno.

Business firms appear eager to keep her happy in her work and make it easier for her. And they're also trying to make the work foolproof, too.

The National Business Show here is filled with new devices for making office work easier, faster and more accurate. On opening day nearly 8000 office executives milled around the machines getting pointers on how office operations can be improved.

Their interest wasn't entirely in keeping Sadie happy. The new machines, expensive as they seem at first blush, are being offered to business with the sales talk that they reduce expenses.

And office expenses are mounting. Sadie gets higher wages than she once did. Office space has been scarce and more expensive. The pressure of a returning buyers' market has led many managements to see that office work must be speeded up mechanically—at a time when office work becomes increasingly complicated, with new methods, new accounting, new taxes to record and new Government forms to keep filled out.

Exhibitors at the show also point out that many machines in offices have become too old for efficient operation any more. They are looking to this replacement market to take up the slack in their sales, now that office machine pipelines are filled again. The machine salesmen, too, are in a buyers' market.

Here are some of the devices being offered at this year's show to make life easier for Sadie!

Where Sadie used to stand, they've made machines she can operate sitting down. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. is showing a machine that will address and punch a tabulating card simultaneously at the rate of 6000 cards an hour. The machine can be loaded with new forms while still in operation so that it never has to stop or slow down.

Sadie doesn't have to listen to the boss hem and haw or dictation, either. The Dictaphone Corp. is featuring an endless plastic "Memobilt" which can be mailed to the office. The boss has a portable dictaphone which also records telephone conversations. The Federal Communications Commission cocked an eyebrow at that, but has now agreed to the idea, provided a distinctive bleat at 15 second intervals is interjected. The phone company does the bleating. Dictaphone says that now that it has FCC approval, it can deliver the phone recorders in three weeks.

Several business machine companies have tackled the problem of lightening the touch on keys.

The "phantom touch" has been added to the Marchant Calculating Machine Co.'s "Figuremaster" automatic electric calculator. The new machine also brings the controls nearer together so that the hand has to travel shorter distances.

The new electric typewriter of the International Business Machine Corp. even has automatic ribbon rewinding, done with a touch of an electric button.

Robotyper Does Work

The Robotyper Corp., is showing an electric typewriter which uses something like a player piano roll. The typist starts the letter off, but after the "Dear sir" the piano roll takes over and plays off the form remarks that are called for. One typist can operate four robotyper at once. She can turn out 200 letters a day on each.

New things in office furniture are being shown, too. The Domore Chair Co. has the Postur-matic chair—the "chair that breathes and automatically warns the user of faulty posture." It's air-cooled.

The Wheeldex Manufacturing Co. offers "the secretary's merry-go-round," a chair which "floats to any desired point within a large area." Also, the "flying saucer," a wheel mounted on a revolving and oscillating arm to hold card files and flip them up with the greatest of ease.

A wire-recorder for office use is shown by the Peirce Wire Recorder Corp. The "wire-o-matic cartridge" eliminates the need for handling the wire itself. It takes up to an hour's dictation and permits accurate indexing of all dictation. There is a timer to locate the position of all dictation on the wire.

And finally, where Sadie once had to use her brain to figure out which type of delinquent notice to send people behind in their payments, now she clicks a switch or two and electronics takes over. Addressograph-Multigraph has a machine that bawls the customer out properly, automatically addresses the envelope, and relieves Sadie of about all the work, except seeing that the stacks of blank cards and paper being fed into the machine are kept filled.

After Frying

There is nothing attractive about the rasher of bacon on fried sausage if grease drops from the meat onto the plate. Place the cooked bacon and sausages on brown paper for a minute to absorb this grease before arranging them on the serving platter. Then garnish with parsley and you really have an attractive dish.

After It Cools

To insure no damage to the porcelain enamel of the stove, wait until it has cooled before going over it with a soapy rag to clean it. Though made of the hardest finish known, a sudden change in temperature caused by wiping a hot stove with a damp cloth may damage it.

Accounting Policy Committee Set Up For War Service

A step toward effective control of the activities of the three fighting services by the Department of Defense was announced by the National Military Establishment yesterday.

This was the formation of a joint committee on accounting policy in the National Military Establishment. It was announced by James Forrestal, the Secretary of Defense, as part of the effort to establish first of all what the three services are doing with their funds and then insuring that they follow out the over-all policies laid down by the Defense Department.

Accounting procedure at present is so diverse that no common standard can be worked out whereby the activities of the three services can be checked.

Policeman Favors Wider Use of Parking Meters

"You can't argue with a parking meter," Capt. Basil F. McAllister, commanding officer of the Tenth Police Precinct, declared last night in urging widespread installation of meters to alleviate parking problems.

The police official spoke before members of the 18th St. and Columbia Rd. Business Association at Lodi's Restaurant, 2463 18th st. nw.

"When the flag is up, you know your time is up and it is the moment to move on," McAllister said. He said he would cooperate with efforts to have meters installed in the 18th st. and Columbia rd. business section.

Turning to problems that beset policemen during Halloween, the captain urged the businessmen to help police by reporting anyone seen pulling fire alarm boxes.

Political Exile Is Approved for Hacker's Permit

Richard Tietz, 43-year-old German political exile, will be given a District cab driver's permit, the District Commissioners decided yesterday.

Tietz applied for a permit in August, but the Board of Revocation and Review of Hackers' Identification Licenses turned it down after reading on his application of several arrests in Germany, France and Spain for anti-Hitler, anti-Franco activities.

The refugee, now a chemistry student at Howard University, is an avowed and lifelong Socialist. He applied for the cabby permit because it is "one of the few jobs I can combine with my studies."

Tietz lives at the International Student House, 1825 R st. nw.

Admiral Leahy Hopes to Retire As Chief of Staff

Indianapolis, Oct. 27 (AP).—Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy expects to give up his job soon as Chief of Staff to President Truman.

"The President has promised to release me this winter," the admiral, here for a Navy Day speech, said today.

Leahy is 73. He was "named Chief of Staff in 1942 by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and continued to serve under Mr. Truman.

The President once said Leahy was "a tower of strength to me" in the days after Mr. Roosevelt's death.

Arlington Buys $47,500 Site For High School

The Arlington School Board yesterday bought an eight-acre site for a proposed new junior high school at a cost of $47,500. The land on which the board held an option, is on Vacation lne. between Military rd. and Lorcum Lane.

The contract with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Carusillo, of 203 Baltimore ave., Takoma Park, Md., was concluded after an architect told the board the site would be suitable.

Airline to Cut N. Y.-Chicago Fare

Capital Airline announced yesterday it will begin an early morning "air coach" service November 4 between New York-Pittsburgh-Chicago at about two thirds cost of present rates.

The New York-Chicago fare will be $29.60. This compares with the regular airline fare of $44.10 and a railroad coach fare of $27.30.

The planes are 59-seat DC-4 Skymasters which now stand idle overnight at each end of the run.

The "air coach" plan is described by Capitol as an effort to increase aircraft use and offer low-cost service by eliminating meals and reservations and carrying only one hostess instead of two.

Truck-Trailer Industry 'Mobilizers' Named

Appointment of a three-man group to make mobilization recommendations for the truck-trailer industry was announced yesterday by Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

The group will hold its first meeting in Washington November 4. It consists of Julius Glick, president of the Truck Engineering Corp., Cleveland; Harvey Fruehauf, president of the Fruehauf Trailer Co., Detroit, and Frank Schotters, operations vice president of the Trailmobile Co., Cincinnati.

Payne Exonerated Of Impersonation, Assault Charges

Irving A. Payne, 20, of 1228 U st. nw., was exonerated yesterday of charges of assault and impersonating an offirer.

Judge Edward M. Curran of District Court directed a verdict of acquittal on the impersonation charge. The assault charge was nolle prossed.

The case arose on August 15 when Metropolitan Police responded to a "trouble call" to find Payne nead Florida ave. with Arthur Gibson, of that address. Witnesses said that Payne had "arrested" Gibson.

Payne at the time was wearing the uniform of the "Superior Private Police," an organization here devoted to nightwatchmen's activities. However, Payne was also wearing a holster containing a cap pistol.

It was pointed out that Payne never told anyone he was a Metropolitan policeman and the witnesses were unanimous in agreeing that they knew all the time he was not a member of the force.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

When Horn Blows These Days, It's Gabriel

He was quite unperturbed
For no warning he heard
As he stepped to his doom from the corner.
Not a siren betrayed
The collision that made Every friend that he had into mourner.

The policemen who came (When informed of the same)
All rejoiced and exhibited pleasure,
For they had a report
Of acceptable sort
That the chief would enormously treasure.

All the witnesses said
(Of the wounded and dead)
His departure was placid and willing.
And the evidence showed
Not a horn had been blowed;
Ah, the way we stop noise is just killing!

YEAH—BUT DID IT WIN?

One of our printers was telling about a bad dream he had the other night. He dreamed that he went out to Laurel, selected a 20-to-1 shot, walked up to the mutuel window and bet $50 on it.

After he walked away from the window, he realized that he had given the clerk a $100 bill, but hadn't received any change.

"Did you go back and demand your change?" asked an excited colleague.

"Naw," replied the printer airily, "I knew it was a dream. Any time I bet $50 on a long-shot, that's bound to be a dream."

PERSONAL NOTES

Jim Wilfong, jr., 1541 Montana ave. ne.: I purposely didn't identify the culprit, because I wanted to see whether any of our City Stepfathers would show any interest in informing him that he's not a privileged character. But they haven't bothered to ask his name, so I assume they approve of his behavior. That's what comes of living under a system which gives us plenty of taxation but no representation.

QUICKIE QUIZ DEPT.

So you're a good speller, eh? When do you spell it "breech" and when "breach"?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three healthy, playful kittens, 7 weeks old." (District 0525, extension 426).

"Two male Maltese kittens." (Woodley 3218).

MISCELLANY

Some time ago we printed a letter from a District Liner whose friend was going to "put his dog to sleep" when he moved, because the pup was "too loyal to adjust himself to a new master." Comes now a report that the letter served its purpose, and the master decided to place his pet in a new home. . . . Mrs. Ethel Black, director of the Absentee Voters Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, tells us that friends in Paris voiced appreciation of The Washington Post's chart on absentee voting, because it gave them just the information they needed to request and cast absentee ballots. . . . That mail edition of ours certainly gets around, doesn't it? . . . Sally and Audrey Ross of 616 Longfellow st. ne. (Paul Junior High School, 9-B), think maybe we ought to start a "Pied Pressmen Dept." to handle the news of our morning contemporary's recent edition in which one entire comic page was printed upside-down. . . . Mrs. Dorothy E. Taylor of 1215 N. Highland st., Arlington, Va., tells me that the Ladies Auxiliary of Columbia Post 833, VFW, will hold a party at the Heurich Brewery at 8:30 Friday night (Frank Govan's orchestra) and tickets may be purchased at the door. . . . Isn't "201 Pennsylvania ave. se." in the 100 block? . . . And have you seen the 1948 Ford bearing Connecticut license plates whose "number" is "HOYA"?

SO THEY GOT MARRIED

She transcribed the notes in her book,
Then winced as she saw his stern look.
The boss shook his head
And to her sadly said:
"As a steno you'd make a good cook."

Betty Hughes.

ADD SIMILES

As unfailing as the arrival of the Pepco bill.

ULTIMATE

Mrs. James F. Clarke of 3818 W st. se. has a story that puts the clincher on our recent discussion of sentences which end with prepositions.

Mrs. Clarke tells of the mother who goes upstairs to read to her child, and is greeted with:

"What did you bring that book I didn't want to be read to out of up for?"

DON'T WRITE—TELEGRAPH

Sid Zins of the Dorchester House is a hard-working publicity man for Columbia Pictures.

In preparation for the arrival of "Loves of Carmen" at the Warner, Sid drummed up some radio publicity which offered Rita Hayworth dolls as prizes.

But the New York office failed to ship the dolls as promised, and every night Sid would call Western Union and send off an urgent message: "Please send dolls at once."

Last night, as he dictated the plea for about the fifth time, the girl at Western Union cut in with: "Say, aren't you the man who's been sending this same message for the past week?"

Sid acknowledged that he was, and there was a brief pause. Then the voice at the other end inquired:

"What's the matter—don't you like Washington girls?"

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Wasn't it Will Rogers who said that there'd be no traffic problem if our streets merely had to accommodate the autos that were paid for?

Leonard Lyons . . .

PAUL LOCKWOOD, Governor Dewey's No. 1 aide, saw Si Gerson, the Communist Party official, in Albany. Lockwood greeted him, and Gerson muttered a reply. "Si, I said hello to you, because you and I have known each other a long time," said Lockwood. "You should be civil" . . . Gerson admitted error, and to be civil showed Lockwood a story which the Daily Worker was planning to use. Its headline was, "Dewey Hero of Stork Club Set" . . . "That's wrong," Lockwood pointed out. "Governor Dewey's never been to the Stork, or to any night club. I go to the Stork Club, and I've found more Democrats there than Republicans" . . . They discussed the headline again, and compromised: "Dewey Hero of National Republican Club."

David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of National Broadcasting Co., asked Kelcy Allen, the venerable critic, how long he'd been around Broadway. "So long," said Allen, "that I remember when NBC meant National Biscuit Co."

Jarmila Novotna, the Metropolitan Opera singer, entertained at the IBM convention at Endicott, N. Y. When the singer learned that Eisenhower would be the guest of honor, she decided to include in her repertoire a song in tribute to him . . . Just before the program began, Miss Novotna was introduced to Eisenhowever, who told her, "I'm looking forward to hearing you. I do hope you won't sing 'My Hero,' because others have done it and it embarrassed me no end" . . . "I wouldn't dream of such a thing," said Novotna, who then whispered to her accompanist: "Program change, 'My Hero' is out."

Jackie Gleason was asked why he's given up drinking after all these years. "Well, I had a choice," said Gleason. "I could either go on the wagon—or get in one" . . . Harry Forwood, press agent for "Life With Mother"—Lindsay & Crouse's display of theater magic at its best—sent an opening night wire to Director Guthrie McClintic: "I'm not worried about anything—Harry Forwood, Bellevue Hospital."

Party Line Cutting Seen On Congress

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson is on a tour of the West, taking political soundings prior to election.)

Los Angeles—There's a strong tendency in almost every part of the country to cut party lines in this election and vote for the best Congressmen, regardless of party.

Following up previous Merry-Go-Round columns evaluating Congressmen who deserve reelection, here is a roll call of others worthy of being returned to the House of Representatives.

Jim Wadsworth, New York Republican—Not too proud to go back to the House of Representatives after serving in the Senate. A far-sighted battler for preparedness before Pearl Harbor, and a real asset to Congress.

Sol Bloom, New York Democrat—A grand old warrior who has served his fellow-men for a quarter of a century. Once in the theatrical business, Sol introduced the Salome dance to this country, is addicted to loud vests, can always be found fighting on the side of the underdog. Opposed by the left-wingers and Communists, Sol now faces the reelection race of his life.

Sol Bloom

Mike Monroney, Oklahoma Democrat recognized by both political parties as one of the finest men in Congress. He declined an invitation to be Truman's Secretary of Agriculture because he honestly believed he knew more about being a Congressman than about agriculture.

Karl Stefan, Nebraska Republican—Born in Czechoslovakia, Stefan has been of great help to the State Department in getting propaganda ideas behind the iron curtain. He has had the courage to buck reactionary GOP leadership in getting more money for antitrust prosecution.

John Blatnik, Minnesota Democrat—Came to Congress with a great war record, and has been just as courageous in Congress as he was in the Army.

Frank Havenner, California Democrat—Was a front-line battler for low-cost housing and did his own thinking on the Marshall Plan, despite strong opposition from the Wallaceites.

Mel Price, Illinois Democrat—One of the few former GIs in Congress. (Most congressional veterans were officers.) Price enlisted in the Army as a private at the age of 38, and came out a sergeant. He has consistently battled against the real estate lobby.

Gordon Canfield, New Jersey Republican—One of only eight Republicans who had the courage to vote against the repeal of price control.

Francis Walter, Pennsylvania Democrat—Staunch foe of bureaucracy, frequently fought with Roosevelt over regulating Federal agencies, marched out of Congress to join the Navy during the war.

Helen Gahagan Douglas, California Democrat—Fought harder to defeat the real estate lobby than almost anyone else in Congress; also an unrelenting battler for lower prices.

John C. Brophy, Wisconsin Republican—Has the courage to bolt the GOP whip-crackers when he thinks he is right; worked for better housing, championed labor, uncovered scandal in sale of Government ship accessories.

Chris Herter, Massachusetts Republican—Ranks alongside Senator Vandenberg as a battler for bipartisan foreign policy.

John Vorys, Ohio Republican—Aggressive-thinking, slow-speaking, independent-voting, he is one of the respected GOP leaders.

Lansdale Sasscer, Maryland Democrat—Good, solid legislator with ability and leadership; keeps a sharp eye on the military; a picture of a Maryland country gentleman.

Gerald Landis, Indiana Republican—A former coal miner, he voted for the Taft-Hartley Act and now faces the real election fight of his life. Has worked for Federal aid to education and mine inspection.

This column lacks the space to include many able Southern Congressmen who in real fact do not come before the voters now, since their fate was decided in earlier primaries.

THE CHAIR HIT of the Year
It's a Sell-Out Every Time...
So Useful Everyone Wants One!

Specially Priced at 19.95

WE'VE been selling chairs for over half a century. All kinds! All prices! But never in our entire history do we remember a success like this! When we first advertised this chair-hit last August the result was sensational. Customers descended on us like never before! Home-makers grabbed them for living rooms, bedrooms, playrooms, dens! Doctors, lawyers, businessmen . . . snatched them up for waiting rooms and offices. Purchasing agents gobbled them up for hotel lobbies, club rooms, hospital rooms. Orders swamped us . . . by mail, phone, wire. Customers kept up the steady swarm . . . stormed in for more and more . . . till finally we had to cry "quits." We yanked these fabulous chairs out of our windows . . . out of displays . . . and still you beseeched us for more. For months we've been needling our manufacturer for more chairs. We begged, coaxed, entreated, and turned on the charm. Finally, we're ready! Ready to seat the town on the chair-hit of the year . . . our exclusive Selig Cocktail Chair!

WHAT'S the fascinating data about this prize-plum? For 19.95 you get a beautiful, comfortable, marvelously adaptable chair that stands a good 31 in. high, 24¼ in. wide, 26-in. deep. You get a solid kiln-dried hardwood frame, corner-blocked and doweled. You get a chair whose back is shaped to fit your back. You get a seat spring-filled for buoyancy. You get a butter-smooth finish in creamy, luscious blonde. You get staunch, high-tensile rayon woven upholstery. You get chartreuse, lipstick red, forest green, coral or desert sand. Order 'em in pairs, threesomes, foursomes. First come, first served.
